Mr. Calder had for many years conducted a successful florists' business in Norwood. He was one of the few growers who could do double violets well locally. He also grew anemones, ranunculi and other forcing bulbs not generally handled in the trade.

The deceased was a member of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club since 1905 and was highly esteemed by a wide circle of friends, who deeply regret his passing away in the prime of manhood. Funeral services were held at his late residence in Norwood and were largely attended. There were numerous beautiful floral tributes. W. N. C.

Henry F. Haase.

Henry F. Haase, who was attached to the floricultural section of the United States Department of Agriculture, died at his home, 1455 Monroe street, Washington, D. C., last week, following an illness of three months. Mr. Haase was born in Alsace, France, fifty-nine years ago, coming to the United States about twen y-five years ago. He is survived by his widow and three children. Burial was held from the Sacred Heart church. Interment was in Mount Olivet cemetery. T. N. S.

EARLY PEONIES.

Kindly tell us the three most desirable peonies in each color—white, pink and red—that will combine earliness of bloom with size, fragrance and good keeping and shipping qualities.

We wish to plant an acre, to start with, and expect to ship them to northern markets. We desire to get into the markets as early as possible with the most desirable varieties. R. D.—Va.

In white, Queen Victoria is most largely grown for shipping. Mme. de Verneville, Duchesse de Nemours and festiva maxima are other excellent early varieties. In pink, Octavie Demay, Venus and Eugenie Verdier are leaders. M. Jules Elie is the best early dark pink, and for red you might grow Augustin d'Hour and M. Martin Cahuzac.

It is found desirable, in growing peonies for shipping, to restrict the number of varieties to a few of the best, growing larger quantities of each, rather than fewer of many varieties.

New Philadelphia, O.—The personnel of the Endres Floral Co. has been changed by the withdrawal of George A. Endres, who has bought the Tyler range at Salem, O., and the entry of M. J., F. B. and J. G. Endres into the firm. All mentioned are brothers of L. P. Endres, who remains the head of the Endres Floral Co. The company has planted with roses the house, 50x400, recently erected just outside town, in addition to the 15,000 feet inside the city.

West Plains, Mo.—C. W. Harold has given up the business which he has conducted for a number of years under the name of Cottage Greenhouse & Ozark Pansy Gardens. He has had a run of bad luck, which was too much for him. In March a fire destroyed most of the greenhouses and stock while Mrs. Harold was in the hospital undergoing an operation for cancer, from which she died September 6. Mr. Harold will go east to superintend the laying out of a park and summer resort.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

A PAGE OF TIMELY AID AND ADVICE TO GROWERS

PLANTING DUTCH BULBS.

The Time to Act.

The last half of October and the first half of November is the best period for planting out Dutch bulbs. For filling solid beds, tulips are far superior to all others; they last longer than narcissi and make a more brilliant showing. Beds of one color are in excellent taste; circular ones of a mixed assortment also look well, but it is an easy matter to make crosses, stars, wheels and other figures by planting certain colors which bloom together. Catalogues invariably give the comparative heights and simplify the selection of suitable sorts.

Some bedding tulips stand out preeminently; thus among the early section Joost Van Vondel, white Pottebakker and White Swan are splendid whites. The last named is a rather late bloomer and is sometimes classed with the late tulips. Vermilion Brilliant and Cramoisi Brilliant are fine scarlets, and in the popular pink class we have Cottage Maid, Flamingo and Prosperity. Deeper in color are Rose Grisdelin, Rose Luisante and Pink Beauty. The last two varieties, coming in the rose-colored class, are fine, and for all-around excellence Pink Beauty is, in the writer's opinion, the best of all the early bedding tulips. It blooms a little later than about all other varieties. For those wanting a gay tulip, the red and yellow Keizerskroom may still appeal, but soft colors as a rule are more pleasing and popular. Those liking a red and white should try Joost Van Vondel, the white form of which, already mentioned, is a magnificent bedding tulip.

In the Yellow Class.

In yellow we have Ophir d'Or, Chrysolora and King of the Yellows, which are good. In the deeper orange shades come Thomas Moore and Prince of Austria. All of the foregoing are of moderate price and thoroughly dependable.

More and more of the Darwins are grown each year, both for bedding and forcing. They are much the finest class of tulips. They flower later, grow much taller, look more stately and have better keeping qualities than the early section. Furthermore, when planted and undisturbed, they improve much the second and third seasons. On the other hand, the earlies usually deteriorate in like ratio.

Darwins look fairly well mixed, but, to make a really effective showing, they should be in beds or blocks of solid colors. A few really good bedders are: Farncombe Sanders and Pride of Haarlem, rose; Princess Elizabeth, Massachusetts, Gretchen and Clara Butt, pink; Bartigon, William Pitt and Europe, scarlet; Rev. Ewbank, mauve; William Copeland, lavender; La Tulipe Noire, dark maroon, nearly black; King Harold, dark red; White Queen, white; Mme. Krelage and Loveliness, carmine-rose. As a yellow the writer would suggest having Inglescombe Yellow, one of the cottage tulips, as there is no true yellow Darwin. Many of the May-flowering or cottage tulips are fine for mass effects or cutting and no one could go far wrong in planting a batch of such well-known and popular sorts as Picotee, Bouton d'Or, Leghorn Bonnet, Inglescombe Scarlet, Golden Crown, Gesneriana lutea, Gesneriana spathulata and Mrs. Moon. Often these will hold in good condition outdoors until Memorial day. The scarlets are especially valuable for that holiday. Tulips should be planted about four inches deep.

Concerning Narcissi.

Narcissi are rarely used for filling beds; they are much better used in clumps in the herbaceous borders, as borderings, or planted out in grass land. The large trumpet varieties, like Golden Spur and Henry Irving, succeed rather indifferently outdoors. Princeps, Emperior, Victoria, Glory of Leiden and Mme. de Graaff, on the other hand, last well from year to year. About all the medium trumpet varieties, like Barrii conspicuus, Sir Watkin, the various Burbidgei, incomparabilis and poeticus varieties, succeed well in the borders or in grass land where grass is not cut until June. Poeticus does superbly in wet places, such as along the margins of ponds and streams. All the narcissi will do better if they can have a little shade.

Hyacinths.

Hyacinths bloom earlier than tulips and narcissi and make excellent beds; they are sometimes alternated with tulips to provide a succession, but it is a better plan to give them beds to themselves and, before their flowers go, plant daisies, forget-me-nots, violas or pansies below them for a ground cover and to make a succession crop. The same should be done with the tulips, care, of course, being always taken to use ground covers which do not clash. Some of the old bedding hyacinths are still hard to beat, such as King of the Blues, dark blue; Queen of the Blues, pale blue; L'Innocence and La Grandesse, white; Gertrude, pink, and La Victoire, red. Hyacinths may be planted a little deeper than tulips. It is important that bulb beds be not mulched until the soil is frozen. If covered while the ground is soft, frost will be excluded and mice will have a fine opportunity to raise havoc with the bulbs, especially tulips; then, again, the early mulch causes shoots to peep through the soft soil and these will reach a considerable length ere time for uncovering arrives and then, no matter how careful we may be, many shoots will be broken. Be sure, therefore, to mulch late for best results.

At one time we were privileged to import and plant such simple and innocent bulbs as snowdrops, scillas, chionodoxas, English and Spanish iris, fritillarias, etc. Only crocuses are now on the unbanned list; all others are classed as dangerous under quarantine 37 of the F. H. B.

Hardy Lilies.

To those planning to grow hardy lilies, it might be well to state that L. candidum should have been planted a number of weeks ago. L. regale will be ripened sufficiently to plant about November 1. L. auratum, L. tigrinum, L. Henryi, L. speciosum, L. album and the colored speciosums, like Melpomene, magnificum and rubrum, are not usually ready before the middle or the end of November and where there is a danger of the ground freezing up, a mulch of straw, hay or leaves should be placed over the ground to exclude frost. All of the last-named lilies should be planted deeply. Nine inches is not too much and, where the soil is of ample depth and well drained, twelve inches would be better. Lilies planted shallow suffer badly from summer heat; when deeply set, their roots are in the cooler and moister earth, and far more satisfactory results may be expected from them.

PLANTING PERENNIALS.

Fall, rather than spring, is the time to transplant the great majority of hardy herbaceous perennials. Peonies and irises would have been better planted a month ago, but will do much better moved now than in spring. There are also a few subjects, such as Japanese anemones, pompon chrysanthemums, Shasta daisies and tritomas, which do not transplant successfully in autumn, but such popular plants as delphiniums, phloxes, aquilegias, hemerocallis, shrubby clematis, rudbeckias, stokesias, veronicas, dictamnus, lupinus and thermopsis should be fall planted whenever possible, as the plants make a far better start in the spring than when the work of transplanting is delayed until that strenuous season.

Practically all flowering perennials like a fairly rich soil and, if it contains a fair amount of well-decayed manure, it suits about all of them. The demand for this type of plant steadily grows, and no country florist will go far wrong if he stocks up one good batch of the best varieties. Many are fine for cutting; others are excellent for flowering effects in beds or borders and, unlike annuals, they last for not one but many seasons and give a long succession of blooms.

The low-growing perennials, some of which are evergreen, may also be moved successfully now. Among these are the early dwarf phloxes, hardy candytuft, Viola cornuta, sweet williams, arabis and hardy dianthus. All newly planted perennials should have a winter mulch, but do not apply this until the ground is frozen. The mulch is intended to keep frost in the ground, rather than exclude it. These same rules apply to such hardy bulbs as narcissi, tulips and hyacinths.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

THE coal market is not so stiff as it was, but still it is too stiff for our comfort.

FLORISTS will plant more hardy stock, shrubs and perennials this autumn than ever before.

THE rose midge again is causing loss to growers. "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty" from this scourge.

WHAT we need to advance the florists' trade is for each and all of us to do things better. We need betterment all the way down the line, from quality of stock to precision in office detail.

THE nurserymen are urging everybody to "Plan to Plant Another Tree" and yet there are a lot of people who don't know where to get the tree. The neighborhood florist should plan to help them out.

CINCINNATI is the latest flower market to undertake advertising on a coöperative assessment basis. The growers shipping into that city will pay one-half of one per cent of their receipts for publicity.

WE have heard a lot of late about the use of oil for greenhouse heating, but has anyone tried artificial gas? Many gas companies are seeking commercial business and assert "you can do it better with gas."

THE serious setback the rolling stock of the railroads received during the recent strike will not soon be overcome. As the demands on the roads increase, this fact becomes more apparent. It will behoove florists to place orders early this season, in order to avoid almost certain delays in transportation.

THERE are many complaints of the unsatisfactory quality of Dutch bulbs, especially narcissi, received by florists. It appears that in the anxiety to get the shipments through the New York customhouse in advance of the tariff law, many shipments were made before they were sufficiently dry, with the result that the bulbs heated in transit. The insurers have their hands full, as the condition seems general, and probably next spring many growers who have not thought of it now will find they have blind stock.

THE principal cause of complaint in the trade at present is of slow collections. If everyone would make a special effort to get in the past due money and pay past due bills it would relieve many a florist's anxieties.

THE Stuppy Floral Co., of St. Joseph, Mo., has decided to disseminate its new rose, Annie Laurie, next season. The variety is a flesh pink sport of Ophelia with a gold base extending a third of the way up the petals.

THE Editor's desk has been decorated for several days by the fattest banana anyone in The Review office ever has seen. It came from the Stertzing Floral Co., St. Louis, Mo., with a card stating, "This is a sample of the fruit on a plant in our conservatory." A bunch of such big fellows must create a lot of talk among the Stertzing customers and their friends.

INTERESTS at Washington are engaged in the attempt to draw a bill which will extend to the originator of new horticultural varieties some sort of protection along the lines of patent or copyright laws. John M. Sutton, an attorney who makes economic botany his avocation, is formulating the bill in collaboration with officials of the Department of Agriculture.

THE final premium list of the St. Louis fall flower show, to be held at the Coliseum November 7 to 12, has been issued. The Chrysanthemum Society of America will provide the backbone of the show and will have the coöperation of the St. Louis Florists' Club, the Missouri State Florists' Association, the St. Louis Garden Club and the Missouri Horticultural Society. Copies of the premium list may be obtained from J. J. Beneke, executive secretary, 1316 Pine street, St. Louis, Mo.

THE SEASON'S OUTLOOK.

At a gathering like that at Baltimore last week, composed of retail florists from all parts of the country, two questions are current, "How has business been?" and "How do things look in your section?" The general effort is to get the other fellow's view of conditions and compare it with one's own. Thus is obtained, when there are 300 or more florists present from pretty nearly every state in the Union, a prospective that enables one to judge fairly accurately the trend of the season.

Unexpectedly, if you have been pessimistically inclined, you would learn that, all in all, the past summer has been a good one. The public has been buying flowers and, though it has declined to pay large prices, its patronage has been steady and of good volume.

There are exceptions to the generally favorable report of summer business, but retailers are unanimous in their belief that the coming season will be a good one. General business activity is increasing; the handicaps that distracted the public of late months are disappearing. The customary response is, "Things look good."

Some reflections accompany that observation in many cases. "We must work for our money," is a general thought. But we should expect to do that; the fact that some did not work much for what they got a couple of seasons back has not changed the order of things. "We must push flowers," is another comment, inspired by the indications that other lines of business are going to do some pushing themselves. "We must make our dollars count," is the lesson of a florist who has not had easy sledding the last two seasons. No matter what we buy, be it flowers or customers, we must pay for thriftily, if we would have the profits we desire. And we must get the money we have worked for; collections must be given a vigilant eye. With these precautions to watch our way, the outlook of the season ahead is generally called excellent.

NO COAL FAMINE.

It is now plain that, as keen observers stated earlier, there will be no shortage of coal this winter. It is so plain, indeed, that buyers, sure of their ability to get fuel when they need it, are in a concerted movement to stay out of the market until prices come down, according to Coal Age. According to that journal, industrial coal is being sold on a hand-to-mouth basis, for immediate requirements only. Industries throughout the country have responded to the suggestion that consumers buy coal according to their current needs during the present emergency, and the practice is now general.

Poor transportation conditions and the growing car shortage tend to modify the price break. Were it not for these factors, the present market would range lower all around, until the so-called buyers' strike had produced the price level which would tempt the consumer to enter heavier orders.

New England is in the heaviest supply of any section of the country and the northwest, of course, is the shortest. In the former market both all-rail and water-borne fuel are selling off and receipts dropping. Lake business is heavy, but the tremendous dock receipts of the last few weeks have so completely dispelled fears of a fuel famine that it has reduced consumer demand and threatens to affect the placing of additional orders at the mines.

As to prices, there is little or no hope of really satisfactory conditions as long as the miners continue to demand and get excessive wages for a minimum of work. The inevitable truth of that fact ought to be clear to all concerned. As compared with post-war levels, consumers are not now burdened with particularly excessive prices, but when comparison is made with pre-war prices it is easy to see that even in view of increases in other commodities, coal is far more expensive than it ought to be. When are we going to obtain vigorous action to remedy this situation?

The Market.

Stock has been improving since cool weather set in. Roses are extremely good; a good crop is being cut and prices are firmer. The demand last week was strong enough to keep the market fairly clean. Carnations are still small and short in stem. They are selling for $2 and $3 per hundred. California mums are plentiful. The retail stores are handling them for sale and using them freely for window displays. Home-grown mums are still scarce. Some of the outdoor stock has been touched by frost. Frost has affected the crops of only a few growers, in the outer limits of the city. Closer-in garden flowers are still blooming, but their time is short.

Various Notes.

Hugo Neff, of the Muehlebach Flower Shop, has bought a new Dodge truck. The Muehlebach has received a line of wrought-iron artware, fish bowls, candlesticks and bowls.

Mrs. E. H. Hedges has had successful sales of roses the last two Saturdays. She sold all stock for which she contracted and could have sold more, had she been able to get it. Mrs. Hedges has been made membership chairman of the Thirty-fifth division post auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and has been recommended as the organization's florist.

Two fields of dahlias of Barkley & Moore were killed by the first frost of the season, October 10. Fully 20,000 blooms were blighted.

G. M. Adlof is making a success of the Stockdale greenhouses he purchased in July. He is growing pot plants exclusively, most of which he will sell in his retail store. His plants are in good condition. Mr. Adlof has bought a Dodge delivery truck.

Mrs. E. L. Sawyer is a new member of the sales force of the W. L. Rock Flower Co. She was in the retail flower business in Crescent, Ia., for sixteen years. About a year ago she sold out. She will be glad to meet any of her old friends, now that she is located here.

For the last three weeks Miss L. E. Boggess has had exceptionally good business. At times she has had as much as she could do to get all her orders out on time.

John Stevens has installed a new boiler. He has two houses of fine roses, from which he is cutting plentifully, and a house of mums coming on well.

Among the visitors last week were Dr. and Mrs. B. W. Murphy, St. Joseph, Mo.; A. E. Mauff, Denver, Colo.; Philip Ryan, Brookfield, Mo.; C. Chick, Pleasant Hill, Mo.; Albert F. Koehle, Mangum, Okla.

Longview Farm is cutting Angelus, Columbia, Premier and Milady roses. The coming week will bring the first mums.

A. Newell had a busy day, Saturday, October 14. He is well pleased with the first half of the month and anticipates a busy season.

The Stuppy Supply Co. is receiving shipments of mums from California four times a week. They are coming through in good condition. A shipment of 1,000 arrived October 14. Nice shipments of roses are being received from growers now. The quality is decidedly better, but the supply is shortening.

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Bohannon attended a dance in Excelsior Springs, Mo., Saturday, October 14.

S. Bryson Ayres is holding a flower show in the Smart building, Eleventh and McGee streets. The opening was Saturday, October 14. Mr. Ayres worked all of the twenty-four hours preceding, putting the flowers in place and arranging the room. Although the morning was rainy, many visitors attended the show and when the sun came out about noon many more persons attended. No admission was charged. Although Mr. Ayres had no thought of selling the flowers when he planned the show, so many requests were made that he sold a good deal of the exhibits the first day. The variety of flowers displayed and the splendid quality were a surprise to many who admired them. There were choice roses and sweet peas from the greenhouses; dahlias, marigolds, zinnias, cosmos, celosia, strawflowers, fancy grasses—in fact, everything in the line of outdoor flowers grown in this locality. All were of the best. The profusion of flowers and the entire arrangement of the display were highly creditable.

The Chandler Landscape & Floral Co. made a casket cover of garden flowers for the Henry Page funeral. Mr. Page had a love for garden flowers of all kinds and for this reason these kinds of flowers were mainly in evidence at his funeral.

For the funeral of a lineman who was killed October 11, the Rosery had orders for two unusual pieces. One was a telephone pole, five feet high. The base was of pink pompon dahlias, outlined with lavender. The pole was of pink roses and dahlias. Gold spikes were used. The telephone company ordered a telephone of pale pink dahlias, with a mouthpiece of dark purple dahlias, and the rope of small purple flowers. This piece was four feet high. J. E. K.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

After lagging somewhat in the early days of the week, the market became much more active October 13 and 14, the activity being continued on the opening days of the present week. It was apparent that the same conditions which prevailed in this section also were influencing the trade all through the central part of the United States, because orders began coming by mail, by telegraph and by long-distance telephone from buyers who have not been heard from in many months. It was apparent that weather conditions had resulted in a sharp curtailment of production. This, coming just at the time that the outdoor flowers passed off the market, resulted in an acceleration of demand, which, originating in many cities and towns from Pittsburgh to Omaha and from Canada to the Gulf, centered in the Chicago market and cleaned out everything that was of shipping quality. The advance in prices, which naturally followed decreased supply and increased demand, was not sharply reflected in the longer grades of roses, but was most apparent in the short and medium roses and in carnations, though sweet peas and chrysanthemums both shared the new prosperity.

At the present moment the market is not heavily supplied and is cleaning up daily. There is an abundance of long-stemmed roses, but the shorter grades are not equal to the demand, though clear, cold weather should produce an early increase in the cuts. Indeed, there was a perceptible easing up as early as October 16.

The chrysanthemum has come forward as a leading item. The local production is not anywhere near equal to the demand, with the result that large importations have been coming from the Pacific coast. Since the weather turned cool most of this stock is traveling well and the flowers are of fine quality. Their appearance here provokes opposite reaction from retailers and growers, the wholesaler, as usual, standing between. The retailers are glad to see the California stock, while the growers of chrysanthemums resent its presence here. The probability is that as soon as the local mums become sufficiently abundant to supply the demand, the imported stock will disappear, as cost, express and loss run up so high there is no great margin of profit, though some San Francisco Turners have sold in this market for as much as $7.50 per dozen. Pompons are less plentiful than the big mums and are selling well. It appears that the local growers have planted more late varieties than usual this year, which may possibly defeat their purpose.

The supply of carnations increases daily, but it has not increased as rapidly as the demand has gained. As quality also is on the up grade, good prices are being obtained. Sweet peas also are improving in quality and have enjoyed a good advance in price. Easter lilies are in small supply and are selling at 25 cents each. Valley is steady. Orchids are irregular in supply and consequently fluctuate strangely in price.

Asters and gladioli have practically disappeared and with them most other outdoor flowers have gone, but there are quantities of fine cosmos.

There is nothing new in the green goods situation at present.

At the time of going to press reports indicate that the market has eased considerably and that stock is equal to all demands.

Uptown Exposition Opens.

The second annual Uptown Chicago Exposition opened at the Broadway Armory October 16, numbering among its exhibitors five north side florists and a Loop seed house, and among its special features a conspicuous flower display, given the place of honor at the entrance.

Under the general direction of H. D. Schiller and the managership of Peter Pearson, the flower display assumed better proportions than was expected in view of market conditions. Tuesday, October 17, plant exhibits and cut roses were displayed, the following prizes being awarded:

One hundred Columbia—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first.

The judges were R. C. Schiele, W. H. Wienhoeber and L. E. Clody.

The group of foliage plants staged by Frank Oechslin was of admirable quality. Each plant was labeled, so that the public might add to its botanical knowledge.

Peter Pearson showed some fine looking cherries and ferns. Poehlmann Bros. Co. was generously represented with fine large palms and other decorative stock and with cut roses.

There were, in addition to the exhibits above listed, a fine vase of 100 Milady roses and a few Phantom from Poehlmann Bros. Co., some handsome Premier from the Premier Rose Gardens, an attractive vase of Mrs. Harding from Wendland & Keimel Co., well grown Ophelia and Columbia from Dramm Bros. and a vase of a sport of Columbia from Stielow Bros.

October 18 carnations were staged. M. Winandy, Sr., showed several vases of his seedlings. October 21, it was planned, a moving picture would be taken of the flower display and the rest of the exposition.

Booths were occupied by five north side florists and one by A. Henderson & Co., who showed recently imported bulbs.

Henry Wittbold & Son staged a group of foliage plants and autumn boughs about a pool. Flowering plants and baskets gave color to the exhibit.

Clody's Flower Shop made an attractive bower of tinted autumn foliage. Big mums, in baskets and vases, were admired. Miss Clody gave out brass bookmarks.

Schiller the Florist made a striking exhibit. An imitation conservatory bay window, filled with plants, stood out from the wall. A spotlight and the delicate pink and blue shades of the setting made the space one of the most conspicuous spots in the show.

The Birchwood Florist interested the public by its lawn planting, on a small scale, of evergreens, edged with begonias in bloom. A gravel walk and a Randall electric fountain made it realistic.

Stollery Bros. showed one of their celebrated basket bouquets in a gold frame, made brilliant by a spotlight directed on it from the ferneries that surrounded the space.

Various Notes.

R. Scheffler, the well known Wheaton grower, returned October 14 from New York, where he went to meet his wife, who was on her way home from Germany bringing the body of their 7-year-old son, Rudolph. Mrs. Scheffler went to Hamburg last spring, accompanied by the boy, for a summer visit with relatives. They were about to leave for home when the boy was fatally injured by a horse in the street. He died September 30. The funeral was held at Wheaton, October 16, there being a large attendance and a profusion of flowers, attesting the high esteem in which the family is held and the sympathy of the community. There are four other children in the Scheffler family.

P. C. Schupp, proprietor of J. A. Budlong Co., was taken seriously ill last week and Sunday morning, October 15, was operated on at Ravenswood hospital for the removal of the appendix.

Mr. Schupp stood the operation well and at latest reports is making excellent progress toward recovery. During his illness the business is in charge of his son, Roswell Schupp.

Paul R. Klingsporn returned home, October 15, after a week of rapid travel. He spent a couple of days at Baltimore and then visited Cromwell, Conn.; the New York and Philadelphia markets, and called on customers at Pittsburgh. He reports general business conditions about the same in the east as in the Chicago market, but says prices are slightly higher on roses in the east.

J. G. Schumann, formerly foreman for Wendland & Keimel Co. and before that rose grower for Bassett & Washburn, has become general foreman for Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill.

Miss Nettie Parker, vice-president and treasurer of A. T. Pyfer & Co., Inc., has returned from a ten days' trip in the east in company with Miss M. A. Tierney, proprietor of the Bills Floral Co., Davenport, Ia. After attending the Baltimore convention they visited Philadelphia and New York.

Weiland & Risch Co. is entertaining the decorators this week, putting the store in first-class condition for winter trade.

A. A. Martial returned October 14 from Baltimore. He says Poehlmann Bros. Co. was the only Chicago supply house making an exhibit there during the F. T. D. convention and that the orders booked exceeded the number taken in August at the Kansas City convention of the S. A. F. Marshall N. Tyler, who was at Baltimore, stopped at his old home at Cleveland for a couple of days on the way back to Chicago.

B. W. Murphy, secretary of the Stuppy Floral Co., St. Joseph, Mo., is expected in Chicago within the next few days.

Paul Pietzsch has just completed a Dietsch constructed house at Villa Park, Ill. He will grow snapdragon and expects to build another house in the spring.

Poehlmann Bros. Co., having most of the new equipment in place, is planning to open for business in its new quarters, 163 to 165 North Wabash avenue, next Monday, October 23.

Anton Then and Mrs. Then recently returned from California for the purpose of disposing of their store and other property on Larrabee street prior to a permanent removal to the Pacific coast. Mrs. Then's health is much better there than here. Miss Josie Then will accompany them when they make their home in the west. Anton Then has been in the florists' business on Larrabee street for thirty-nine years.

Adolph Poehlmann, accompanied by Walter and Morton Poehlmann, visited Hinsdale October 15 as the guests of C. L. Washburn and Mrs. Washburn. The afternoon was spent on the grounds of the Hinsdale Golf Club, where Morton's score for twenty-seven holes made the semi-pros sit up. Mr. Washburn plans organizing a florists' golf club next season.

It has been decided to hold the Maywood meeting of the Florists' Club been in the seed and bulb trade since 1883, thirty-nine years.

An electric sign may not always be a good ad. For instance, William Wienhoeber put one in front of the store of the E. Wienhoeber Co., on Elm street, and the neighbors circulated a petition for its removal. It is a residence street. The story made the front page of the Tribune one day last week.

The U. S. Veterans' Bureau has placed a number of wounded soldiers in greenhouses around Chicago, for vocational training. H. F. Wascher, 111 North Clark street, is in charge of the work here. The government pays a liberal allowance while the former soldier is learning his trade.

Reports that Albert Fuchs' famous Chateau apartment house is to come down to make way for a residential hotel to cost $5,000,000 were confirmed by newspaper announcements this week. The corner store in the Chateau is occupied by the store of the Briggs Floral Co. This is to be the last of three sections of the new building to be erected, so that Mr. Papatony will not be disturbed or inconvenienced in the near future.

Miss Edith Benson has been appointed as sixth grade teacher in the Belmont school. Miss Benson, who is the only daughter of the late Andrew C. Benson, plans to study floriculture at the University of Illinois after the holidays.

Visitors.

David S. Geddis, of the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co., was one of last week's visitors. He says fall trade is opening nicely at St. Louis and that a good season seems assured.

E. W. McLellan, who has been in Chicago for several weeks, representing San Francisco chrysanthemums, left here last week and is now in the south, where the All Saints' day orders come from.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

There is little life in the trading. The supply is so heavy that the buyers can get all the flowers they want easily. Often they can get them at their own price, and the places of these later are filled before their absence is noted. The hot weather at the beginning of the week drove chrysanthemums in so fast that they are replacing other flowers. Tints of Gold, Sunglow and Chrysolora have come through the furnace, but Unaka and Early Rose are not fine enough varieties to stand a fiery finish. The dahlias are still good and they are much used, but the market is turning to other flowers. Carnations are having a hard time. The condition of the carnation market may be best described by telling of a Chestnut street florist who offered dahlias at 50 cents a dozen and gave every customer a bunch of carnations. Roses have shortened in supply. The demand for them is active, and prices have become firmer. Gardenias are scarce and high. Both orchids and valley are plentiful. The demand for them is light. There is little cosmos and there are outdoor flowers of all kinds.

The F. T. D. Here.

Friday, October 13, was the greatest day in the floral life of Philadelphia. A hundred members of the F. T. D. came here from the Baltimore convention in the morning and spent the day. The party, which included many ladies, arrived in three detachments. They were met at Broad street station and at West Philadelphia by our local F. T. D. members and friends. Then began a day of activity. The first call was made on H. H. Battles, where his two busy shops, with their large corps of assist-

They are improving in quality. In fact, compared with other years, we believe they are quite up to the season's standard. If you are not growing any Carnations of your own, arrange with us for a regular supply. We will take care of these orders now, also later in the season when the supply may be scarce elsewhere.

On account of the large quantity of Orchids we handle, we can well afford to carry a good supply on hand. This puts us in a position to fill your orders on short notice. We can furnish Orchids in almost any quantity if you give us enough time to get a shipment from the greenhouses.

past White Marsh hall, the country residence of E. T. Stotesbury; over to Willow Grove and to Ogontz. They were received at Lynnwood hall, the estate of Joseph E. Widener, and shown around his greenhouses.

On its return to Philadelphia, the party scattered among the wholesale commission and supply houses. They reassembled at the Adelphia at 6 o'clock for dinner and after dinner they went to the theater, where places had been reserved for the 9 o'clock performance, to hear Victor Herbert. The wee small hours had come before the last of the party were back at the Bellevue.

A Call.

William J. Baker found himself at Sixtieth street and Girard avenue the evening before Columbus day, with a little spare time and a strong desire for a little companionship. What was more natural than to walk half a block west to Sixtieth and One-half street and to call on George Carpenter? It proved a happy inspiration. Mr. Carpenter was at home, glad to see his friend and free to entertain him.

Presently the talk drifted back to old days and Mr. Carpenter spoke of things that happened when he was a boy: How William McMurray had been taking his father's bouvardia at a contract price and how it transpired that between Thanksgiving and Christmas there were too many bouvardias; how Mr. McMurray told Mr. Carpenter, Sr., that his contract price was all right at Thanksgiving and Christmas, but that it must come down between times; how Mr. Carpenter, Sr., in great wrath, gathered up his bouvardia and with it went to William J. Baker, then commencing as a wholesale florist in Philadelphia, and how Mr. Baker returned Mr. Carpenter $300 more than the contract price for the crop of bouvardia.

This story took so well that Mr. Carpenter told another of how he sallied forth from Sixtieth and One-half street and Girard avenue on the morning of the day before to take his father's flowers to Mr. Baker's, of how Mr. Baker told that he had better buy anything that he could in the afternoon; of how he went back to Sixtieth and One-half street and Girard avenue and, after going all over the place, could only gather twenty La France roses; of how Fred Boner, who then had a greenhouse at Broad and South streets, wanted those roses, and of how Mr. Maggi, who was then where John C. Gracey now is,

THIS FOR A FUNERAL.

There are a number of interesting features about the accompanying illustration, which shows the work of the E. C. Ludwig Floral Co., of Pittsburgh. In the first place, here is a most unusual funeral design, as the splendid vase of Premier roses was one of numerous floral pieces that this concern sent to the burial of Mrs. Henry Buhl, Jr. Baskets of flowers have become quite common at funerals, but big Beauty vases filled with long-stemmed roses still are rarely used in that connection. However, nothing could be more suitable for the purpose.

The illustration also shows the Ludwig advertisement on the show window; the firm name, the trade slogan and the telegraph delivery. It seems open to question, however, if the name of the Telegraph Delivery Association is as yet sufficiently well known to the public so that, used alone, it carries the message the florist intends. Will someone please coin a short phrase like our trade slogan which will as clearly explain the method by which flowers are delivered at a distance?

FLOWER COVER AT THE GRAVE.

C. E. Rossiter & Son, Sunbury, Pa., are making a new wreath and flower cover for use at graves. It is a sturdy container made of a transparent substance called Pyralin, a product of the I. E. Du Pont de Nemours Co. Its object is to protect wreaths or flowers placed on the grave, without detracting from the decorative values of the flowers. It is both practical and dignified, and seems to be well fitted to preserve the decorations, since it is weatherproof.

Mr. Rossiter states that in his retail establishment at Sunbury it has stimulated his business in flowers for the graveyard, and as a window display it is quite an attraction. This appears to be one of the important features, as the cover should prove interesting to the flower-buying public, most of whom will see the value of protecting grave decorations.

SELLING SURPLUS STOCK.

When flowers are plentiful, overplentiful, on the market, it takes a thinker and a true salesman to sell the stock. Many ways and plans have been devised, with more or less success.

An extremely successful plan has been carried out by E. D. Ellsworth, of Kansas City, Mo. Dahlias were plentiful—too much so for easy sale. So Mr. Ellsworth announced by way of sign in the front window of his store Friday, September 29, that he would have a special sale on dahlias for the following two days.

What happened? He sold 1,000 dahlias the first of the sale days, and used up all the supply on hand. There was no great reduction in price. But it was the idea of the sale that attracted people. He sold much fancy stock at good prices; baskets were likewise sold and there were some orders placed for funeral work.

Mr. Ellsworth states that he will follow the same plan when mums are plentiful and with all other flowers when they are in season. Here is an idea that may help many a retailer to get rid of some of that surplus stock.

ANNUALS FOR BOUQUETS.

We have a large trade in old-fashioned, or colonial, bouquets during the winter and for these we require a variety of materials. Would it pay to grow annuals, such as ageratum, sweet alyssum, candytuft, etc., for this purpose in a carnation temperature? We want to grow the plants during the winter.

R. S. & S.—Mich.

Some annuals would bloom well with you in winter in a carnation temperature. Double and single alyssum will do finely, as well as bachelor's buttons. Mignonette prefers a lower temperature. Sweet peas do well in a temperature of 50 degrees at night. Schizanthus in pots would come in useful from February onwards. Ageratums would not prove successful, and candytuft will not bloom well until near Memorial day. Dimorphotheca will bloom speedily from seeds and it flowers a long time. The annual Gypsophila elegans will not come in well until spring. It does best in flats on a shelf or in shallow soil in benches. If you have use for scarlet flowers, take some cuttings from climbing nasturtiums. They will soon root. Put three plants in a 9-inch pot and train them up the rafters. They succeed best partly potbound and give large quantities of flowers. Verbenas bloom well early in spring, if the seed is started in January, and they are splendid for bouquet work. C. W.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

Edward Tracey, of the Rosery; William C. Gloeckner, of Capitol Hill; Henry Schrade & Son, of Saratoga, N. Y.; William Hotaling, of Amsterdam, N. Y., represented the Capitol district at the F. T. D. meeting at Baltimore. William C. Gloeckner was putting the finishing touches on a blanket of pink roses for the casket of a prominent Albanian and observed: "To gain much, one has to sacrifice much."

Fred A. Danker was kept at home by a patroness who insisted on personal attention to the decorations for her wedding. "How could it have been otherwise when our slogan is 'Service'!" inquired Mr. Danker. "Much as I should have enjoyed attending the gathering at Baltimore, the report as given in The Review will be doubly interesting to me," continued he.

come in well until spring. It does best in flats on a shelf or in shallow soil in benches. If you have use for scarlet flowers, take some cuttings from climbing nasturtiums. They will soon root. Put three plants in a 9-inch pot and train them up the rafters. They succeed best partly potbound and give large quantities of flowers. Verbenas bloom well early in spring, if the seed is started in January, and they are splendid for bouquet work. C. W.

Edward Tracey, of the Rosery; William C. Gloeckner, of Capitol Hill; Henry Schrade & Son, of Saratoga, N. Y.; William Hotaling, of Amsterdam, N. Y., represented the Capitol district at the F. T. Fred A. Danker was kept at home by a patroness who insisted on personal attention to the decorations for her wedding. "How could it have been otherwise when our slogan is 'Service'?" inquired Mr. Danker. "Much as I should have enjoyed attending the gathering at Baltimore, the report as given in The Review will be doubly interesting to me," continued he.

fuses to come in with us, stating that he has the authorized directory and gets a share of the business by making use of it. A local shoe dealer posted a sign which read, 'Don't say it with flowers; say it with shoes instead; they last longer.' We worked a bluff on him and the sign was put away. Our stock is up to our usual standard, a result of careful cultivation. Whoever sent out Sunglow did a fine thing for the trade; it is our best chrysanthemum and the plants are five feet tall, sturdy and clean, with every bloom perfect. A bench of pompon Source d'Or is well named, for it is a gold mine for Thanksgiving day, and we have orders booked for the whole crop. Rose Columbia is a favorite. A fine presentation basket of it was noted in the window of a leading store; it had been there for several days and was still fresh. Cattleya labiata has also done well, never losing the sale of a flower. Mrs. Thayer believes in team work."

NEW ROSES AT BAGATELLE.

A supplementary meeting of the jury to judge the new roses at the Bagatelle gardens, Bois de Boulogne, Paris, which had been called in consequence of the bad weather prevailing on the date of the original meeting in June, was held September 11. The president of the jury was M. Rebeillard, and the other members were MM. Pernet-Ducher, Cochet-Cochet, H. Gravereaux, Nonin, Turbat, Lévêque, etc., besides local notables, among whom were MM. Malherbe and Garnier; the inspector general of architecture, M. L. Bonnier; and also two foreign specialists, M. Looymans, of Holland, and Senor Rubio, of Barcelona, Spain. M. the visitors over the rosery and gave them information as to the behavior during their flowering period of the various roses entered in the competition.

The jury confirmed the award of the gold medal to the Dutch rose, Elvira Aramayo, which is remarkable for its curious new color—Indian red—and for its continuous and abundant flowering. Another gold medal was awarded to a new rose, Toison d'Or, of yellow color, raised by M. Pernet-Ducher, of Lyons. Mme. Alexandre Dreux, also yellow, but of a lighter color than the last, almost approaching citron, which does not fade in the sun, raised by Soupert et Notting, Luxembourg, was awarded a first-class certificate. Other certificates were awarded to the deep yellow rose, Souvenir de H. A. Verschuren, raised by the Dutch grower of that name, and to Jules Tabart, a salmon-pink variety sent by M. Barbier, of Orleans. A special certificate was awarded to a new and extremely interesting climbing rose of the hybrid tea section, Vicomtesse du Fou. It is vigorous, produces fine, large foliage, and yields throughout the whole season fairly large, light, fragrant flowers of a pretty metallic pink, with a touch of yellow. This variety was raised by a young workman employed on a private estate in the Doubs, M. Sauvageot. The jury also noticed the rose, Independence Day, a British-raised variety, and especially a variety from Lyons, named Reverend W. Williamson, coral red, transfused with orange—a Pernetiana hybrid. They further took particular notice of a lovely white rose, bearing a name much beloved in France, Regina de Alvear. Three other interesting roses should be mentioned, viz., Lady Elphinstone, Ariel and Vanity Fair. The varieties Dental, Commandant Lequerré and Maman Dental did not display their charms to advantage, being intended for more southerly climes.

Among roses which have lately arrived at Bagatelle for inclusion in the next competition is a new variety from M. Pernet-Ducher, named Président Chérioux, a Pernetiana hybrid of bright salmon-pink color. Alex. Dickson & Sons have sent two red roses, Crimson Hawlmark—a development of their previous varieties, Red Letter Day and K. of K.—and Earl Haig, the latter a departure from the light, almost single style of the ones previously mentioned, being large and full. The bad weather prevailing made it impossible to judge Stock moved well last week and prices advanced a little on fancy grades. The cool weather during the week stimulated business greatly in all lines; old stock cleared every day. The big demand is for mums, which are limited; there were some extra fine blooms last week from outside. Advance orders cleared them daily. Since the cool weather set in, roses have shown improvement in color, stem and foliage. Among the fancies noted last week were Premier, Columbia, Ophelia and Butterfly. White Killarney had the big call all last week. Carnations are showing daily improvement in quality and the supply is equal to the demand. There was a large supply of dahlias last week, as the light frost did not kill them off, as expected. Valley had a big demand all the week and Easter lilies sold well. A few violets are coming in, but there is little demand. Cosmos are in large supply; there are more than the demand can consume. Orchids just

Florists' Club Meeting.

The October meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club was held Thursday afternoon, October 12, in Kirkwood, Mo., at the greenhouse establishment of Philip Goebel, Jr. There was a large and enthusiastic attendance, numbering eighty members. The newly elected officers presided for the first time. President Frank A. Windler opened the meeting. All officers were present. J. J. Bentzen, chairman of the trustees, reported that the next meeting of the club will take place November 9. This meeting will be held in the Coliseum building.

F. J. Fillmore, chairman of the resolutions committee, presented resolutions on the deaths of William F. Thomas, S. A. Leyser and Adolph Brix. On motion, the resolutions were accepted as read. A letter was read from Chairman J. F. Ammann of the St. Louis Flower Association; regarding this the holding of a banquet for the visiting florists during show week and the offering of a special prize for the show were discussed. It was decided

Applications for membership were presented by Ernest Mackle, Edward H. Harvey, Erwin Dotzmann, William A. Figge and Otto Gokenbach. The chair appointed a committee to report on the applicants at the next meeting. The committee on the applications of Herbert Amling and Andrew Meyer, Jr., reported favorably and these were elected to membership. souri came up for discussion and the name of D. S. Geddis was voted upon for such a recommendation.

Fifty cents in fines was collected from members failing to wear a flower during the meeting. The monthly drawing for a year's dues resulted in the winning of the first prize by Paul T. Heil and the second by Richard Hassell, but both were absent and could not claim the prizes. Charles F. Hatfield, secretary of the St. Louis convention and publicity bureau, gave a most enjoyable talk, in which he promised to interest the big business concerns in the flower show.

A rising vote of thanks was extended Mr. Goebel for the afternoon's entertainment. The members were then invited to partake of refreshments and cigars. After this a tour was made through the big range of glass, in which plants of mums and carnations were seen, all in fine shape for producing a large season's cut.

erally observed here and created a considerable demand for cut flowers. Windler's Flowers had the decorations of the statute of Columbus in Tower Grove park.

V. J. Gorly, Fred C. Weber and J. F. Ammann arrived home October 14 from the F. T. D. meeting and reported a fine, profitable week spent in Baltimore.

The opening of the west end store of Young's the Florist, Inc., October 14, showed one of the most attractive florists' establishments in that part of the city. The large show windows on Taylor avenue and those on Delmar street, filled with choice plants and cut stock, attracted many during the day. One of the features is the lighting system. The store is in charge of Edward H. Harvey, who designed all of the interior and personally supervised the work.

Edwin Niebling, of the Bergstermann Floral Co., celebrated his eighth wedding anniversary October 8, with friends at his home, 3534 Nebraska avenue.

The local trade was much excited when the news came through The Review that the 1923 F. T. D. meeting would be held in St. Louis and also that Fred C. Weber had the honor of being elected vice-president of the association.

The A. W. Gumz Wholesale Floral Co. had a busy week in the plant department with shipping orders. Mr. Gumz is much elated with the success of the plant department.

Philip Goebel, Jr., who entertained the club members October 12, celebrated the occasion of being elected to membership at an October meeting nine years ago.

The Hotel Chase Floral Shop, under the management of Julius E. Schaeffer, Inc., and in charge of Miss Virginia Mussey, reports a splendid trade since the opening of the store. A new Dodge delivery car was installed last week.

William H. Kruse, the Arsenal street florist, has several large wedding and social affairs booked for this month. This will keep his force busy right up to show week.

Leroy Smith and Henry Blixen, of Edwardsville, Ill.; W. H. Ahrens, O'Fallon, Ill.; M. F. Widmer, Highland, Ill.; and Edwin Denker, St. Charles, Mo., spent October 12 in the city attending the Florists' Club meeting.

The final premium list of the fall flower show will be mailed out this week. Anyone who has been overlooked should apply to J. J. Beneke, secretary, who has opened his offices on the second floor of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Market, 1316 Pine street.

The remains of the late Adolph Brix, who died six weeks ago in Czecho-Slovakia, arrived in St. Louis October 13. The funeral took place October 15 from the chapel, 1936 St. Louis avenue. Mr. Brix was head of the A. Brix Floral Co. The honorary pallbearers were the heads of the eight wholesale cut flower markets. The members of the Florists' Club attended. The chapel was filled with many beautiful floral emblems from his many friends.

Business for the first half of October has shown an increase over the same period of a year ago, and prospects are good for a record-breaking fall and winter trade. With the coming of cooler weather there has been a marked improvement in the quality of stock. The first mums have arrived and are finding a ready demand. The quality and supply of roses is fair. Carnations are getting larger and more plentiful as the weather becomes cooler. Dahlias are still an important factor and are being cut in large quantities. These, of of years a porter and chauffeur at Baum's Home of Flowers, died Thursday, October 5. While helping to clear away some boxes and rubbish that had accumulated in the basement of the store Tuesday, October 3, he stepped on a small nail, which pierced the sole of his foot and caused it to bleed slightly, but did not seem to hurt him much and he continued about his work the remainder of the afternoon and Wednesday. Thursday morning he came to the store rather late, complaining that his foot pained him, and was immediately sent to a doctor. The doctor dressed his foot and administered an anti-tetanus vaccine. He immediately left the doctor's office and dropped dead as he reached the street. Doctors were uncertain as to the cause of his death, as he was unusually strong and apparently in the best of health.

The second annual Sewickley dahlia show, held September 27 to 29, at Sewickley, Pa., under the auspices of the Garden Club of Allegheny County and the Sewickley Horticultural Society, was a pronounced success, from both financial and æsthetic points of view. Most delightful weather was enjoyed during the entire period of the show.

Certainly, this year Sewickley staged a show that would have done credit to a much larger city. From the time the doors were opened until the closing hour, more than 3,000 people visited the show. More than 172 paid admissions of $1 were taken in the first three hours of the show.

This was a publicity-built show. The coöperation of the local daily papers was a most encouraging feature of the publicity campaign and few people who had the morning paper on the breakfast table failed to get the dahlia show served as an extra. Slides of cut dahlias were made and thrown on the screen of the moving picture houses in several towns. The trolley cars passing through neighboring towns all carried big posters featuring the show. Store windows, both in Sewickley and Pittsburgh, were decorated with vases of dahlias, and cards announced the dates of the show.

In addition to the exhaustive publicity campaign, the whole-hearted cooperation and team work of the committees representing the two organizations under whose auspices the show was held and the conscientious discharge of assignments of the various subcommittees, the Sewickley gardeners deserve much credit for their untiring efforts and enthusiasm.

Upon entering Guild hall, where the show was held, a full view of the exhibition could be obtained at a glance. Facing the door was a group by W. Thompson, Jr., gardener for Mrs. William Snyder, arranged with a mirror on the floor to represent a pool. Beyond this was a group by M. Curran, gardener for Mrs. E. M. Horne, arranged in a fountain effect; here Judge Marean dahlias predominated. This group won first place in its own class, as well as a cup for the most meritorious display in the whole show. In the center of the hall was a large group of ferns and tropical plants. Just beyond, looking from the entrance, was a group by Richard Boxel, gardener for W. W. Willock; this exhibit was composed of dahlias grown in tubs and pots. There were many other exhibits staged by amateurs.

Among the professionals winning awards were M. Curran, gardener for Mrs. E. M. Horne; A. E. Bonsey, gardener for J. F. Byers; H. Baumgartel, gardener for H. N. Voorhees; John Barnet, gardener for Mrs. J. D. Lyon; H. Gibson, gardener for Mrs. E. A. Woods; William Thompson, gardener for Mrs. W. P. Snyder; Walter Hall, gardener for Mrs. G. H. Singer; A. E. Bonsey, gardener for Mrs. J. F. Byers; James Murphy, gardener for H. L. Mason; A. Davidson, gardener for Mrs. H. R. Rea.

Firms who awarded prizes for the show were Beckert's Seed Store, Pittsburgh; C. H. Totty Co., Madison, N. J.; W. W. Hunt Co., New York; H. A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia; Stumpp & Walter Co., New York; R. & J. Farquhar Co., Boston; John Scheepers, Inc., New York; W. E. Experiment to Find Rose Oil.

An experiment of interest to florists was performed by the sophomores in chemistry at the college of engineering of the Newark Technical school. They manufactured rose water from several pounds of rose leaves furnished for the purpose by the growers, Bobbink & Atkins, of Rutherford, N. J. The experiment was partly as a laboratory demonstration of the power of a volume of steam to take up with it less volatile bodies, and partly to answer definitely the frequent questions about the practical value of rose blooms in this country.

For some time the firm of Bobbink & Atkins had wondered whether roses grown in this vicinity would give rose oil. In their field culture thousands of blooms go to waste every season, and the members of the firm were curious to know whether this by-product had any commercial value.

The Technical School students, in their experiment, used the same method that is used commercially, though, of course, on a much smaller scale. The petals, only, were put in a closed vessel and live steam was turned on from the bottom. The steam that issued from the top was then condensed. A fair quality of rose water was produced, but no actual oil could be detected. In the roses best adapted for this purpose there is but one part of rose oil recovered from 5,000 to 6,000 parts of rose leaves used. It was therefore not surprising that hybrid tea and perpetual roses, grown principally for their form and color, failed to prove a source of valuable oil.

The best rose oil is made from the Bulgarian varieties. It was concluded after the above experiment that garden roses, even when grown by the acre, cannot become competitors of those varieties.

Various Notes.

Richard C. Yuill, who conducts a flower shop at 39 Belleville avenue, has purchased the John Brockie homestead, at 327 Belleville avenue. Mr. Yuill will use the old homestead as a residence.

The $25 silver cup offered at the Greater Newark dahlia and flower show by F. Rynveld & Sons, Hillegom, Holland, was won by the J. J. Wilson Seed Co. The prize was awarded for the best bulb display.

The Market.

Business is picking up a little every day, due to the fact that outdoor stock is now of poor quality. Much of this stock is usable in funeral work, however. Dahlias, especially, are abundant, and have a good call. Considering everything, those with large crops under glass do not expect the real spurt in their business until a killing frost comes, and it seems to be holding off as long as possible.

A large crop of roses is in evidence, the quality of which is excellent for this season of the year. The prices are reasonable, but it is impossible to move them all at this time. Dunlop, Columbia and Butterfly at $4 to $12 have the big call, there being little demand for red or white.

Carnations are arriving in good shape, and although the stems are still too short for them to be used as cut flowers, there is enough funeral work to take care of the offerings, prices being $2 to $4 per hundred. Mums are arriving in large quantities and find a good demand. Pompons and spray mums are still scarce and all offered move rapidly. Gladioli are about gone and what few are left are easily disposed of at good prices.

Pot plant sales are picking up. Ferns, in Boston and Whitmanii, Asparagus Sprengeri and A. plumosus, with various foliage plants, are the chief offerings. A few Primula obeonica and Begonia Chatelaine are about the only blooming plants in evidence. However, potted mums and pompons will be ready for market next week.

Various Notes.

Emil Lund reports a good crop of carnations now coming on, with plenty of orders to take care of all he has.

Miss Huth, of the Flower Shop, at Ogden, staged a special rose sale Saturday, October 14.

The Miller Floral Co., at Farmington, Utah, has a fine house of mums and pompons. The firm will cut the first blooms next week.

Al. Alt, of the Huddart Floral Co., is still on the coast. G. J. B.

The thanks of the society went to John Forbes for his exhibits of three heads of lettuce. Thanks went also to Frank Petroccia for exhibiting a vase of dahlias. The managers of the dahlia show received a hearty vote of thanks and were congratulated on the splendid way they handled the show. Messrs. Everitt, Cook and McCarthy were given a vote of thanks for their part in making the show a success. Mrs. George D. Pratt was sent a letter of thanks for getting Professor Fairchild to come and lecture before the society.

John T. Johnston and Jack Kelly were congratulated on the exhibits they staged on the second day of the show. Exhibits for the November meeting will be three white, three pink and three yellow mums. A table decoration of mums will be special for assistant gardeners, all tables to be low. The managers of the mum show will be Joseph Adler and John Forbes.

try, Worcester has one more flower shop, which is managed by the Quarry Floral Co.; it was opened for business October 7.

Flowers are not plentiful at this time, but the demand for them is brisk. The dry spell, extending over a period of three weeks, has been broken, as rain in sufficient quantities fell recently. The drought, while it lasted, was so severe, together with the high temperature, that the lifting and shipping of nursery stock was curtailed.

The Worcester County Horticultural Society held its October fruit and vegetable show Friday, October 13. This was one of the largest events of the year, and many prizes were awarded.

The city florists are not attempting much in the way of window displays, the reason being that there is a scarcity of stock. E. A.

Dahlia Show at Harrisburg.

Dahlia blooms valued at $15 each and single specimen plants held at $25 and more were some of the features of the first annual dahlia show held at Harrisburg, Pa., by the garden section of the Society of Natural History Tuesday and Wednesday, October 3 and 4.

In all probability this was the largest dahlia exhibition ever held in central Pennsylvania. There were more than 200 entries, covering growers from Philadelphia to Altoona and from Williamsport to the Maryland line. Around 2,000 specimen blooms were shown, including some of the latest introductions, like Amun Ra, which was shown by C. L. Boak, a local grower.

Prof. J. B. S. Norton, of the University of Maryland, judged the display. Mr. Norton said that the quality of the blooms was exceptionally fine, fully equal to the display of the national society in New York city the previous week, and in some respects even excelling the blooms shown at that time.

A rather unusual sport canna was

HEAT FOR LILIUM GIGANTEUM.

Is it advisable to start Lilium giganteum on the hot side as soon as the bulbs are planted? B. G.—Ia.

Lilium longiflorum giganteum succeeds best if it is started warm. I have had the best success with it by starting it at 55 degrees and then advancing the heat to 60 degrees as soon as the tops show. Water must be applied sparingly until the pots are well filled with roots. C. W.

CUSCUTA, OR DODDER.

We have mailed you a specimen of a plant which is killing the plants in many of our flower beds in the cemetery. Do you know what this plant is? B. F. C.—Wis.

This is a species of cuscuta, or dodder, a member of the convolvulaceæ. These are parasitic plants. The seeds, which lie dormant over winter, germinate in the spring, and if suitable host plants are conveniently near, the parasite takes a strangle hold on them; then the roots of the parasite die and it subsists there-

REMOVING PUTTY.

We have a greenhouse which we wish to reglaze, but the old putty is exceedingly hard to get off. Do you know of anything which we can use to remove this old putty? K. B.—N. H.

The best way to remove hard putty from sashbars is to use a sharp chisel, but it is possible to soften the putty to some extent by painting it with kerosene. L. R. T.

MICHIGAN FLORISTS' SOCIETY.

The Michigan State Florists' Society is to hold its annual flower show and convention at Ann Arbor, November 10 and 11. Due to the inadvisability of holding this meeting at Grand Rapids, it was transferred to Ann Arbor at this late date.

The present plans call for a show to be held under the joint auspices of the state society and the Woman's League of the University of Michigan, an organization of girls of the university who are trying to raise funds for the erection of a suitable building to house their various activities. An admission charge is to be made and will revert to the

at a new low price. The last printing was sold out at $48.00 the set of 6 volumes—a very reasonable price considering war-time costs of printing. Now a new printing has been made and the publishers authorize The Review to give its readers the benefit of the saving made in recent competitive conditions in the book-making trades in the East. This means a new price of $40.00 per set for the CYCLOPEDIA—a saving of $8.00 per set.

REMEMBER—BAILEY'S STANDARD CYCLOPEDIA OF HORTICULTURE is in 6 large volumes, over 3,000 pages. It is authority in all matters of plant names and spellings. Besides the purely botanical matter one would expect to find in such a work, there are many hundreds of cultural articles, chapters on insects, diseases, remedies, etc.—a veritable horticultural library, all carefully and completely indexed.

The Market.

Business has been on the jump the last week, numerous weddings and a number of large funerals keeping the florists on the move. Roses are in good quantity and quality, although whites have been scarce. Carnations are coming along in greatly improved quality and the early cuts are in large quantity. Violets are bidders for favor and find ready sales for the few in market. The last of the outdoor asters are now being used for "fillers" in design work, but are of rather indifferent quality.

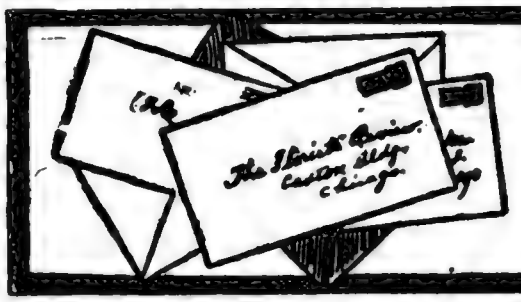
Dahlias arrive in large quantities and are useful in funeral work, but the frosts have begun to make their presence felt and the dahlia is on its last run for this season. The warm, muggy weather of the last ten days has played havoc with the early chrysanthemum crops.

Various Notes.

Miss Annie Peckham, of Carpenter street, has returned from a recent automobile trip over the Mohawk trail and through the Berkshires.

John Johnston, of Johnston Bros. was a business visitor in Boston last week.

Walter Moon, East Greenwich, reports a large booking for landscape work this fall.



The Stillman Flower Store had the decorations for the Buffum-Cottrell wedding, at Westerly, last week; dahlias were used in abundance.

William A. Bowers, Inc., has leased from Fred O. Gardiner the premises at 25 Maiden lane, for seven years and five months.

The Budlong Rose Co., of Auburn, is erecting a large addition to its ice house, on Reservoir avenue.

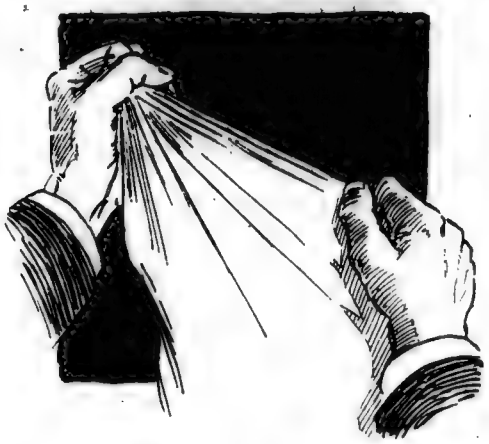
BOSTON.

The Market.



Flowers continue in rather short supply and available supplies are cleaned up without much trouble. For three days last week we had rain and dark skies, which restricted buying at both wholesale and retail, but since that time clear skies have stimulated business. Chrysanthemums are not yet sufficiently abundant to affect the market; in fact, the supply so far has been surprisingly small and growers who have had a good-sized batch of early sorts have realized excellent prices. Oconto, Frost, Polly Rose, Unaka and a few other varieties are coming in. There are comparatively few yellows and white is the color most in evidence.

Pompons are arriving in small quantities and readily sell at 75 cents and $1 per small bunch; many more could be sold. Violets, so far, are rather small and pale-colored. Roses are less abundant and prices have stiffened considerably for short and medium grades. There is only a small supply of fancies coming in, but with 9-inch stems realizing $10 and $12 per hundred, there would seem to be more money in the shorter grades. There are some good American Beauties, and Crusader seems to head the red varieties. Carnations remain at about last week's prices.

Sweet peas are fairly abundant for so early in the season. Lilies are of good quality and prices are improved. Asters continue to come in. The quality is inferior, but prices run as high as $3 and $4 per hundred for ordinary-looking flowers. There are still some gladioli, but the quality is poor. Cosmos and other outdoor flowers are evidently nearing the end. A frost October 14 finished off many more of the lingering dahlias, although in sheltered locations they are still fresh. A rather larger supply of bouvardia is coming in and sells at $1 and $2 per bunch. Cattleyas are quite abundant and there is a good supply of valley. Some nice nerines are also available, but gardenias are scarce.

In the way of pot plants chrysanthemums, begonias and cyclamens are the only flowering plants seen.

Various Notes.

The corn borer damage has been much extended this season and greenhouse, as well as outdoor, crops have suffered. Chrysanthemums valued at several thousand dollars were ruined in one Arlington establishment and many plants hitherto considered immune have been attacked. Celery in some sections was almost ruined. This is one of the most important of Boston's vegetable crops. An inspection of the devastated area was made October 10 by government and other officials, including Dr. F. W. Felt, state entomologist of New York; W. R. Walton, of the national Department of Agriculture; Dr. J. G. Atwood, of the New York bureau of markets; Prof. W. C. O'Kane, New Hampshire state entomologist; Dr. W. F. Britton, Connecticut state entomologist; Dr. H. T. Fernald, Massachusetts Agricultural College; Commissioner A. W. Gilbert, of Massachusetts, and others. Inspection made was late in the season, but clearly showed ravages to be far worse than in 1921. Florists have every cause to be alarmed, as dahlias, gladioli, asters, chrysanthemums and other important crops are badly attacked and in some cases almost ruined this season. Additional appropriations from state and national governments will be sought to help to control the pest.

Work on alterations at the new flower market have started and will be rushed with all possible speed in an effort to have it in readiness for flower selling purposes early in January. The choice of the Cyclorama building site continues to find nearly universal favor.

While not much has been heard of the New England Florists' Alliance of late, it has taken on a new lease of life, in that it is increasing its membership and is looking forward to a successful fall and winter business in all branches of the trade. The alliance, through the board of directors, has started to do some constructive advertising. Sketches and samples prepared by Major O'Keefe have been favorably passed on by the leading Boston florists as a starter in this important work. The organization will continue to function as a medium for the retailer and grower and to iron out any troubles which may crop up from time to time. Advertising, both local and national, is a stimulant for any business and more particularly that of the florists. All local retailers and growers should join the alliance and give it its proper place on the map. George C. Mayse has been secretary of the alliance since the resignation of Eugene M. Naukam.

Recent callers included John C. Wister, secretary of the American Rose Society, Philadelphia; P. M. Koster, the New Jersey nurseryman; Walter Mott, the always welcome representative of Hammond's Paint & Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y., and W. E. Cahill, with Roman J. Irwin, New York.

At the next meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, October 24, Albert R. Jenks, proprietor of the Middlesex Fruit Farms, West Acton, Mass., will lecture on "Fruit Culture." There will be fine displays of seasonable fruits and flowers. November 21 the club will hold an orchid night, and poultry fanciers will have the floor December 19.

T. F. Galvin, Jr., has a large and well equipped store in the business section on Devonshire street and a high-grade class of stock is carried always. Few Boston firms secure larger funeral and decoration orders than this comparatively young, but rapidly rising firm.

A beautiful central feature in one of Penn's big store windows this week is a splendidly grown and heavily flowered specimen of the English winter-flowering begonia, Emily Clibran, four feet in diameter, yet barely a year old, from a leaf cutting. Plants of this quality are rarely seen in retail stores and naturally elicit numerous words of praise.

The store of Wax Bros., on Temple place, is quite transformed now that the alterations are completed. The windows are deeper than in any other retail flower store in Boston and the big mirrors at the back enhance the size a great deal. "Fall business is good," says Martin Wax.

George Hetzel, formerly with S. J. Goddard, Framingham, and now foreman for C. B. Johnson, Woburn, had an addition of twins to his family, October 9. This makes four sons and four daughters.

The demise of Mrs. George H. Pieper, South Boston retailer, is noted on the obituary page of this issue.

Andrew Christensen has his two new greenhouses, at Reading, well stocked. These houses are 50x209. One is devoted to carnations, the other to miscellaneous stock, such as chrysanthemums, stevias, snapdragons, sweet peas and bedding plants, largely to meet a growing local trade. Many thousands of automobiles pass the greenhouses daily.

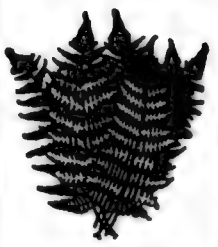
pleted, and consider it a "dandy." Sweet peas will be the first crop it will produce. They are growing 75,000 freesias this season and hope to get a good-sized batch in for Christmas. One large house of sweet peas will be in good crop in December. Other houses are devoted to chrysanthemums, two being filled with pompons.



Thomas Curley, the well known West Medford retailer, is proud over the birth of a baby girl, October 8.

The stockholders in the new wholesale flower market are planning to hold a dinner and business meeting for the election of officers and transaction of other business, October 28.

Peirce Bros., of Waltham, are making great efforts to complete work on their new mammoth and up-to-date boiler room and big oil heaters before cold weather sets in. Both Edward and William Peirce are working long hours to get the installation completed.

At the store of the R. & J. Farquhar Co., on South Market street, is to be found a fine selection of foliage and flowering plants. Evergreens for window boxes, etc., are also featured. Dutch bulb business is now quite active.

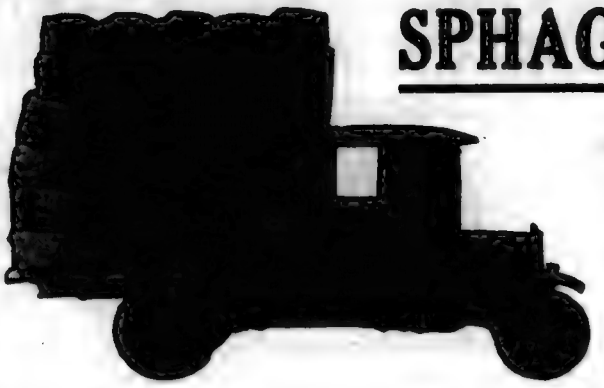
Wild Smilax, $7.50 per case

THE E. F. WINTERSON CO., 166 N. WABASH AVENUE Chicago, Ill.
Phone Central 6004. Established 1893



At the Anderson Greenhouses, on Warren street, Arlington, corn borers have damaged or destroyed chrysanthemums to the extent of over $7,000; stalks are completely riddled with them. The vermin came from infested weeds, which grew thickly outside the greenhouses. The vermin crawled up the glass roofs, Mr. Anderson states, slid in between the panes of glass and then spun webs in which they covered themselves in the luxuriant chrysanthemum plants. Cleaning up the weeds earlier in the season would not have been costly and would probably have saved the heavy loss under glass. Some large nearby celery growers estimate that over thirty per cent of their extensive plantings are affected. If all weeds and coarse vegetation are burned up before May each year, damage from corn borers can be much minimized.

The coal situation continues to improve and soft coal prices show a further decline. Growers are not now worrying about their winter's fuel supply, as they did a few weeks ago. Numerous coal cargoes continue to come from Great Britain. W. N. C.

E. E. Randall is starting a nursery at Reading, Mass., and not at Reading, Pa., as recently reported.

Gleanings from Galvin's.

Weddings have been numerous and the demand for decorations has revived at the stores of Thos. F. Calvin, Inc. Among the decorating contracts for the week were the Holland, Knowlan, Hall, Webster, Litchfield, Anderson and Cook weddings, all of which have helped the volume materially. The new store of the firm, at Copley square, has been restocked with some wonderful cibotiums, which display themselves particularly well in this shop. Palms have been most unsatisfactory for decoration in this store, and cibotiums are much better adapted to the architecture. This new location has developed wonderfully, being adja-

Use It With Flowers!

The human mind has been incapable of adequately describing the sweetness, purity and beauty of flowers,—

And for reason of its exquisite texture, symmetry and beauty the "Royal Fern" creates the ideal background for flowers and adds marvelously to their attractiveness and charm.

FLOWERS! They sprang forth when Eternity had its foundation; sprang forth with light, with joy and harmony, and their splendor fills space with indescribable loveliness.

cent to the social centers and on a busy thoroughfare. This business has been extended to capacity for two additional months, the return therefrom having justified the change of location and the expense of a high-class store.

Among the personnel, we find three associates on sick leave. Mrs. C. A. Sullivan, chief accountant, has suffered a slight operation on her foot, while Mr. Burke and Mr. Dominic have been absent with slight illness. John McDonough has returned with his family to the city from summering at Hough's Neck, all having benefited by their long vacationing and open-air life.

Further addition to the delivery service of the firm has been effected by the purchase of a new Reo truck, which will be out of the paint shop in a few days, and will become an able partner to the present well equipped complement.

Because of the continued large death list, funeral work has been in good demand, particularly of the better grades. Continued demonstration has brought knowledge of the many pleasing innovations for this service, which has marked the progress of the firm. In varied arrangements, we find baskets, sprays, pillows, wreaths and mantles in graceful appeal for delicate occasions. As a family token, the casket mantle is becoming more in vogue, the firm last week having supplied them for several prominent funerals, among which were the Lawrence, Clements, Woodbury, Butler and Hudson funerals.

The new rose, Commonwealth, has become a pronounced favorite, and if the present quality, strength and beauty are maintained, it will, no doubt, be a splendid addition to the rose family.

Gentlemen: We got one of your machines early in December of last year, and made on it every kind of wreathing and festooning. We found it especially satisfactory in making large holly wreaths on heavy wire. Your machine is all right. We are, Yours very truly,

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

An unusual amount of good funeral work and a drop in the temperature, making for indoor entertainments, has given a fillip to business and the markets have been well cleaned up. Mums are improving, the local-grown stock being miles ahead of the flowers shipped in from the north. As usual after a hot season, the incurved types are especially good, and probably never in the history of the business here have there been such splendid blooms of Bonnaffon, White and Pink Chieftain and similar varieties.

Roses are much better since the cool spell, and from now on carnations will also improve. Dahlias are at their best. Gladioli are scarce, but the quality of those coming in is of the best. Zinnias are good. Orchids are on the scarce side, some good Cattleya labiata being the principal offering. Valley, gardenias and sweet peas are about equal to the demand.

Greens in most cases are good and plentiful, but there is a scarcity of maidenhair some days.

Various Notes.

A more or less hurried trip through the Sawtelle place of W. Armacost & Co. shows everything in splendid form; shipping of cyclamens is going on. The earlier 4-inch and 6-inch cyclamens are coming into full bloom rapidly, but the larger sizes have more growing to do. The houses are a magnificent sight now, the beautiful foliage being as attractive as the flowers. All sizes are spaced well, so that, in spite of the many thousands grown, there is not the slightest crowding. In the frames outside other thousands are coming on to fill the place of the plants shipped out of the houses. The rose range shows good prospects for a heavy fall and Christmas cut. Russell is particularly good. The orchid department is in splendid order now, and both Mr. Armacost and Mr. Bracey, the orchid grower here, are expecting a large consignment of hybrids from England. About 1,500 plants are included in the shipment and all are of the rarest and newest hybrids. Although it is too early to say much about them, Mr. Bracey has already a number of seedlings in the earlier stages raised from his own crosses here, and their progress and subsequent flowering will be of great interest.

Miss Rose Lathrop, who so ably manages the Hamburger store's florists' department, has purchased a new Studebaker and is quite pleased with it. She reports business as good.

At the store of S. Murata & Co. last week some of the most wonderful mums ever seen in this market were shown. The Bonnaffon and Chieftain were especially good, but all kinds are in first-class order. Heavy shipments are going out daily.

M. Tefilossy, of the Pine Street Nursery, Inglewood, is going largely into the fertilizer business, making his own mixtures. He reports the demand good.

Felix Rosaia, of Seattle, and F. Nieman, of the Park Floral Co., Denver, Colo., were visitors last week. Mr. Nieman has paid a visit to Catalina.

H. R. Amling and Harry Cohn are on a trip to San Francisco this week, driving both ways and looking over conditions en route. At the Sawtelle place gladiolus planting is being rapidly pushed.

Albert Goldenson says that things are rapidly coming his way at Sixth street.

Strawflowers are in big demand at the store of Westrem-Garland Florists, according to R. Garland. Their location on Hill street is good for the tourist trade.

F. Gerkin, of the Rosedale Florist, is bringing in choice plumosus.

One of the large new greenhouses, 36x220, at the H. N. Gage place at Montebello, is finished and filled with ferns. The other of the same size is to be planted to maidenhair ferns and Cecile Brunner roses, as soon as it is finished. Mr. Gage has purchased an additional twenty-six acres across the hills at El Monte, a good deal of the land lying along the new boulevard. Large consignments of Dutch bulbs are coming in and these will be planted here.

S. R. Lundy, formerly of Denver, Colo., who has been in the city for a while, has decided to open at 1147 Fifth street, San Diego. His store is well located and will be known as Lundy's Home of Flowers. No one who knows Mr. Lundy will doubt for a moment that he will succeed, as he is an experienced storeman, always anxious to give his patrons of the best, while his wide circle of friends and business associates all over the United States will insure him a big share of out-of-town business. Before opening November 1, Mr. Lundy is having a new window put in, changing the front entirely, while, inside the store, mirrors will be placed on all the walls to enhance and lighten up the rooms.

Frank Lichtenberg, C. E. Gutting and his brother, Edward, are on a hunting trip up Bishop way.

Roy F. Wilcox returned last week from his vacation at Arrowhead lake. He looks bronzed and well, and he says that he is feeling much better for the change. Mr. Wilcox said that the fishing was fairly good. H. R. R.

week, made some of the chrysanthemums wet, but this did not prevent anyone from having plenty of dry flowers for shipping purposes. The last of the showers came Tuesday morning, October 10, and then the weather became sunny. Violets were more plentiful, owing to the rain, and their quality was good. One firm, however, had its violets in good shape for shipping last week. The market was abundantly supplied with good chrysanthemums, the shipping varieties, such as Turners, being plentiful and in splendid shape. There were also plenty of pompon mums and many small varieties, in rich autumn coloring of yellows, bronzes and henna shades. Roses were more plentiful and their quality was good. There were plenty of gardenias for all demands and orchids were plentiful.

Various Notes.

Thousands of people from San Francisco and the bay cities are visiting the California industries exposition at the Civic auditorium, given for the industrial development of California. There are over 400 manufactured products at the exposition, in addition to many entertainment and educational features. Much of the credit for this second annual exhibit, as well as for the first, is due to Supervisor Angelo J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co.

The Suzanne Floral Co. has moved from Mason street, near O'Farrell street, to 19 Mason street. In addition to being larger and more convenient, the new store is close to Market street, in a busy section of the city, and it is next door to the new site of one of the best known cafeterias in San Francisco. The new store has three windows, and is large and lofty inside, being finished with paneled wood and tiled effects. The lighting arrangement is so placed as to give the appearance of daylight. The exterior of the store is finished in cream-colored stucco. Leon Habit and Leon Mathison are the proprietors of the store. They have a 5-year lease at their new location.

Mrs. Merle Hiam, store manager for the St. Francis Hotel Flower Shop, of which Julius Eppstein is the proprietor, has now sufficiently recovered from her recent serious illness to be able to leave the hospital. Mrs. Hiam is at home, convalescing to the satisfaction of her many friends.

Charles Brown, of Brown & Kennedy, is visiting Los Angeles for a week's trip. Mr. Brown is the president of the San Francisco Coöperative Flower Market.

It is understood that P. V. Matraia, of the Art Floral Co., took over the shipping and consigning of the San Francisco Coöperative Flower Market October 15.

Refrigerator car days mark strenuous times for most of the San Francisco wholesalers. Beginning work before dawn on these five days, the employees of these firms are busy until the car is ready to leave. Speaking of this, J. A. Axell said that the only problem, as far as his firm is concerned, is to find sufficient help to handle the rush business. Men who know the business are practically unobtainable and green men are of little practical use. "We've put on all the extra help we could get of the kind we want," said Mr. Axell. "We have got our orders out by working on the rush for fifteen hours, starting at 6 a. m. There is plenty of good stock and plenty of business," continued he.

The same account of working to capacity was told by P. D. Mortensen, manager of the E. W. McLellan Co., on Bush street. On refrigerator car days, no one around the place cares to slacken his activity, for it is only by working to capacity that all the mums can be got off. This firm has first-class roses arriving in constantly increasing quantities. E. W. McLellan, who has been touring the country, is expected here toward the end of the month.

Enomoto & Co. have plenty of varieties of chrysanthemums, especially some exceptionally fine Turners. They are handling many varieties of pompon mums and many of the smaller varieties which are so popular for table and other decorations. S. Enomoto stated that everything is in readiness for handling the All Saints' day orders of the firm.

Domoto Bros. report that, generally speaking, things are looking good. They are handling a number of chrysanthemums and their roses are now arriving. There is a large demand for strawflowers and the firm is drying all the well known varieties.

Darbee's made the initial shipment of violets October 11. It was an exciting event, for Mrs. Darbee is a successful grower, and the firm takes great pride in its violets. Darbee's has fully participated in the rush of chrysanthemum shipping.

The United Flower & Supply Co. is, as usual at this season, busy with its strawflowers. Speaking of this, T. Oishi, of the firm, said: "I never saw the California crop of strawflowers so good as it is this year. The trade in this line is constantly increasing."

F. C. Jaeger & Son say that the chrysanthemum business, both wholesale and retail, is exceptionally good this year. The art flower basket trade has picked up to such an extent that the Jaegers have laid in a large stock from the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia., and from the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia. The Jaegers believe that they now have one of the best basket lines at San Francisco. They continue to feature gift baskets of flowers.

Back from a tour through Amador and Calaveras counties, N. Canavero, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is at work, with his foot in such good shape that he would like to play football. He was injured by a submerged piece of glass while bathing at the beach some two months ago.

H. Hayashi, of H. Hayashi & Co., Oakland, was at San Francisco, and stated that he has four houses of poinsettias, which are coming along in good shape for Christmas. He also has four houses of cyclamens and ferns.

A novel and beautiful wedding was staged by M. S. Marcus, chief decorator for Albert O. Stein, when Miss Cambron was married in the garden of her home. The entire back garden was covered with a marquee, the shrubs being used as a background, banked with chrysanthemums in buried vases. Ropes of wild lemon leaves were festooned on the rafters of the marquee. The altar at the end of the garden was in the Italian style, with Florentine vases, and was decorated with African marigolds and delphiniums in gold and blue shades. The aisle was outlined in large, bright-hued baskets on stands, with festoons of marigolds between them. The six bridesmaids carried bouquets of baby zinnias and dark blue delphiniums with blue velvet ribbons and the bride's bouquet was of gardenias and white orchids.

The Charles C. Navlet Co. is carrying on a local advertising campaign in the San Francisco newspapers, with its Holland bulbs as a feature, and is meeting with much success.

Joseph's is busy with weddings, six of which were booked last week. Some attractive baskets, designed by George Wagner for window display purposes, are now being used by this firm. They were made to order by the Burlington Willow Ware Shops through its representative, Robert Newcomb.

Shellgrain & Ritter are finding a ready market for their early violet boutonnieres and corsage bouquets. In some of these little bouquets gardenias are combined with violets.

The McLaughlin Flower Store is featuring bon voyage baskets and boxes of fruit, Italian chocolate, etc., in addition to cut flowers, a gardenia boutonniere and an orchid corsage bouquet.

A large quantity of funeral work, as well as many cut flower orders, caused Podesta & Baldocchi to be exceedingly busy last week. M. M.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Dahlias continue to be a large feature in many of the flower stores, and gladioli and asters are still of fair quality. A few violets have made their appearance. Bouvardia is coming in from several growers and is in good demand. Carnations and roses continue to improve in quality and the supply of these is good. Consignments of California mums are arriving in large quantities and are of fair quality. Home-grown mums are coming in from several growers and are in good demand. Many calls are coming in from out-of-town florists for stock, and by November 1 business will be considerably improved. Counter trade has been fair, with a light run of funeral work.

Various Notes.

The Rahn & Herbert Co. has been cutting some fine mums for the last week or so. This firm reports a good

CINCINNATI GROWERS MEET.

The regular meetings of the Cincinnati district of the National Flower Growers' Association have been held monthly, but, due to the fact that the secretary has been exceedingly busy, he has neglected to get out an article each month.

While we have taken in several new members since the last article, the matter which has taken up most of our time has been that of advertising. We feel that this is a serious proposition and, after considerable discussion and investigation, it has been agreed between the members of our association and the commission men of Cincinnati to deduct one-half of one per cent from the receipts of all growers shipping into the Cincinnati market before making returns on goods sold for their account. While we shall not be able to reach the grower who sells direct to the retail man or through the markets, we shall trust to their honesty to remit one-half of one per cent of all sales made through these channels.

Zvolanek's Winter Orchid-Flowering Sweet Pea Seed

Every packet of our Winter-Flowering Sweet Pea Seed must bear our Trade Mark. Do not accept any other as genuine.

ZVOLANEK'S NOVELTIES FOR 1922-23

The Best Blue Sweet Peas Ever Produced to Date

Zvolanek's Blue Sensation—A self of clearest blue. Similar to Zvolanek's Blue and twice as large. The best blue ever produced. Four flowers to a long stem; they hold their color to the very last.

Zvolanek's Blue Wonder—A large clear blue flower upon opening, but changes to a light violet as it ages. Slightly larger than the above.

Zvolanek's Blue Chief—A blue self which is slightly darker than Zvolanek's Blue Sensation, but in all other respects is the same.

Zvolanek's Comet—A large salmon on cream ground. A good bloomer and holds color very well. If well grown, majority of flowers produce four on a long stem and with double standards or wings—very large.

Price—¼ oz., $4.00.

Zvolanek's Pink—Practically the same as Zvolanek's Rose, but shorter grower. Color of more intense pink, which holds color to the very last.

Price—1 oz., $2.50; 4 oz., $8.00; 1 lb., $25.00.

Zvolanek's Rose—This is the very best commercial Sweet Pea ever produced to date. Every one who has ever tried it cannot say enough for it and wants it again in larger quantities. The flowers are of the most beautiful self-rose color, double the size of Mrs. Skach; holds its color to the last and is a free bloomer, also unexcelled for outdoors.

Price—1 oz., $2.00; 4 oz., $6.00; 1 lb., $20.00.

Zvolanek's Perfection—Dark pink or old rose of very largest size; similar to Zvolanek's Rose in shape and size. Holds color to last; short crop.

Price—1 oz., $2.00.

Zvolanek's Xmas Gem—Same color as Xmas Pink, only double the size. One of our 1919 introductions. Short crop.

Price—1 oz., $2.00.

White and Blush Colors

Zvolanek's White—The largest white-seeded white in existence; flowers are wide apart with nearly all fours; majority with double wings or standards. The very best commercial white to date.

Zvolanek's Swan—The very best black-seeded white; rather short grower, with very ruffled flowers. One of our 1920 introductions.

Ed. Zvolanek—Purest lavender, similar to Mrs. Chas. Zvolanek in color, but very large. A good bloomer in darkest winter. If well grown the majority of the flowers produce four to a long stem, with double wings or standards. This variety is a great improvement over all other lavenders. May revert to some extent, but we guarantee it about 90 per cent true.

Price—1 oz., $2.00; 4 oz., $6.00; 1 lb., $20.00.

These are the best commercial varieties and all of largest size. There are none better. Send for complete list.

Ant. C. Zvolanek & Sons

LOMPOC, CAL.

At the last meeting the growers decided to give a luncheon, for the purpose of getting all the florists together to discuss the advertising proposition more fully, October 18, at the store of the William Murphy Co.

Joseph H. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., who was present at our last meeting, extended an invitation to the florists to visit his range the latter part of this month; this was gladly accepted and we hope for a large crowd to make this trip.

The last meeting was held at the range of Edward H. Schwarz and our next meeting, which will be held Wednesday, November 1, will take place at the range of C. Alfred Murphy.

Joseph Imholte, Sec'y.

LANCASTER, PA.

Club Meeting.

The Lancaster County Florists' Club held its monthly meeting October 11, in the packing shed of Elmer J. Weaver. About fifty members were present. Roasted corn, bacon, "hot dogs," coffee and plenty of cider were enjoyed prior to the meeting. In the absence of Albert M. Herr, J. Wade Gayley was appointed secretary. One was elected to membership. A general discussion arose regarding the coming winter meetings of the club. A fine winter's program is being arranged.

Professor Wilde, of the Pennsylvania State College, was expected to be present to address the meeting, but he wired his inability to be present. After adjournment, a delightful social session was enjoyed. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Weaver for their hospitality.

Various Notes.

Prior to the florists' meeting, October 11, the greenhouses of Elmer J. Weaver were inspected. His roses are the specialty, with Pilgrim leading, followed by Premier and Columbia. A dozen plants of A. N. Pierson's new Commonwealth showed remarkable freedom of growth and the blooms, a deep, rich pink, were fine. This new variety promises to be a winner. A dozen plants of Claudius Pernet, that wonderful new yellow rose, show much vigor and are being watched closely.

At Charles M. Weaver's, extra fine blooms of sweet peas are being cut; these are on stems fifteen inches long. More than fifty new varieties from Burpee's will be seen in bloom at his place the coming season. Several houses of pompons here are par excellence.

October 15, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer J. Weaver entertained at dinner. Present were Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Thompson and family, Mr. and Mrs. James Brown, Jr., of Coatesville, and H. K. Rohrer.

At the place of R. C. Smallwood, fine carnations are being cut. Pink Delight here produces wonderful results and great quantities are grown. Matchless, Ward and Belle Washburn are standards. Thomas Joy and Laddie are being tested out carefully.

At the establishment of Fred Spinner, at Lititz, Pa., extra fine pompons are to be seen. Mr. Spinner has an enviable reputation for well grown pompons. Sunshine, Lillian Doty and White Doty are particularly well grown.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Alexander Forbes, Newark, N. J.; secretary, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THIRTY-NINE states have seed laws, many of which require that a statement showing purity of the seed be affixed to seed containers.

SOUTH AFRICA is beginning to produce important quantities of alfalfa seed, which is exported to this country, South America and other countries. It is mostly of the Provence type.

C. A. JUFFERMANS, who represents the Sassenheim firm of Juffermans & Co. in this country, was in Chicago last week. He finds a strong demand for Holland bulbs from those who failed to place their orders earlier.

SEEDSMAN AND CITIZEN.

The resignation of A. M. Eldridge as vice-president of the Henry Field Seed Co., and his subsequent departure from Shenandoah, Ia., where that company is located, meant the loss of a strong pillar, not only to the firm, but to the entire community as well. For in the twelve years that Mr. Eldridge resided in Shenandoah he was well known as a developer of the civic spirit as well as a seedsman.

Mr. Eldridge went to Shenandoah from Washington, Ia., his birthplace, and now he has returned to Washington to fill the position of secretary-treasurer of the Bruns Seed Co. At Shenandoah he held many places of honor. He was president of the Commercial Club and during the war proved himself active in Red Cross work and other war work. He was president of the Boy Scouts and a member of the board of education. He held the position of secretary of the Iowa Seed Dealers' Association for seven years and he is a member of the garden bureau committee of the American Seed Trade Association. He also takes an interest in religious affairs.

Quality is our motto.

NOT HOW CHEAP BUT HOW GOOD

You've Got to Spend Money to Make Money

Just because materials are higher in costs you can't afford to go on a "buyer's strike" and tell the dealers to go to Hades—not at least if you intend to stay in business—which particularly applies to bulbs. It's up to you to produce to the limit and rightly market your output so as to obtain the higher prices necessary by the increased cost of production. But you've got to start right, secure the best to be had. Horseshoe Brand Bulbs have proven to be the best obtainable and are never sold in competition against price. The following all ready for immediate delivery at Duty Paid prices—which are reasonable for first-class stock.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN

FOR BETTER GOLF COURSES.

With the ancient game of golf becoming more widely played and the number of courses increasing rapidly, the United States Department of Agriculture, in connection with its general work on grasses, is giving attention to the selection of special strains of grasses adapted to the requirements of the links. That this work may be most effective, the department is coöperating with the United States Golf Association, and several specialists in the bureau of plant industry were appointed members of the greens committee of that association.

A great deal of effort has been wasted in the building of golf courses, because of a lack of understanding of the different kinds of grasses and the methods of establishing a turf. Many men interested in the game have been the victims of seed fakers and self-styled experts. As a result, golfers have welcomed information on the subject from the department, and clubs in many parts of the country have called on the department for advice and information. This fall a number of greens are being put in on courses at Columbus and Akron, O., and a demonstration green on a course at Chicago.

The best results are obtained by the department with pure strains of creeping bent, a grass of uniform color and texture and resistant to wear. These strains have been selected and increased on the department experiment farm at Arlington, Va., and are now grown commercially by two or three companies. These strains of bent grass are grown by the vegetative method instead of from seed; that is, the stolons, or runners, are cut up and spread upon the ground where a turf is desired. The grass is first grown in nursery rows to obtain the increase needed for planting the greens. To give golf clubs a start of this grass, the department will furnish enough stolons to plant five or six linear feet of nursery row. In one year if well handled this will produce enough increase to plant five average golf greens. This fall such starts of grass are being furnished to fifty clubs. Grass was sent to about the same number last year.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE demise of Oscar Park Beckley, president of the Berryhill Nursery Co., Harrisburg, Pa., is reported on the obituary page of this issue.

THE census figures for 1919 show a dropping off in the acreage devoted to small fruits, from 272,460 in 1909 to 249,084. The decline was almost all in strawberries, which occupied 272,460 acres in 1909 and 119,395 in 1919.

GEORGE R. BRIGGS, of Greenwood, S. C., intends to open a large nursery and landscape gardening service in the near future. He expects to grow fruit trees and various types of ornamental plants on a 40-acre tract near Greenwood.

THE state plant board of Arkansas recently issued an order that all cedar trees within a mile and one-half of an orchard must be cut down. This order was issued as a safeguard against cedar rust, which is a menace to the orchards. A test case soon followed. George G. Becker, chief inspector for the board at Bentonville, Ark., began proceedings against a property owner who refused to obey the order and who took his case to the Supreme court. The alleged violator of the law lost his case, as the Supreme court upheld the ruling of the plant board of that state.

SMALL FORTUNE FROM PEONIES.

Gilbert Wild's Climb.

"When that dealer wrote that he had sold for $4 a crate of peonies which I had shipped to him on consignment, I was the most excited kid in Missouri," said Gilbert Wild, today one of the largest growers of peonies at Sarcoxie, Mo., referring to the time, thirty-nine years ago, when he first conceived the idea of growing peonies for commercial purposes. Since then Mr. Wild has made a small fortune, grown from the box of peony roots which were given to his father by a friend.

The sale of a crate of peonies has long since ceased to excite Gilbert Wild. His shipments this season averaged 200 crates per day, over a period of three weeks. A carload shipment is an ordinary incident in the course of the season's routine. And so, from the little patch "behind the barn" which his father told him he could have, his fields have grown to include twenty-five acres of the best land in that vicinity.

Methods of Growing Used.

In commenting upon the methods in use on his farm, Mr. Wild said that new peony fields are set from roots dug in late August, September and October. No blooms are cut from the plants for the first two years and seldom even the third year, unless the market is unusually good. Experience has taught that the plants will yield better blooms and for a longer period if they are allowed to become fully matured before the cutting is begun. One field on the farm was planted nineteen years ago and is still producing beautiful blooms.

The plants are set out in rows about five feet apart, so as to permit easy and thorough cultivation. The fields are kept free from weeds even after the blooming season is over, in order to give the plants every chance for a good, healthy growth. One acre each year is set out, due to the fact that four years are required to bring the plants to the flowering stage. By only planting one acre each year there are never more than three acres on the whole farm which are not producing blooms at any one time, and Mr. Wild has found that about twenty-five acres is all that he can take care of efficiently with his present equipment.

The labor force on the Wild farm consists of six men, whom Mr. Wild retains throughout the entire year. Then, during the blooming season the force is increased to about thirty-five persons, including boys and women, who do the sorting and packing of the blooms. In the fall when the roots are dug the force is increased again to take care of the digging and marketing work.

Refrigerator a Necessity.

Seven years ago Mr. Wild installed refrigerating equipment at a cost of $4,500, and although he uses it only about two weeks out of each year, he is convinced that it is a paying investment. One week before Memorial day Mr. Wild had 80,000 blooms in cold storage, holding them for the Memorial day demand. The mid-season price for peonies at that time was $45 per thousand, while the Memorial day price reached $75 per thousand. It is not hard to understand why Mr. Wild installed a refrigerating plant. In bulk he sells more peony roots than blooms, and for a larger return.

Mr. Wild has, however, not confined his efforts entirely to the growing of peonies, for about four years ago he set out a few irises and has now about fourteen acres of them. He finds that the iris requires less care than does the

A PLANT INVESTMENT IS SURE TO GROW IN VALUE

New Box-Barberry NOVELTY HARDY EDGING PLANT

Perfectly Hardy Anywhere in the United States

An exquisite, new, perfectly hardy edging plant. Makes shapely, upright bushes, that can be kept 6 inches high by trimming. Our stock is grown from cuttings made from the original plant.

Especially valuable in the central and northern states, as it is perfectly hardy and does not winter-kill.

This new dwarf Barberry comes to fill a long-felt need for an edging plant that is dwarf in growth, free from all diseases and insect pests, and absolutely hardy everywhere in the United States. The foliage is small and dainty, in fact, as small as the leaves of the universally known evergreen Box Edging, Buxus sempervirens. The young leaves are a beautiful emerald-green in the spring, changing to a pleasing, soft green during the summer and dark red in the fall. In many parts of this country, garden-beds had to be bordered annually or not at all, as there was no perfectly hardy edging plant to use, but now no garden need be incomplete on this account. Box-Barberry, as far as we are aware, has never been known to winter-kill in the slightest degree, and this insures a neat, unbroken border that is always a delight to look at.

Border your rose-beds, also your perennials and annuals, with this neat, upright, hardy, little shrub. Plant 4 inches apart for a low border and keep the plants pruned to whatever height you want. They can be trimmed at any time without injury, and pruning or trimming makes the plants grow more dense.

I am pleased with the appearance of the BOX-BARBERRY and intend to order more for spring planting. What I ordered last spring was merely a trial. I think when I get enough to border the entire rose-bed, that the effect will be very pleasing. Assuring you I will be more than pleased to recommend it, I am, H. A. T., Minneapolis, Minn.

peony, but due to the extremely perishable nature of the blooms of the former, it does not yield as large a single return as does the peony.

A recent estimation of Mr. Wild's holdings showed them to be in the neighborhood of $60,000, every cent of which he has made from peonies.

CAN FLORIST AID NURSERYMEN?

V. D. Hill, vice-president of the D. Hill Nursery Co., Dundee, Ill., recently spoke before the members of the Southern Nurserymen's Association, in convention at Lexington, Ky., on the subject of "Evergreens for the South." This address was published in The Review September 21, and contained some statistics regarding the total amount of annual sales and the number of firms engaged in the nursery business throughout the country. Mr. Hill stated that the total amount of the annual sales of the nursery business is about $20,000,000. He also stated that leading members of the trade were of the opinion that $20,000,000 is less than one-fifth of the present potential market. Mr. Hill was of the opinion that in a country where the total population reached 110,000,000, it was not impossible to approach at least substantially, a total sales per year of $100,000,000, within the next ten years. "In order to do this, however," said Mr. Hill, "we, as a nursery industry, must develop tree planting into a national habit, and this can be done by reminding this vast audience again and again, throughout the year to plant trees."

Following the publication of this address, a letter was received by Mr. Hill from Willis H. Baldwin, of Conshohocken, Pa., in which Mr. Baldwin outlined a plan for furthering the sale of nursery stock, which he thinks will materially increase the sale of trees and shrubs. The letter is as follows:

Isn't it possible for the various nurserymen's associations to coöperate to a greater extent with the florists? The florists number in the neighborhood of 15,000 in the United States, and they get into personal touch with a great many lovers of flowers, trees and shrubs. The florists should act as nursery agents. This would not only be a source of more profit to themselves, but it would be a benefit to the trade in general, and it would be an easy way for the customer to get his nursery stock. The nurseryman, instead of being compelled to carry on a mail order business, could use the money thus spent in providing literature and photographs, concerning nursery stock, to be distributed by the florists at their towns or cities to prospective customers. Personally, we are doing all we can to sell our patrons fruit trees, shrubs and evergreens, but we find the larger nurserymen, who are within hauling distance of us, unwilling to give us any encouragement along these lines. Perhaps this letter will produce other comment on the subject.

SUING ON STOCK REFUSED.

There is no way of preventing a party to the sale of goods from breaking his contract to receive and pay for them, holds the Maine Supreme Judicial court in the case of Homer N. Chase & Co. vs. Doyle, 116 Atlantic Reporter, 267, a suit involving breach of a contract to buy nursery stock. The buyer may, of course, be held liable in damages for breaking his contract. But he cannot be required to pay the contract price. And it makes no difference that the accepted order constituting his contract may provide that it shall not be subject to countermand.

After giving a "no countermand" order for the nursery stock, and before the goods had been shipped, defendant notified the plaintiff that he would not accept delivery and instructed against shipping. Nevertheless the stock was shipped, and on defendant's refusal to accept it, the seller's agent left the stock by the roadside in front of defendant's residence. Defendant removed it to a place across the road and there it remained, each party claiming that it was the property of the other.

The court rules that the plaintiff should have sued for damages for breach of the contract, rather than for the purchase price, saying:

"We consider the law as well settled in this state that where goods are ordered, and shipped to the one giving the order, but were never accepted by the one giving the order, the seller's remedy is not a suit for the price, but a special action for breach of the implied contract to receive and accept. To maintain an action for the price, actual acceptance must be shown.

"The plaintiff lays much stress upon the fact that the order contains the provision that it is not subject to countermand. These words add nothing to the legal force and effect of the order, for, in the absence of such provision in terms, the law would supply an implied

The Market.

Business is improving; however, the majority of florists are depending entirely on shipped cut flowers and blooming plants.

Carnations were in a poor condition a short time ago and are just now beginning to improve, but it will be a long time before there will be any heavy cuts.

Various Notes.

The wholesale house of Lang Floral Co. has been cutting splendid tuberoses and zinnias all through the summer and early fall. Their roses are improving. Louis Oesch now has charge of the greenhouses.

An attractive retail store under the name of Burton's Flower Shop, at 115 North Carroll avenue, was opened two months ago.

Mrs. Flagg has had some remodeling done and has improved her place considerably.

The Lang Floral Co. and the Dallas Floral Co. are exhibiting at the state fair in the Coliseum. The fair will last only ten days, instead of fourteen, as in previous years.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Spreen, of Waxahachie, came up for the fair last week.

R. C. Massie had another house constructed this last summer.

Mrs. Dora Hollkamp and daughter have returned from their visit in California. S. H.

West Allis, Wis.—Wright's Flower Store is the name of the new shop which will be opened about December 1, at 6215 Greenfield avenue. The new store will carry a full line of cut flowers, funeral designs and wedding bouquets.

The Market.

The weather during the last ten days has been changeable. The first few days of October were hot, then rain and colder weather came. Clear skies, with frost at night, are in order. Business conditions have varied, likewise and where there was ample stock, and in some cases an oversupply, there is a reverse of this condition. The demand is picking up, and the quality of the stock is improving. A few good frosts will clean up all outside stock and make way for the greenhouse stock, which is about ready. Some good outdoor, hardy chrysanthemums are on the market and are found particularly useful for basket work. The supply of chrysanthemums, however, is not large. Smith's Advance and Golden Glow are most popular and sell well. Pompons are not plentiful. There is a good supply of dahlias reaching the market and they are bringing fair prices. Carnations are becoming more plentiful, and their quality is improving. Some good late asters are seen, and are useful in design work. The supply of roses is fairly good, but no surplus is noticed. Good stock is bringing good prices. Calendulas are abundant and move well. There is some excellent larkspur in a variety of colors, which is much sought. There is a fair supply of montbretia, which is of excellent quality. Valley and orchids are in good supply. Violets are reaching us daily, but colder weather is needed to develop a better quality. Lilies are not plentiful. Green goods are in good demand, and show signs of better business.

Various Notes.

A boiler explosion in the boiler room of the greenhouses conducted by Mrs. Henry P. Neun, at the rear of 941 South avenue, late Thursday afternoon, October 12, is thought to have caused a short circuit in the electric wiring in the establishment and resulted in a serious fire. The damage as estimated by fire officials, amounts to about $4,000. The greenhouses are situated about 1,000 feet from the street, and when the firemen arrived they experienced considerable difficulty in getting their apparatus in a position to fight the blaze. A large quantity of bulbs was entirely destroyed, as well as the large shed used for storing and treating the bulbs.

Hugo Teute, of West Brighton, N. Y., is exceptionally busy. His new range of greenhouses is finished and is quite attractive, with the conservatory projecting from the center. His employees are busy with the bulbs, and work is being rushed as much as possible for the coming season. His crop of chrysanthemums looks exceptionally promising.

Horace J. Head has returned to Rochester, having made a two months' trip to England.

Exquisite baskets of flowers and fruit were seen in the window display of George T. Boucher last week. Some attractive pottery is also being shown, with assorted flower combinations.

Fred Mossgraber, of Webster, N. Y., reports that business with him is fair and that prospects for the coming season are encouraging.

The New York Florist Co., in Reynolds Arcade, is doing a fair amount of business. The firm has access to considerable outdoor space, which affords

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

This district was visited by a heavy storm last week, which ended a dry spell of nearly thirty days' duration. Dark weather has prevailed since the storm; this has brought about an acute shortage of flowers, particularly in roses and carnations. The roses coming in are of good quality and are picked up nearly as fast as they arrive. The demand for carnations far exceeds the supply and, as a result, they are cleared out each day at a good price.

Dahlias are still the main support of the market, and more are being handled this year than at any other time in the history of this section. Gladioli and asters have at last disappeared, after a long drawn-out season. Orchids and valley are now in market in quantity and, although the demand is good, each day sees some left over. Mums are still scarce and only small varieties are making their appearance.

Various Notes.

A considerable number of florists from this section attended the F. T. D. convention, at Baltimore. They all report a good time and are loud in their praise of the Baltimore florists for the fine treatment accorded visitors.

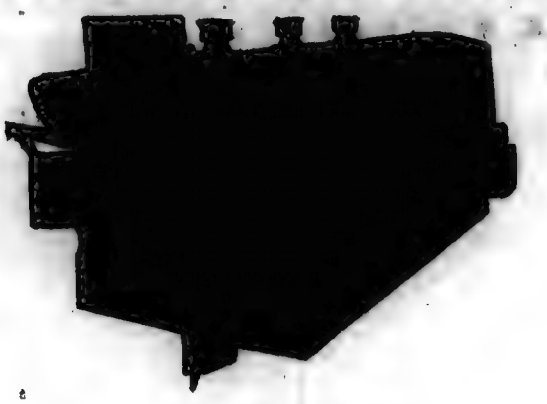
Greenhouse Heating

Subscribers are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

INSTALLING NEW SYSTEM.

I have mailed you a rough sketch of two propagating houses which I intend to erect. I have planned to run one 2-inch flow pipe under the ridge of each house and two 1½-inch returns under each bench in both houses. The walls of the two houses will be made of concrete blocks and will be five feet high. The south house will be 9x25 feet, while the north house will measure 9x36 feet. There will be a small workroom at the north end of the north house, twelve feet long. How much additional pipe will be required to heat this shed to a moderate temperature, and what arrangement of the piping would you suggest for the pipe in the workroom? The houses will be used only in the fall and spring for the time being, but later I shall want to run them in the winter also.



The outside temperature here goes as low as 15 degrees below zero. The glass exposure includes the roof of the north house and the roof and gable end of the south house. I have a pit about two and one-half feet deep, which contains a heater, used to heat some beds, and I have planned to use this pit for the heater for the greenhouses. How large should the boiler be for the above-mentioned range? The range will have some protection on the north and west from other buildings. H. P.—Ind.

For use during the spring and fall, or if a temperature of 50 degrees would answer in zero weather, the radiation suggested would give good results, but if the range is to be used for propagating purposes, it will be desirable to plan for at least 60 degrees in one of the houses, during the coldest weather. To secure this temperature, it is advised that you use a 2½-inch overhead flow pipe and six 1½-inch returns, placing three returns under each of the side benches. This arrangement may be used in one or both of the houses, as desired.

The radiation required in the workroom will depend largely upon the number and size of the windows. The sketch shows a door and two small windows in the north wall. If there is no glass in the side walls, it is suggested that you extend a 2-inch main from the greenhouse and run two 1½-inch returns from the door around each side of the room.

If heat is to be maintained in the workroom during the entire winter, the returns from this room may be continued and serve as two of the returns for each side of the greenhouse.

With piping for 60-degrees in both of the greenhouses, there will be about 400 square feet of radiation in the entire plant. Use a boiler rated at about 700 square feet of radiation, if soft coal is to be used. In most boilers of this size the grate will be twenty-three or twenty-four inches in diameter.

The circulation will be greatly improved if the boiler pit is deepened so that the top of the boiler will be lower than the return coils.

HEATING TWO HOUSES.

We are building two greenhouses, 29x100 feet each. One house is to be heated to 55 degrees and the other to 65 degrees when the outside temperature is 25 degrees below zero. How much radiation will be required in each house? How large should the flow and return pipes be? What would be the rating of the boiler? W. F. C.—N. D.

It is suggested that you use seven 2½-inch flow pipes and twenty-six 2-inch returns in the warmer house, and five flows and twenty returns in the other

Proper Heat with a Small Amount of Coal, Little Attention and No Worry

Sixty-five years' experience has taught us to produce boilers that can be absolutely depended upon to provide proper heat for the greenhouse in the most severe weather.

The water is heated quickly in WILKS BOILERS because it is separated from the fire by only a strong, thin sheet of steel, which, with the rapid circulation system, makes very little fuel required.

The self-feeding feature saves labor. By filling the coal magazine an even and continuous fire can be kept 12 hours or more without attention, making night firing unnecessary.

are made of the best steel, strongly riveted and calked, with no cast iron sections to crack or bolts or packing to be kept tight, and no flues and coils to fill up and leak.

house. This will furnish about 2,200 square feet of radiation in one house and 1,700 square feet in the other.

In order to heat the house readily, the use of two boilers rated at 3,000 horsepower each will be desirable. The above is for hot water.

If steam heat is used, it will require careful attention in the way of firing, and for that reason it is preferable to use hot water in small ranges.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Flowers of all kinds are more plentiful than they were last week and the supply exceeds the demand. Prices have dropped somewhat, as a result of this condition. Roses of all kinds can be had at reasonable figures, starting with short-stemmed stock at $2 to $4 per hundred, and running through the better grades at $4, $6 and $8 per hundred, up to choice stock at $10 and $15 per hundred. American Beauty roses alone have held up well and they are few in number. All that are offered sell well at $5 and $6 per dozen.

Carnations continue to improve in quality, and a price of $2 to $3 per hundred is asked for the ordinary grades, Laddie bringing $5 and $6 per hundred and selling well at those figures. The supply, however, is not large. To sell orchids, the wholesaler has to push them and they do not average, in price, more than $1 each. This represents a reduction in price over that of preceding weeks. Valley holds its price of $8 and $10 per hundred, while some extra special stock last week brought as high as $12.

Dahlias continue to be the wholesalers' bane, for they are more plentiful this year than ever before and the market is glutted with them. As long as dahlias can be had at $2 and $4 per hundred, it is difficult to sell much of anything else, for dahlias are by far the cheapest flowers on the market, all things considered. They have killed the sale of cosmos completely this year, the wholesalers being unable to find any market at all for this beautiful flower, and it has lost its hitherto great popularity.

It is reported that few good chrysanthemums are to be had at this time. The average prices are from $12 to $20 per hundred, with the exception of a few fine Chrysolora and Sun Glow, which bring as much as $5 and $6 per dozen. White chrysanthemums were scarce last week, and the supply was not large enough to meet ordinary demands for them. There are still some gladioli, which are offered at $8 and $10 per hundred.

Gude to New Orleans.

Granville Gude, son of William F. Gude and acclaimed the sculling marvel of the Potomac Boat Club, left Washington last week for New Orleans, where he is to meet Walter Hoover, the world's champion oarsman, in a match race, in connection with the American Legion games. Granville Gude has astonished the rowing world with phenomenal ability acquired in a remarkably short time. On Labor day he created a great furor in amateur circles when he won the junior, intermediate and senior association singles in the Middle States Regatta, at Baltimore. The following week, at the annual regatta of the Potomac Boat Club, he beat the veteran sculler, Robert Duncan, by one and one-half boat lengths of open water after a discouraging start. At the store of Gude Bros. Co., where Granville is employed on much the same basis as the other members of the store personnel, all of the boys are pulling hard for him.

Then, as heat is gradually applied, it is vitrified and becomes impervious to temperatures up to 3100 deg. F.

Jointless Plibrico conforms to every shape; it meets the requirements of furnaces of every size; it makes the ideal baffle; it is the universal lining for every type of furnace, old or new. And, above all, it is jointless!

You know that joints are wounds that never heal; that most furnace troubles start at the joints between laid up fire brick. So it follows that the cheapest furnace lining in the world is Plibrico.

Horticultural Society Formed.

Formation of the American Horticultural Society, to be national in scope, was completed at a meeting held October 10, when some two score persons interested in furthering the growing of flowers by private persons adopted a constitution, which gives concrete form to a plan proposed at a preliminary meeting held September 28.

Dr. Firman Mulford, of the Department of Agriculture, presided at the meeting, and, as chairman of a constitutional committee appointed at the first meeting, submitted the draft of a constitution which had been agreed upon. After considerable discussion and some changes, the constitution was adopted. Under its terms there will be five classes of membership in the organization: Members, to pay dues of $3 per year; associate members, to be persons under 18 years of age, to pay dues of $1 per year; life members, to make a flat payment of $100; patrons, to be those who contribute $200 or more toward the support of the society; fellows, who shall be elected as members in recognition of valuable contributions in the horticultural or allied fields.

The organization will have the usual list of officers, president, first and second vice-presidents, secretary and treasurer, to be elected annually. These officers, together with ten directors, will form an executive committee, to which shall be entrusted the business of the organization and the carrying out of the policies agreed upon. Regular meetings are to be held each month and an annual meeting will be held the second Tuesday of January each year.

No officers were elected at the meeting held October 10, but a special committee on nominations was appointed, which is to decide upon candidates for officers for the first year. The committee was composed of V. E. Grotlisch, G. E. Anderson, Mrs. L. H. Fowler, C. E. F. Gersdorff and Louis Hertrile. The committee will make its report at the next meeting, which will be held November 14. It was also agreed that all persons who evidence a desire to become members, up to and including the next meeting, would be carried on the rolls of the organization as charter members.

A number of prominent horticulturists were present at the meeting, among those attending being: Dr. Firman Mulford, Dr. Frederick Coville, botan-

Visitors at the Capital.

The national capital proved a great attraction last week to the florists who have been attending the convention of the F. T. D. at Baltimore. Literally hundreds came over to Washington by train, trolley and automobile. Many registered in the visitors' book at the store of Gude Bros. Co., and a good number who called there were taken on a tour of the city by Miss Amelia Gude, Charles Pritchard and Leo Geyer. The services of the entire personnel of the company were placed at the command of the visitors by William F. Gude, and the boys went out of their way to show the visitors over the store, the greenhouses, and over the city when asked to serve in that way. Among those who visited the store were the following: Mrs. A. E. Moore, Charles Klooper, J. J. Higgins, P. J. Waters and Mrs. Percy Waters, Toronto, Can.; F. Various Notes.

Many of the downtown florists received good orders last week for decorations in connection with the exhibits made by both local and out-of-town concerns in Convention hall, where the national association of restaurant men has been holding a show and convention.

It is reported that Harry Payne is about to discontinue his flower business at 1224 F street, N. W. He will probably not reëngage in the flower industry again at this time.

George C. Shaffer has been kept busy by his association activities. He was prominent among those attending the F. T. D. convention at Baltimore, Md., last week, while at the same time he kept his own business here going full blast, with a number of decoration jobs, keeping one eye upon the Kiwanis convention at the end of the week. With Z. D. Blackistone, Mr. Shaffer was in charge of the decorations. These two men are the retail florist members of the local organization.

Adolph E. Gude, of A. Gude Sons Co., has been admitted to membership in the Kiwanis Club of Washington as a wholesaler of flowers.

George W. White, who for the last twelve years has been employed at the Marche store, at the southeast corner of Fourteenth and H streets, N. W., will take over that business early next month, operating it as White, Inc. He has formed a corporation having a capital stock of $3,000. Elizabeth Lapish and Stanley Konopka are named as incorporators with Mr. White. Mr. White is well known in the trade, having been actively engaged therein for about twenty-five years. T. N. S.

Middletown, Pa.—At the recent meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution, held at Union Hose hall, the decorations were furnished by Edward Creep, who carried out the national colors with mums. The decorations were greatly admired by all present. Mr. Creep has had a number of his mums on display at a local pharmacy; this has won for him much praise and a great deal of publicity in local papers.

Wilson's O. K. Plant Spray

Kills Plant Insects, Scale and Mildew

A Powerful Yet Harmless and Efficient Insecticide that has stood the Test of Time

For Greenhouse Use

Roses and Carnations should be sprayed every two weeks with Wilson's O. K. Plant Spray to keep them free from aphis, red spider and mildew. Such prominent growers as J. T. Everitt at Glen Cove, L. I., and David Miller, Tuxedo Park, N. Y., use Wilson's O. K. Plant Spray very extensively for a greenhouse spray.

NEW ENGLAND GROWN.

All our bulbs have been grown on new land. We do not dig until stalks turn brown; end of October; RIPE BULBS.

We cure by hot water heat, which prepares them for early forcing.

Bulbs up to size; plump; high crown; ready for shipment about November 20.

SYDONIA!

Don't fail to give this variety a trial. It creates as much admiration with the lady visitors, as any variety we grow. Most of them call it a magenta in color though it is just a hair lighter than Anna Eberius; tall, straight spikes; 3 and 4 flowers open at a time; medium early and sells well as a cut flower.

To my knowledge only listed previously by one grower in the United States and this is the first season we have offered it, No. 4, $4.00; No. 5, $3.00; No. 6, $2.50 per 100; bulblets, $3.00 per 1000.

PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

Various Notes.

The fiftieth anniversary of the Germantown Horticultural Society was commemorated at a good meeting held in the library at Vernon park October 9.

F. A. C. Vosters is sending in some beautiful chrysanthemums from his Delaware County Nurseries, at Secane, to Berger Bros. The place was formerly Mrs. Sarah T. Smith's.

Martin J. Gannon feels encouraged by the start made by the Evergreen Supply Co.

The Henry F. Michell Co. held a good dahlia show in its store, October 10 to 12.

Harry Bayersdorfer is pleased with the many letters he has received complimenting him on his new catalogue.

Collingwood, N. J., had a wonderful dahlia show October 6 and 7. The attendance was so large that judging was difficult.

Thaddeus N. Yates & Co. have sold their nurseries at Mount Airy.

J. Otto Thilow and George A. Strohlein expect to sail for South America December 23.

The growing popularity of the F. T. D. with our leading men is shown in the presence of John P. Habermehl at the Baltimore meeting.

Charles Pandella, for years a retailer in the center of the city, is now selling "hot dogs" at the carnivals.

The Philadelphia friends of Wallace R. Pierson are greatly pleased to hear that he was nominated for state senator in Connecticut.

J. H. Thompson & Son, of Kennett, have installed a fine new cold storage place for their cut roses.

George Burton is busily engaged in grading for his new houses at Arlingham.

E. W. Gaehring and W. H. Myers attended the F. T. D. meeting in Baltimore last week.

Miss Lamborn closed the Bloom Flower Shop last summer.

The businesses of Samuel C. Sproul were closed at sheriff's sale recently.

Wanted—A good early pink chrysanthemum.

Alberto R. Langwith, of Havana, Cuba, was here last week.

The monthly meeting of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society was held at 606 Finance building, Tuesday afternoon, October 17. The object of the meeting was to find out what the exhibitors expected to have for the November show and to place accordingly.

The catalogue of the M. Rice Co., just published, clearly expresses confidence in what the firm has to offer. From the photograph of the building to the photograph of the simplest wreath, the illustrations are good, the descriptions are clear and the general effect most pleasing. Phil.

GOING STRONG.

There are many evidences that the florists' business is starting in briskly this autumn. Letters reaching The Review show clearly that there is a strong demand for all kinds of seasonable stock. Like this:

Cut out cyclamen ad immediately; all sold out. —Zetlitz Floral Products Co., Dayton, O., October 3, 1922.

Please discontinue my advertisement, as I am all sold out on daffodil bulbs.—Gilbert H. Wild, Sarcoxie, Mo., September 30, 1922.

Please cancel our advertisement of Boston and Whitmanii ferns, as we are sold out.—Rocklin, Lehman & Co., Sioux City, Ia., October 1, 1922.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

Ferndale, Mich.—R. E. Low is in the florists' business on a small scale.

Cullman, Ala.—The merchants of this town recently issued a coöperative advertising circular, and prominent among the advertisements was that of W. F. Richter. The advertisement by Mr. Richter mentioned two mums originated by him; namely, Elizabeth Richter and Mrs. Katherine Richter. The advertisement extended an invitation to all who wished to visit the greenhouses to see the narcissi, hyacinths, tulips, freesias and lilies.

DISEASED GERANIUMS.

Kindly give me some information regarding geranium diseases. I have mailed you a specimen of my geranium stock which has a peculiar disease, and should like to have you examine this plant and determine, if possible, what the trouble is. C. B.—Wis.

Some inherent weakness may have caused the plants of one variety to become diseased in this way, while others were not affected. Overpropagation is a fertile source of weakness. Climatic conditions have much to do with these troubles. A damp season is especially bad for geraniums and starts fungoid affections. Spraying with a fungicide like the Bordeaux mixture on the first appearance of the disease is recommended, and if time will permit, the removal and burning of diseased foliage as much as possible is also recommended. Dust spraying in the early morning will also prove beneficial. A good mixture is eighty per cent sulphur and twenty per cent air-slaked lime. Blow this over the plants while there is still some dew on them and the air is still. Do not propagate your stock from any diseased plants. C. W.

LIFTING GERANIUMS.

I have a block of geraniums now in the field. Is it advisable, in lifting these to pots and benches, to shake all the soil from the roots, or should a small lump of soil be allowed to remain?
R. L.—Ind.

Shake away all of the soil from the roots of the geraniums, cut back the roots as well as the shoots, and place the plants in pots which are just large enough to hold the roots well. Plants treated in this manner will soon have many live roots around the sides of the pots and will start to grow far more satisfactorily than when they are not headed back and are placed in larger pots. C. W.

Parkersburg, W. Va.—Gustave Obermeyer, who has been ill for some time, is still confined to the house, but is feeling much improved.

Mishawaka, Ind.—A. W. Larson, who formerly was head gardener for the naval training station at Great Lakes, Ill., is now in charge of growing at the Flower Shop.

F. M. Richter of Bayside, L. I.
Has The Reputation of Being Very Exacting

Don't mistake us, not that he is a hard man to do business with. Far from it.
But he does know exactly what he wants and exactly why he wants it, and is very exacting in getting exactly what he wants.

There's a big difference between that and the man who pig-headedly determines to have certain things certain ways and "nothing or nobody" can budge him.
There is a lot of satisfaction in doing business with a man like Mr. Richter, who comes to his conclusions slowly and carefully and then "sticks to them despite election or high water," as the old saying goes.

Mr. Richter has a lot of original ways of doing business, one of which is making a one price arrangement with his customers, that holds good right through a season, regardless of the market price.

Sometimes the customer pays more, sometimes less, but year in and year out both the customer and Mr. Richter gain by it.
Mr. Richter has a big Hitchings house having a double-tied iron frame and glazed with 20-inch glass.
If you are kind of exacting in your ideas of how a house should be built, let's get together and have a talk. Something tells us, we can do business together.

By "double tied frame," we mean that the rafter cross tie is a double steel angle. That the rafter truss extending from the top of the column to the post is a double iron. The purlin leg of the angle knee, that fastens the purlins to the rafter, is double the usual length.

And Today

Way back in the days before the war of '61, Gold was discovered in California. A thin stream of hardy pioneers trudged over the western prairies against thousands of hardships to find a piece of this golden land. Many started—few succeeded, but the spirit of the men of '49 will live forever.

In 1899 the first real greenhouses were built. Before then, they were semi-dugouts and crude in detail. Many built in those days and contrary to the history of the '49ers of California—many succeeded.

And today—compare travel to California with 1849 and 1899—what a difference! What great progress has come since then! And yet, there are greenhouses being built today that are ghosts of the designs made in '99.

This is the AGMCO Age of Greenhouse Construction. The pioneers in a new golden discovery of improved greenhouse design.

AGMCO was the first to build houses with the wide truss spacing. AGMCO was first to build completely riveted houses without bolts. They have been shipping hot riveted trusses in one piece for years. Other exclusive features make AGMCO Houses Perfect.

Others are following us in design and pattern. They are in search of the golden fields of perfect greenhouse construction, but the prairie is wide and the distance long.

—superior construction; exclusive advantages

The McCallum Universal Plant Stand

The most practical, most adaptable stand of its kind on the market—another distinctly exclusive McCallum creation. Especially suited to funeral and stage work, receptions, window and store display use and for many other decorative purposes. Holds any sized plant at any position that can be held with the hands. The bigger and heavier the plant, the firmer and more securely it is held. Unbreakable, telescopic, collapsible, automatically adjustable to any height or position, no danger of plant falling.

The New "Junior" Stand

Specially designed for decorative work requiring low elevation, combining all the quality and practical features of the Universal Stand with the exception that it is NOT telescopic and that its base is permanent instead of collapsible.

You Who Look For Something Better!

Commonwealth is better than existing roses. Montgomery's dark pink seedling will please you. We have confidence in Commonwealth and have shown our faith by placing plants of this new rose with the following firms for trial. These men have our full permission to tell the truth. We have not asked them to be charitable as regards any faults that the rose may have. We have placed the rose with these growers that the story of Commonwealth may be the story of honest endeavor to give the rose growers of America something better than we have had before. See Commonwealth with your nearest neighbor; or, better still, come to Cromwell and see it here. These men are growing it:

Maywood invites you—

THE Chicago Florists' Club will hold its next meeting at Maywood, Ill., November 2, devoting the afternoon to visiting the greenhouses there—supper at 6 p. m. in one of the big greenhouse packing rooms, and business meeting immediately after.

It will be a great occasion—calling out the largest gathering of the trade ever brought together in the Chicago district.

Never having had an opportunity like this before, the Maywood florists have associated themselves to return some of the many hospitalities they have received at other places. The Associated Maywood Florists and the officers of the Chicago Florists' Club join in inviting every Florist, and all persons interested in Florists, to be in Maywood at 1 p. m. November 2. There will also be a Flower Show held in connection with meeting. Retailers are specially invited, wholesalers, growers, the allied trades—everybody. Come one! Come all! We hope for an attendance of 500.

There are many things to see at Maywood

Maywood has 12 growers, all within a few hundred yards of the gathering place.

Maywood growers have 1,460,000 feet of glass, including newest and most up-to-date equipment.

Maywood growers burned last season 25,270 tons of coal.

Maywood growers employ 200 men, the most skillful they can find.

Maywood growers cut 12,500,000 Roses per year, all the newest and best varieties.

Maywood growers pick 10,250,000 Sweet Peas per season.

Maywood growers will cut 225,000 Mums this season, just now approaching their prime.

Maywood is easily reached, 12 miles from Chicago, by auto, by Chicago and Northwestern Railroad, by Aurora and Elgin Electric, by the Lake Street Elevated, by the Lake Street surface cars. Motors will meet everyone at the main corner.

ANNIE LAURIE

A Flesh Pink Sport of Ophelia with a gold base extending a third of the way up the petals.

This Brilliant Sport of Ophelia, grown by the late Frank X. Stuppy for the past five years, will be disseminated in the early Spring of 1923.

It is a wonderful improvement over its parent, having a much better color of a deeper shade and being more productive.

The flower will average forty-six petals and open full without showing center. The plant is a vigorous grower, with the same foliage as its parent and disease-resistant.

Exhibition Vases will be on display at the Flower Shows at

WITCHING WINDOWS FOR HALLOWEEN

Taking for granted that the display window is a potential salesman, it follows that its capabilities should be employed to the utmost. Halloween affords an occasion when the display in the window can earn its upkeep in the interest of the florist who pays its salary. What is your window worth?

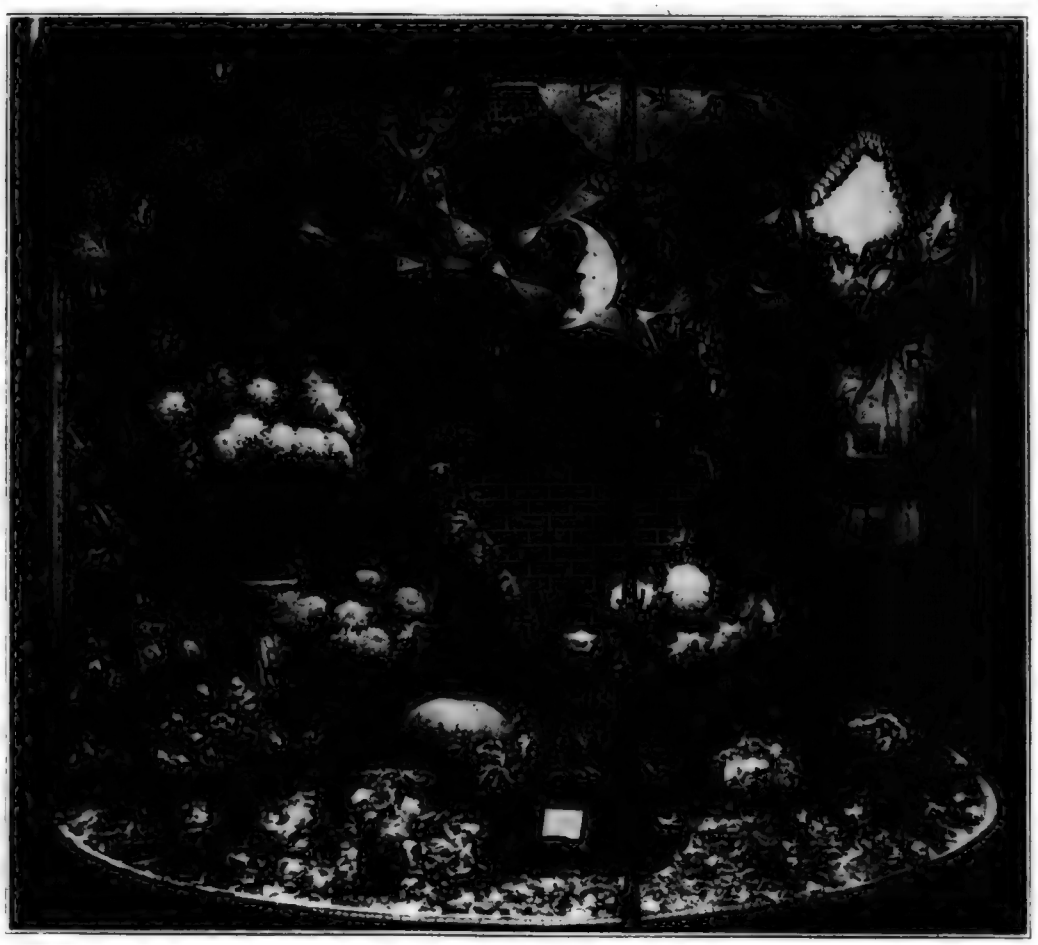
OCTOBER 31! Comes next in the curriculum of trade activity the occasion of Halloween. With it comes opportunity to those who are prepared in stock, ingenuity and foresight to seize it, because coincident with Halloween occur numerous occasions in which the florist can play a major part if he will. There are Halloween parties, at which flowers and other decorations are needed; there are Halloween dances, for which appropriate corsages and other bouquets are required. Instances of this kind should considerably augment the season's profits. But we must lead the way. We must remember that a Halloween party can get along without flowers, and it is our part to show that the time would be much more successful with flowers. A hint to the proper parties at the proper time with the proper amount of persuasion should turn the trick. How can it be done?

Max Schling, of New York, of florists' school fame, has said that a florist's window is a salesman and that whatever it consumes is simply salary paid out for the selling of the goods. Is your window earning its pay or is it underpaid? At Halloween the window should be exerting its selling ability to the greatest extent, because the public, those who observe windows, is somewhat inclined to overlook flowers as an essential at this time.

A Salesman.

Right on this page is the portrait of a model Halloween salesman. The window was that of the Fred Haupt Co., of Louisville, Ky., at Halloween last year. It attracted much notice, much business and won a cup for its excellence from a local civic organization. Its lesson to the rest of us is that we can do something of the kind this year to our own advantage.

Let us delineate the salesman in detail. First of all, the window radiates a Halloween atmosphere. This was gained by the use of the proper colors and by introducing objects or subjects closely associated with Halloween.



Contents Make the Window.

All the colors, one notes, are of the somber sort—black, brown, hues of yellow, with here and there a sudden bright tint to make the duller shades more prominent by contrast. There are the conventional cats on the conventional fence; there is the shock of corn, representative of Halloween; there are the pumpkins and the masks. And with all these, in improving harmony, are the flowers that well carry out the spirit of the display—mums, roses, ferns, etc. Above it all hangs the mystic Halloween moon, without which the Halloween effect might well be lost. This is, surely, a window well planned and worthy of being copied.

Why is a display window? The great majority of us appreciate the value of arousing interest, but fundamentally we rather neglect the means to arouse that interest. The curious public is always ready to observe something novel, something out of the ordinary. Therefore, it is logical that getting something worthy of attention into the display is of primary importance. A good idea is to select a striking object as the center of interest in the window, such as an unusually large pumpkin, a caldron surrounded by witches, a waterfall rushing down through overhanging foliage, a boy fishing in a pool, a mask standing out ominously against a window pane. And there are many others that will serve to attract the first glance from a passer-by.

With the central object selected, it is then time to place additions of floral nature that will carry out the effect harmoniously. If this is done carefully with an eye to please the observer, the retailer can rest assured that the people will look. Before a retailer, however, can expect a customer to show interest, he himself must be intensely interested in what he is doing.

It seems that the window in a store can and invariably does act as an accurate advertisement of the merchandising character of the man in the store. A window acts in much the same way as a letterhead; it will incite respect, if it is worthy. The window on this page is attractive, because it has been planned and thought out by an interested designer. It has a constructive value.

This Window More than Earned Its Upkeep Last Halloween.

Constructive.

A window such as this might well instill the idea of a social function for Halloween in the mind of an observer who had, previous to seeing the display, not thought of a party.

Night is the time when the Halloween window can and should do its best work. For this reason particular attention must be given to the lighting. Whatever the system of lighting is, whether direct or indirect, the main point is that the lights should be dim

OCTOBER 31! Comes next in the curriculum of trade activity the occasion of Halloween. With it comes opportunity to those who are prepared in stock, ingenuity and foresight to seize it, because coincident with Halloween occur numerous occasions in which the florist can play a major part if he will. There are Halloween parties, at which flowers and other decorations are needed; there are Halloween dances, for which appropriate corsages and other bouquets are required. Instances of this kind should considerably augment the season's profits. But we must lead the way. We must remember that a Halloween party can get along without flowers, and it is our part to show that the time would be much more successful with flowers. A hint to the proper parties at the proper time with the proper amount of persuasion should turn the trick. How can it be done?

Max Schling, of New York, of florists' school fame, has said that a florist's window is a salesman and that whatever it consumes is simply salary paid out for the selling of the goods. Is your window earning its pay or is it underpaid? At Halloween the window should be exerting its selling ability to the greatest extent, because the public, those who observe windows, is somewhat inclined to overlook flowers as an essential at this time.

A Salesman.

Right on this page is the portrait of a model Halloween salesman. The window was that of the Fred Haupt Co., of Louisville, Ky., at Halloween last year. It attracted much notice, much business and won a cup for its excellence from a local civic organization. Its lesson to the rest of us is that we can do something of the kind this year to our own advantage.

Let us do so at this

salesman in detail. First of all, the window radiates a Halloween atmosphere. This was gained by the use of the proper colors and by introducing objects or subjects closely associated with Halloween.

Contents Make the Window.

All the colors, one notes, are of the somber sort—black, brown, hues of yellow, with here and there a sudden bright tint to make the duller shades more prominent by contrast. There are the conventional cats on the conventional fence; there is the shock of corn, representative of Halloween; there are the pumpkins and the masks. And with all these, in improving harmony, are the flowers that well carry out the spirit of the display—mums, roses, ferns, etc. Above it all hangs the mystic Halloween moon, without which the Halloween effect might well be lost. This is, surely, a window well planned and worthy of being copied.

Why is a display window? The great majority of us appreciate the value of arousing interest, but fundamentally we rather neglect the means to arouse that interest. The curious public is always ready to observe something novel, something out of the ordinary. Therefore, it is logical that getting something worthy of attention into the display is of primary importance. A good idea is to select a striking object as the center of interest in the window, such as an unusually large pumpkin, a caldron surrounded by witches, a waterfall rushing down through overhanging foliage, a boy fishing in a pool, a mask standing out ominously against a window pane. And there are many others that will serve to attract the first glance from a passer-by.

With the central object selected, it is then time to place additions of floral nature that will carry out the effect harmoniously. If this is done carefully with an eye to please the observer, the retailer can rest assured that the people will look. Before a retailer, however, can expect a customer to show interest, he himself must be intensely interested in what he is doing.

It seems that the window in a store can and invariably does act as an accurate advertisement of the merchandising character of the man in the store. A window acts in much the same way as a letterhead; it will incite respect, if it is worthy. The window on this page is attractive, because it has been planned and thought out by an interested designer. It has a constructive value.

Constructive.

A window such as this might well instill the idea of a social function for Halloween in the mind of an observer who had, previous to seeing the display, not thought of a party.

Night is the time when the Halloween window can and should do its best work. For this reason particular attention must be given to the lighting. Whatever the system of lighting is, whether direct or indirect, the main point is that the lights should be dim and as "witchy" as possible. A number of strong lights in pumpkin heads would make a good light, rendering the effect of the heads glaring at the display. Lights covered with red material would do well. Lights beaming out from beneath shocks of corn or lights so arranged in the center of the window as to represent a bonfire would serve well.

However, the display window is not the only way to get Halloween business. The Annavee Flower Shop, of Yakima, Wash., for instance, has sent out a blotter containing a calendar for October. One side of the blotter is blue and contains a picture of a small boy standing terrified beside a large carved pumpkin head. "Say It with Flowers" at Halloween, intimates this firm, and impresses the Halloween idea with the following verse:

HALLOWEEN.
Jack O'Lantern scared me so;
Hardly know what I'm about;
You see, the "gobbleuns" may get me
If I don't watch out.

A blotter such as this will help to impress the idea of Halloween and will connect it with the idea of using flowers. It will be placed on the desk of the recipient and will act as a reminder. Sent out the first of October, or even later, it has plenty of time to advertise Halloween.

And there are other ways of suggesting that customers get flowers for the Halloween "doings." Phone them and tell them about it. Circularize the old customers with well written form letters; place an advertisement in the local paper; employ the means used at other flower days. And support all these efforts with the drawing power of a pulling window display. Keeping at it year after year will make a fairly profitable flower day of Halloween.

DANKER'S FLOWER GIRL.

Fred A. Danker, who not infrequently springs novel ideas on the public at Albany, N. Y., developed a perfectly new one in the form of a contest to name a flower girl, who was to represent the Danker service and buying opportunities given the public. This contest opened September 10 and closed September 30. At the expiration of the period, three judges picked the name which won the $50 prize. This was "Carrie Sunshine." Five prizes of $10 and ten of $5 were given for the next best suggestions. These were, in order, Carrie Cheer, Carrie Sweet, Carrie Jay, Reliance Roseland, Justa Flower, Fulla Cheer, Daisy Field, Smiling Beauty, Rosemary Fair, Flora Culture, Hortense of Albany, Miss Sunburst, Forget-me-not, Constance Service, Gladus Wellcome.

The contest gave Danker much publicity in the local newspapers and created much public comment. The store, at 40 Maiden Lane, carried window displays that featured the contest.

The purpose of the contest was thus described in Danker's folder giving the rules of the contest:

"It is our desire to run a series of advertisements that will be an innovation in the field of illustrated advertising.

"The feature of this series will be a photographic reproduction of a charming girl, presented in various poses with flowers, and appropriate to the subject of each separate advertisement.

"As the Danker flower girl, we desire that she shall convey, from time to time, to the minds of people interested in Danker advertising, certain statements of facts regarding Danker quality of goods and service, prices, and opportunities for advantageous purchasing; in addition, the square deal features of Danker service in the execution of all orders, large or small, on time and in a satisfactory manner, and the way in which particular or special desires and tastes are met by extraordinary effort, special attention and prompt adjustments when required. The name desired, therefore, should perhaps suggest to the mind of the reader the thought of honesty, truthfulness, square dealing, or be suitable for one setting forth such statements as we have above mentioned.

"In addition, the name should be suitable to the girl and, if possible, be suggestive of flowers or the florist's business."

"PLEASE OMIT FLOWERS."

From time to time complaint is heard as to the number of times the request, "Please omit flowers," is seen in the column of obituary notices in the daily newspapers. Here is another one:

"No doubt all have seen this familiar line in our daily newspapers, 'Please omit flowers.' Really, in our town it seems to be becoming quite the vogue, and appears to such an extent as to hurt business noticeably.

"I should greatly appreciate it and feel that a great service had been rendered if you would publish in your columns a live discussion for the benefit of all of us on this topic, because the use of this request is becoming a universal custom.

"Don't you think the only reason for such a request is pure selfishness, in so far as the omission of flowers at a funeral relieves persons of a little trouble, which surely should be a pleasure, and denies friends and relatives the opportunity of paying a final tribute of love and esteem to a dear one.

"About a month ago, one of our influential townspeople called up and requested me to accept no orders, as she had requested 'No flowers,' but asked me to please take all the names and cards offered by persons who wished to buy flowers, so that she would know whom to thank. Now, what is the poor florist to get out of that?

"I should like to see some discussion in your columns of this matter, which I feel is a question of vital importance."

We'll start the discussion.

In some communities the use of the request in obituary notices, "Please omit flowers," seems to spread rapidly, but experience has shown that the vogue passes. In the course of time a funeral occurs at which there is a tremendous showing of flowers, and after that other families in that town are unwilling to attend a barren coffin; so the vogue passes.

The florist has no chance to combat the use of this request, save perhaps one: He can accept orders which come for funerals for which the request, "No flowers," has appeared, and, instead of sending the flowers to the funeral, send them to the home of the family as expressions of sympathy to them. As a matter of fact, all funeral flowers are sent with this in view. The corpse cannot appreciate the tokens; only the survivors can understand the message and know from whom they came. The florist in a small community where the use of the request to omit flowers has attained an extent which reduces his funeral orders materially might make a campaign along this line, advocating that flowers be sent to the widow in case of her husband's death, or to other near relatives, as the case may be.

The communities in which funeral business has been seriously affected by this request are not many. The danger is greatest in small towns, rather than in our large cities. The news letters in The Review bear witness from time to time as to the large quantities of funeral flowers sent out by some florists. If another instance need be cited, one might look at the illustration on page 29, which shows the funeral pieces furnished for the recent funeral of Harry Johnson, of the Endicott-Johnson Co., Boston. nished 106 pieces for this funeral. All those shown in the illustration on this page came from this Boston firm, which has had similarly large numbers of funeral orders for prominent Bostonians recently deceased.

U. S. BOTANIC GARDEN.

To Be Enlarged.

Announcement has been made by the United States Botanic Garden, Washington, D. C., as was reported in The Review of October 19, to the effect that, with a view to enlarging the national Botanic Garden on its present site, to relieve the existing shortage of storage space and stables for the public works of the District of Columbia, and to further the scheme for beautification and park development of the area south of the Capitol to the Potomac river, Representative John W. Langley, of Kentucky, chairman of the House committee on public buildings and grounds, stated Wednesday, October 11, that when Congress reassembles he will introduce a bill to acquire about a dozen city squares.

Langley Prepares Bill.

The bill will be prepared by Chairman Langley, who has the support of Senator Fernald, of Maine, chairman of the Senate committee on public buildings and grounds. Chairman Langley points out that the government already owns much of the land in that section and that now is the time when the adjoining land can be acquired at the best prices.

The Langley bill will provide for acquiring about eight city blocks lying within the bend made by twelve parcels of land along the site of the old James Creek canal, recently turned over to the Botanic Garden by Congress, thus allowing the improvement of a sizable tract all in one piece instead of a narrow strip along the old canal site. The land to be secured is bounded on the east by South Capitol street, on the west by First street, on the north by D street and on the south by M street, all in the southwest section. This will take in five blocks west of Half street and three east of Half street.

Points to Suitability of Land.

The blue print to be prepared by the District surveyor will show Congress just what land is government owned and what is privately owned in this section, with the exact area of each plot.

Emphasis was placed by Chairman Langley and Director Hess on the fact that the land in the section south of the Capitol now supports some of the finest truck gardens in the District of Columbia, and is ideal for use by the Botanic Garden and for a nursery.

Both Chairman Langley, of the House committee, and Senator Fernald, of the Senate committee, expressed confidence that early and favorable action will be taken by both branches of Congress upon this proposal, which they estimate will really save the government a great deal of money, besides removing an eyesore which many members of Congress have repeatedly criticized.

IMPORTED PLANTS.

Need Not Be Washed.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has approved an amendment to regulation 7 of the regulations under quarantine 37, providing for the freeing of imported plants from sand, soil or earth by "washing or other means." The requirement hitherto has been that such plants shall be thoroughly freed from earth by washing. The condition of freedom from sand, soil or earth is, however, to be strictly maintained. The amended regulation will shortly be distributed to importers and others in interest.

This action was taken as a result of an informal conference of the federal horticultural board, October 3, with the advisory committee of the American Association of Nurserymen, reported in The Review October 12. It was represented by the conferees that the washing of the roots, particularly of certain classes of plants, as performed abroad, was a source of injury to importations and of considerable losses. Many instances of such injury were presented. On the other hand, it was brought out that this injury was due not to the fact of washing, but more often to the method of washing, and more particularly to the subsequent methods of packing and shipping. It was shown that such washing had been done in the case of certain countries without any injury whatever to classes of plants which were supposed to be most susceptible to such injury. Nevertheless, the importers were convinced that it would be more practicable to permit the removal of earth by shaking or other means where such removal could be thus effectively accomplished. As a result of a full discussion of this subject, the federal horticultural board agreed to the modification of the regulations now authorized.

This is a return substantially to the original requirement under plant quarantine 37, with respect to imported plants. The specific requirement of washing was a later one, necessitated by the continuing increase of earth with plant importations and the difficulty of setting up a definite standard of cleanliness which would be perfectly clear to the foreign shipper and determinable by the inspector of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Hereafter all importations must, as hitherto, be freed from sand, soil or earth by washing or other means; in other words, the condition of freedom from sand, soil or earth is to be strictly maintained. Any importations not so cleaned will be refused entry. The advisory committee of the American Asso-

MR. MEREDITH'S NEW PAPER.

The recent Secretary of Agriculture, E. T. Meredith, of Des Moines, Ia., publisher of one of the most influential and widely read farm journals, Successful Farming, has undertaken to fill the long-felt need of a popular garden magazine, one that the farmer's wife would read while her husband read Successful Farming. Three numbers have been published, and Fruit, Garden and Home, as it is called, is fairly on its feet. The present circulation is 150,000 and the goal set for the second year is 500,000.

The third number carries an article on lawn building; one on peonies by Henry S. Cooper, whose article in The Review of August 10 fascinated many readers; two articles on the city backyard garden, and others about trees, vegetables and the like. The paper seems a bargain at its low price of three years (thirty-six copies) for $1. Mr. Meredith suggests that florists may wish to use it to educate their customers—a thought that will stimulate some, assuredly. The more the public knows about flowers and trees, the greater will be the business done by florists and nurserymen. Mr. Meredith deserves success and our aid in his new periodical.

FISH-OIL SOAP FOR MUMS.

We note in the issue of The Review for October 19, an inquiry by a gentleman who asks about mums being infested with a spider which resembles red spider. We lost our entire crop last year with this pest, and all the spraying with water we could do did not save our plants. The pest got started again this year and ruined some of our early blooms. In order to exterminate the pest we took some fish-oil soap, dissolved in water at the rate of one pound to eight gallons of water, and sprayed the plants thoroughly. We sprayed about four gallons of the solution to 1,000 plants. It was found necessary to make two separate applications about one week apart, but this did the trick and cleaned our stock so well that it came along finely. The blossoms were in no way injured, as we also sprayed some of the plants which were in bloom.

CRANE CORRECTS.

I have read with interest your report in The Review for October 12 of the recent meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club at the range of Stielow Bros., Niles Center, Ill., October 5. I wish, however, to call your attention to one incorrect statement therein; namely, I am reported as saying: "It is necessary to protect the boiler with fire brick in order to prevent its damage." Allow me to explain that there is absolutely no danger of damage to the boiler with a properly installed fuel oil-burning system, and the combustion chamber is not bricked for that purpose; a combustion chamber is provided to make use of the waste heat which would otherwise escape up the stack. Therefore, Mr. Brooks, of Morton Grove, Ill., was correct when he said that he had used fuel oil under his boilers without any change except a baffle. Fuel oil can be used at any time without a combustion chamber of brick; but the most economical use of fuel oil is obtained with such a combustion chamber, for the reason that even the waste heat is then utilized, producing a larger amount of heat with less fuel.

SOAK CYPRESS IN OIL.

We are about to build two houses, each 28x150. Preparatory to painting the wooden material, which includes gutter plates, ridge, sashbars, ventilators, etc., we took the trouble to soak the material in boiling-hot linseed oil. This was done in a trough and then the oil was allowed to drip into tubs. The oil was heated in an iron kettle. The work was done in the hot sun, during the late dry spell.

To our surprise, the wood absorbed slightly over forty-two gallons of the oil. This is hard to believe, but a fact, nevertheless. This may seem expensive, at $1.20 per gallon, but we are satisfied it is a gilt-edged investment. It is well known that cypress takes paint poorly. We find that one coat of paint makes a better showing than two coats the ordinary way. But what about the lasting benefits? After this experience, we should hesitate to buy ready-painted material. S. BULBS IN VIRGINIA.

I have recently returned from North Carolina, where I have established another bulb farm. We will plant about 300,000 bulbs. These will be chiefly narcissi and tulips. We have grown narcissi and tulips on our place at what is known as the Dismal Swamp, about ten miles from Portsmouth, Va., for nearly twenty years. I am safe in saying that we have the largest stock of narcissi in the south. Our fields include about twenty acres. Four acres are in Emperor and the remainder is in the following varieties: Empress, Victoria, Grande Princeps, Sir Watkin, Barrii Albatross conspicuous, King Alfred, Van Wavern's Giant, Gloria Mundi, Lucifer, Orange Phœnix, Silver Phœnix, Pheasant's Eye, five varieties; poeticus ornatus and many others. All of the narcissi grow as well in this muck soil as they do in Holland. The climate is mild and the bulbs get a long season of growth. They force well. It is my belief that they force better than the Holland-grown bulbs. I have tested them myself in the greenhouses and had other men try them, with the result that the production of blooms was 100 per cent.

In addition to the narcissi, we grow 200,000 gladioli, 5,000 tulips and 5,000 dahlias. We market the majority of the cut blooms, and ship them to Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and New York. We begin our cutting outdoors about March 1, and end with the narcissi about May 1. The same holds true with the tulips. We begin to ship the gladioli about June 1 and are still cutting at the middle of October, which gives you some idea of the length of our seasons. We can grow the bulbs as cheaply here as they can in Holland, saving the import charges. Being near Norfolk, Va., we can easily reach any part of the United States by freight. It is too hot for narcissi and tulips in Florida. I know that this is true from my own experience, with the exception of Paper Whites. A narcissus grown farther south than North Carolina will start to grow too soon when planted north of the Mason and Dixon line, and the late spring frosts will kill both the leaves and the buds. Of course, they will become acclimated in a year or two, but you will lose the cut blooms for that space of time. Last year we sold 200,000 cut blooms at Baltimore alone in two days. This was at Easter, however.

The monthly meeting of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society was held in the Masonic building Wednesday evening, October 18. Two prizes were offered. Thomas Wilson offered a prize of $3 for the best vase of chrysanthemums, assorted, grown outdoors, and Alexander Anderson offered a prize of $3 for the best collection of dahlias. It was announced that members are requested to send their entries for the fall exhibition, to be held at Music hall, for three days beginning November 1, to the secretary, E. W. Neubrand, not later than October 29.

Newton, Ia.—W. F. Behring has completed the erection of a new greenhouse, 32x120 feet, which will be used for carnations, and has installed a new boiler.

READY FOR WINTER

DRYING STRAWFLOWERS.

As the Californians Do It.

At occasional periods in the year the retail florist finds the flower market so tight that customers who will spend only a limited sum of money must be made satisfied with something other than high-priced cut flowers. For these emergencies a good many retailers dry some "everlastings," some of which they grow themselves, or purchase them from others in the trade. Intelligently used, these strawflowers—a word that is used to mean a good many different things, according to locality—are of assistance to the retailer, though it should never be forgotten that our principal business, and the only one that will bring us year-around profits, is the sale of fresh flowers and plants.

California growers of strawflowers dry quantities of them every autumn, and their methods will be interesting to others. Everyone has his own process. At first they let the sun and wind do the work, and some growers still believe in old Sol, but the more thoughtful dryers of strawflowers now use other methods. A few of the firms believe they have solved the secret of absolute preservation of colors, and nearly all of them were willing to tell the Florists' Review how the drying is done.

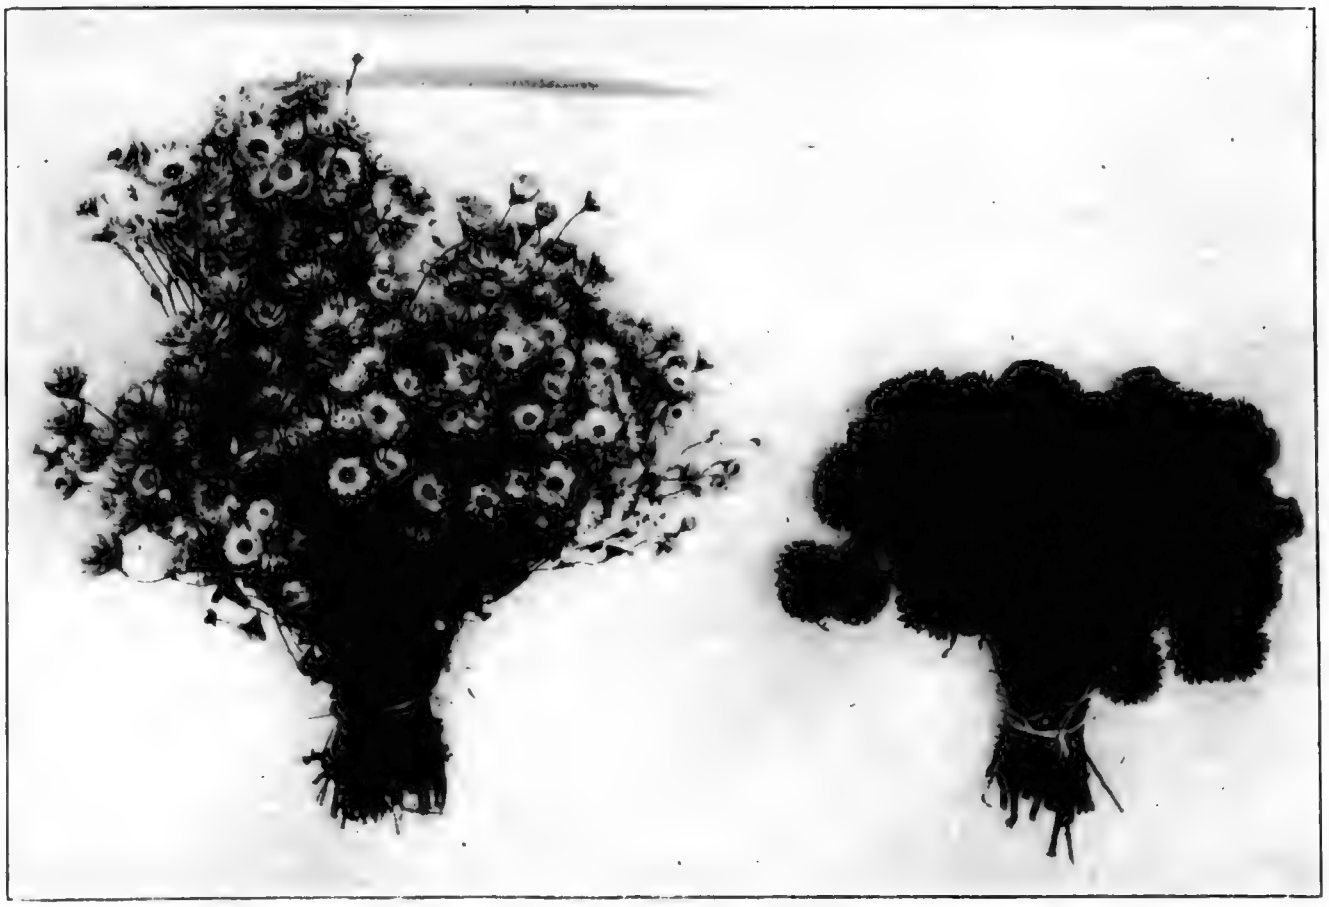
There is something to be thought of before the drying, however. First, good stock is essential. The next matter for care was described by P. D. Mortensen, San Francisco manager for the E. W. McLellan Co. This firm only dries a limited number of acrocliniums, but it handles a great many helichrysums.

Before Drying.

"It is essential to cut at the right time," said Mr. Mortensen. "If blooms of helichrysum are picked too late, they come wide open in the process of drying." He picked up a bunch of dried blooms which had opened till the surface had a flat appearance. "This was cut too late," was his comment. "The flowers opened up completely in the process of drying." Picking up another bunch of helichrysums, Mr. Mortensen indicated the pleasing half-opened appearance. In the cluster, however, were several buds slightly opened and not matured as to size. "As the helichrysums come in clusters, it is almost impossible to avoid picking some buds that are immature, but the secret of cutting is to get the cluster when the greatest number of flowers are at the right season—not mature enough to come wide open and yet sufficiently advanced to have their growth.

"Another important matter in drying is to prevent the strawflowers from becoming so completely desiccated that they are brittle. Here, we must always take into account the fact that they may have to undergo long shipments, possibly to dry climates or to altitudes where, if too dry, the flowers would crumble."

Different Kinds.



At the establishment of Enomoto & Co., several men were busily stripping the leaves from a quantity of freshly cut helichrysum. Some neglect this process, but most of the careful dryers of strawflowers strip the leaves before drying. As this firm handles all the kinds of strawflowers most used in California, an explanation was given of the most popular kinds. Helichrysum bracteatum, called in seed catalogues H. monstrosum, is, if one is precise, what is called strawflower, though the term is frequently loosely applied to cover others here named. Helichrysums are, in color, deep cardinal magenta and orange and old-gold. They lead in popularity, if dried so as to preserve the extreme richness of their coloring.

The next in popularity seems to be Statice sinuata, composed of lavender, white and yellow clusters, each growing from a parent stem. The lavender seems to lead the white and yellow statice in public estimation.

Statice latifolia is another of the many varieties of statice now grown in California. It is a feathery spray of grayish flowers and almost passes for some kind of delicate grass.

Acroclinium roseum is pink and white, and looks like a flower of the daisy family. If dried carefully, this is of exquisite appearance.

The Caspian statice, or Statice bellidifolia, is composed of the tiniest gray flowers, growing in sprays from one main stem. This is popular for putting with other strawflowers, to lend variety.

Statice Suworowii, called Russian cattail, is rapidly coming into favor because its pink, coral-like tassels are highly decorative.

What is sometimes called the pink helichrysum, rhodanthe, is also a favorite strawflower. It is not a helichrysum at all; in fact, it more nearly resembles acroclinium and, indeed, Acroclinium roseum and Rhodanthe Manglesii are called by Bailey respectively Helipterum roseum and Helipterum Manglesii. The statices, it might be mentioned for the botanically inclined, are reclassified as limoniums.

Some florists are now combining the foregoing strawflowers in French bouquets, such as those shown on this page, which are appealing quite strongly to tourists.

Drying Process.

As for the actual process of drying, Enomoto & Co. hang the flowers, head downward, in clusters in a dark drying room 16x20 feet. There is a stove in the room, and the place is heated at an even temperature for twenty-four hours. Care is taken that the heat is not sufficient to take all the life from the flowers and render them too brittle. At the same time, the heat must be sufficient to dry them quickly, for therein lies much of the art of preserving the colors.

H. K. Tanaka, manager of the United Flower & Supply Co., which specializes largely in strawflowers, said: "Most kinds of strawflowers can be dried by nature's heat or by artificial heat, such as furnace, steam or electricity. Although these flowers, especially helichrysums, when dried by natural heat, cannot for a short time be distinguished from those dried by special process, if those naturally dried are stored away, even in a dry place, for a certain period, their 'heads' develop gradually and show their stamens. This renders them unsuitable for any market." M. M.

GROWERS ADOPT CREDIT RULES.

November 1 the new credit rules of the New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers will become effective. All merchandise sold after that date will be on the new credit basis.

Under the new system all merchandise will be billed the first day of the month following delivery. One month thereafter, if the account remains unpaid, a statement will be rendered with a notice to the effect that, unless the account is paid within ten days, the customer will be reported as a delinquent. If the account remains unpaid for an additional ten days, the customer will be reported as a delinquent and his credit will cease, and sales will be made on a cash basis only until the account is reported paid.

The members of the association feel that this new credit ruling will be for the mutual benefit of the growers and their customers, and that it will establish uniformity in the matter of credit in their branch of the trade.

MUM SHOW

ST. LOUIS MUM SHOW.

November 7 to 12.

Announcement has previously been made of the St. Louis fall flower show and annual exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, to be held under the direction of the St. Louis Flower Show Association, the Chrysanthemum Society of America, the Missouri Horticultural Society, the Missouri State Florists' Association, the St. Louis Florists' Club and the St. Louis Garden Club, in the St. Louis Coliseum, November 7 to 12. The florists of the Missouri metropolis are putting forth strenuous efforts to make this an affair that will go down in history, not only in St. Louis, but in the florists' industry of the country. The war deprived St. Louis of the national flower show, on which the florists there had set their hearts, and they plan to make this affair of the size and scope that the other might have been.

The Chrysanthemum Society of America is offering seventeen special prizes, which are open to members of the society only. Any entry to these classes made by a person not a member must be accompanied by the membership fee to the society. In addition to these awards, there will be in the commercial section twelve classes for chysanthemum plants and forty classes for chrysanthemum cut flowers.

The rose section will contain twenty-eight classes, and the carnation section, a total of twenty-nine, of which eight are for undisseminated seedlings and sports section. The miscellaneous pot plant section will contain one class for cyclamens, three for begonias, three for berried plants, three for geraniums and four for ferns.

In addition to the awards mentioned above, there will be four awards offered for the retailers' exhibits the first day of the show, two the second day, one the third day, one the fourth day and one the fifth and last day.

Organizations Coöperating.

The officers of the Chrysanthemum Society of America include the following: President, E. H. Mann; vice-president, W. A. Rowe; treasurer, Charles H. Totty; secretary, Charles W. Johnson.

The officers of the St. Louis Florists' Club are as follows: President, F. A. Windler; vice-president, Oscar Ruff; secretary, J. J. Beneke; treasurer, W. C. Smith.

The officers of the St. Louis Flower Show Association are: Chairman, J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.; vice-chairman, H. G. Berning, St. Louis; treasurer, W. A. Rowe, Kirkwood, Mo.; executive secretary, J. J. Beneke, 1316 Pine street, St. Louis.

Hotels.

For the convenience of members of the trade anticipating a visit to St. Louis during the week of the show, a list of hotels has been compiled in order to assist in making reservations in advance. The hotel accommodations of St. Louis include 165 hotels and in addition a large number of apartments for transient guests.

OHIO TO HOLD MUM SHOW.

The annual Ohio State University chrysanthemum show will be held November 9 to 12, under the auspices of the Ohio State University Horticultural Society, at Columbus, O. A display of novelty chrysanthemums, exhibited for the first time by the breeders, will be of special interest. Demonstrations in plant diseases and insect control will be given. A display by the department of landscape architecture will also be a feature.

To the florist, it is a highly desirable thing to hold such a show, for its value is threefold: It is a joy to the eye of the visitors, of whom there were about 20,000 last year; it is an instructive study for the students who are training to enter the ranks of those who now grow these flowers; it serves as an advertisement for the florists who contribute, because, once having seen these good flowers, everyone appreciates their quality, and in the future will demand nothing but the best.

For information and exhibition space, those interested are requested to write M. R. Shanafelt, department of horticulture, Ohio State University, Columbus, O.

The Market.

Business has been brisk and stock has cleaned up readily. Roses are at their best and the price is fair. The new rose, Amelia Gude, is arriving in larger quantities, and moves fast because of its superior quality and good golden color.

The frost ruined the chances of a large supply of dahlias; there are still a few stragglers arriving, but with brown foliage and faded blooms.

Carnations are in better condition than they have been for some time. Easter lilies are to be had, but they are small. Mums are arriving more profusely and in better condition.

The first boxwood of the season arrived last week and moved readily. Miscellaneous stock, including delphiniums, gaillardias, cosmos and buddleia, is arriving in limited quantity and cleans up readily.

Various Notes.

The first joint meeting of the local growers' association and the wholesalers and retailers was held at the store of the William Murphy Co., October 18, and was well attended. The purpose of the meeting was to devise ways and means to advertise days that are not good flower days at present. R. C. Witterstaetter, who is president of the growers' association, presided at the meeting. He gave an extensive talk on how things of this kind were being done in different cities. It was decided, after a short discussion, to form a retailers' association to coöperate with the growers in this plan. After the meeting there was an entertainment, with a buffet luncheon, served at the expense of the growers' association.

The William Murphy Co. is receiving some excellent Amelia Gude and Angelus roses from Fred H. Lemon & Co., Richmond, Ind.

H. W. Sheppard has returned home from the F. T. D. convention at Baltimore. He stopped off at several points in the east.

C. E. Critchell is receiving some of the few dahlias that were protected from the frost of last week, from Charles Pfeiffer's Sons, who have a way of keeping the frost off that has worked well.

L. H. Kyrk reports the first pansies of the season and also some large white mums, both of which he is receiving from George Klotter, of Price Hill.

Peter Weiland has again opened his wholesale house for the season. It was closed all summer. He is shipping mums and carnations from his greenhouses at Newcastle, Ind.

Fred Gear returned from the F. T. D. convention to a busy store, which, of course, was a welcome sight.

T. J. Hardesty's window has been most attractive lately.

Julius Baer and family have returned from their trip to the F. T. D. convention and tour through the east.

The visitors who graced this town with their presence last week were Mrs. Percy Hayes, of Pensacola, Fla.; G. J. Brandt, of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia.; Julius Dilloff, of Wertheimer Bros., New York, and Joseph R. Goldman, of Middletown, O.

Irvin Gebhardt, of the Tromey Flower Shop, reports a good week in funeral work. Since remodeling his place, he can handle twice the business he did last year. G. H. K.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Committee Meeting.

An all-day meeting of the publicity committee was held at the administration offices of the society, 43 West Eighteenth street, New York, Monday, October 9. There were present: S. S. Pennock, president of the S. A. F., Philadelphia, Pa.; Henry Penn, chairman, Boston, Mass.; John Young, secretary, New York; C. C. Pollworth, Milwaukee, Wis.; George Asmus, Chicago, Ill.; Major P. F. O'Keefe, Boston; F. H. Traendly, New York; and, for part of the time, Vice-president-elect Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; H. D. Brookins, Buffalo, N. Y., representing the Western New York Publicity Association.

The reading of the minutes of the meeting held in Indianapolis was dispensed with, transcripts of same having been circulated among the committee.

The secretary was instructed to wire the F. T. D., in session at Baltimore, requesting that that body take action at its meeting in regard to its usual appropriation to the campaign fund.

As all subscriptions were now to be used entirely for national advertising, the expenses of the campaign being assumed by the S. A. F., at the recommendation of the society's board of directors, which was approved at the Kansas City convention, the secretary reported that the balance available at that date for immediate advertising contracts amounted to $10,107.75.

It had been arranged that in conjunction with this meeting a conference with representatives of allied florists' organizations interested in publicity for flowers be held, but, after discussion, Chairman Penn recommended that in compliance with a suggestion of J. F. Ammann, such conference be postponed until the next day and be held in Baltimore.

Considerable time was spent in a discussion in regard to methods of conducting the campaign which might lead to a better understanding of its objects and, consequently, a better support. A plan suggested by Mr. Pennock, termed a "multiple membership plan," one looking to a sustaining membership arrangement, was considered at great length, but no action was taken upon it. While nothing definite came out of the discussion, a lot of ideas resulted, some of which may take material form before the close of the year.

A series of advertisements in national magazines, to appear during December, was decided upon, and an appropriation of $8,500 was made to cover the expense. It was also arranged that copies of the advertisements, one of which was to be a page in colors, should be mailed to each subscriber, also to each member of the F. T. D.; this body was giving very material support to the campaign. The magazines decided upon were the following: Vogue—one page, color, December 15; Vanity Fair—one page, December; House and Garden—one page, December; Collier's—one column, first issue, December; Life—one column, second issue, December; Outlook—one column, first issue, December; quality group, comprising Atlantic, Century, Harper's, Review of Reviews, Scribner's, World's Work, all for December. These papers represented an actual circulation of nearly 2,500,000, with a reading circulation of over ten million readers.

The meeting adjourned, to be reconvened in Baltimore next day.

At Baltimore.

The committee went into adjourned session at Baltimore, at the Emerson hotel, at 6 p. m. Tuesday, October 10. There were present Henry Penn, chairman; President S. S. Pennock, Secretary John Young, George Asmus, J. Fred Ammann, C. C. Pollworth, Philip Breitmeyer, president F. T. D.; Major O'Keefe, F. H. Traendly, treasurer Allied Florists' Trade Association of New York; Paul R. Klingsporn and H. V. Swenson, of the Allied Florists' Association of Chicago; H. D. Brookins, of the Western New York Publicity Association, and Irwin Bertermann, president-elect of the S. A. F.

Chairman Penn gave an account of the proceedings of the committee at the meeting in New York and the decisions there made.

The session was mainly devoted to a discussion of possibilities in regard to the institution of an emblem which could be used by subscribers to the campaign fund and members of supporting organizations to distinguish them as supporters of the campaign. As a result two or three plans were forthcoming, which are to be worked out, with the idea of adopting one which will meet general approval.

A committee, composed of Major O'Keefe, S. S. Pennock, Henry Penn, George Asmus and Secretary John Young, was appointed, to act upon all the recommendations made at the two meetings, such committee to hold a preliminary meeting, if possible, at St. Louis, during the flower show there, which is to open November 7. It is expected that by this time plans under consideration by the committee will have developed sufficiently to make such a meeting advisable.

Public notice is hereby given that as no objection has been filed against the registration of the new coleus, San Jacinto, by C. E. Majors, Denison, Tex., the same has become complete.

National Flower Show, 1924.

George Asmus, chairman of the national flower show committee, has authorized the calling of a meeting of this committee, to be held in the Hollenden hotel, Cleveland, O., Monday, November 6, at 10 a. m. The business of the meeting will be to discuss the prospects for holding a national flower show in 1924. Any city having the required facilities and willing to offer inducements for the holding of such an exhibition should communicate with the secretary at once. This is an important matter, and should have prompt attention, as invitations coming before this meeting will have full consideration at an adjourned meeting of the committee to be held at St. Louis, November 7.

RAMSBURG VARIETY.

G. S. Ramsburg, of Somersworth, N. H., is widely known by reason of the excellent varieties of snapdragons which he has introduced, to the trade's profit. But those are not the only things Mr. Ramsburg has raised. His pride is divided between snapdragons and his sturdy grandchildren, of whom he has two, shown with him in the illustration on this page.

BUILDING A BULB CELLAR.

Will you inform us as to how we can best build a bulb cellar? We have thought of using stone or cement for the walls. The temperature gets as low as 25 or 30 degrees below zero here.

S. G.—Mich.

Without knowing something regarding the needs and surroundings, it is not possible to offer any definite suggestions.

If anything in the way of a workroom, office or show room is needed, it would be advisable to erect them with a cellar which could be used for bulbs. The wall should certainly be of concrete, unless a stone wall will be cheaper. While the use of 8-inch concrete blocks will have some advantages, if one is able to construct the cellar without employing masons, a grout wall will be cheaper. A form should be constructed, using 2x4s for the framework and covering with boards so as to form two wooden walls eight inches apart, with the boards on the inside. Carefully brace the 2x4s at the top and bottom, to prevent spreading. They should be eighteen inches apart and the boards should only be nailed enough to hold them in place. Three or four feet from the bottom of the wall, in order to prevent the springing of the forms, fasten them in place by a loop of No. 12 or No. 14 wire around the opposite 2x4s. When the forms are ready, they should be so arranged that when the space between is filled with grout it will form an 8-inch wall of concrete. If it is to serve for the cellar of a building, it will be desirable to have it about seven feet deep.

If heat is provided in the rooms overhead, so that frost will be kept out, no particular attention need be given to the construction of the floor, which will form the ceiling or roof of the cellar, but if the building is only for storage purposes, a double floor with paper between the layers will be necessary and the floor should be covered with straw or packing material during the winter, to make sure that the cellar does not freeze.

If no other buildings are needed, it will be entirely feasible to construct a pit to be used as a bulb cellar. Unless the subsoil is porous, so that it will not hold water, it is important that the surroundings be such that the cellar can be drained by means of tile.

A convenient width for such a pit is about twelve feet, outside measurement, and the length may be as desired. If made wider than this, the roof will need to be reinforced carefully or supported by means of pillars.

A height of six feet to the under side of the roof will be found satisfactory for the walls. Construct the walls the same as suggested for the cellar and cover them with a roof of concrete. This should be arched, or even-span, with a rise of one foot between the side walls and the ridge, or peak. The grout for the roof should be eight inches thick at the walls and five inches at the top. Of course, a form will be required for the support of the roof until it has set. Care should be taken that the walls are well banked, so that they cannot spread, and if the pit is more than twelve feet long, there should be a tie rod across the house every seven or eight feet. Run them straight across about four inches above the top of the vertical walls on the inside of the pit.

Unless the pit can be built into a hillside, the excavation should be about five feet deep, using the soil taken out to cover the sides and roof to the depth of about two feet. The opening should be in one end, with a frame for a double door. There should also be stairs and a covered gangway.

Arrangements should also be made for the ventilation of the pit in the fall and spring, in addition to what can be secured through the doorway. This may be through an opening in the end opposite the door, or by means of tiles set in the roof. By opening the ventilators at night and closing them during the day, the temperature in the pit may often be reduced as much as 10 degrees, if the pit in the fall or spring is too warm.

A good grout may be made from two parts of sand that will pass through a quarter-inch sieve, four parts of gravel —from one-fourth inch to two inches— and one part of cement. It is important that about the above proportions be used and, although ordinary bank gravel often furnishes the correct mixture, it is safer to sift it and make sure. Thoroughly mix the cement, sand and gravel, and after adding water enough so that it will show as water on the surface of the particles, shovel it over until an even mixture has been formed. Then shovel into the forms and if the right amount of water has been used every space will be filled without tamping.

Sometimes it is not possible to procure good gravel, but a supply of field stones ranging from two to four inches in diameter is available. In that case, make a grout with one part of cement and from two to four parts of sand and fine gravel, and, after pouring it into the forms to a depth of six inches, throw in as many stones as can be forced down into the grout by tamping.

Care should be taken that the walls are laid out square and plumb and that they are well braced and tied. If the grout is mixed in the proportions suggested and moistened so that it will run, there should be no difficulty in making a permanent wall.

For convenience in storing the bulbs, racks with shelves about one foot apart should be built along the walls to hold the flats, pots, pans, etc., in which the bulbs are started. As a rule, these shelves should not have a greater width than three feet. L. H. T.

GROWERS AT UPTOWN SHOW.

Dinner at Sovereign Hotel.

A dinner party of about fifty, composed of members of the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago, their wives and guests, enjoyed the repast at the Sovereign hotel, Kenmore and Granville avenues, Thursday evening, October 19. At its conclusion a short meeting was held, just long enough to listen to words of thanks from members of the Uptown Chicago exposition management, who praised Peter Pearson highly for his efforts to make the flower exhibit a success. Then the growers went in a body to the Broadway armory to see the show. The flower display there surpassed that of last year, and many florists who had not attended the growers' dinner were seen in attendance at the show.

New Roses.

Conspicuous were the exhibits of new roses. A vase of Commonwealth, to be sent out next spring by A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., was much admired. The coloring is exceedingly attractive and the blooms stood up splendidly after having been five days in the crowded hall.

Earl H. Mann had brought up from Richmond, Ind., three new roses from the E. G. Hill Co. America appeared in all its glory; it appeals to the growers the more they see of it. Amelia Gude was shown, and also a vase of the French yellow rose, Souvenir de Claudius Pernet, or, as it has been abbreviated in this country, Claude Pernet. This is the first time this celebrated variety has been exhibited in a show in this city and the inspection it received was correspondingly keen. Its color, a pure clear yellow in these blooms, was admired, but its thorns were not. Undoubtedly this will be a notable acquisition to the rose garden, but its use for forcing will be limited.

From St. Joseph, Mo., Dr. B. W. Murphy brought blooms of Annie Laurie, the sport of Ophelia which the Stuppy Floral Co. will send out next spring in accordance with the plans of the late Frank Stuppy. Its color is deeper than its parent and it is said to be more productive.

Local Exhibits.

There were, in addition to these and to the exhibits from local growers mentioned in the report in last week's Review, roses from the Wendland & Keimel Co., Elmhurst, and from the Weiss-Meyer Co., Maywood. Dramm Bros., Elmhurst, showed Golden Rule. Wiltgen & Sons took the award for carnations and showed several vases of seedlings in addition. V. Bezdek, Gross Point, exhibited a vase of 100 carnations. Other exhibits of roses and carnations were made, as well.

Henry Wehrmann, Maywood, showed two vases of pompons. One was especially admired, that of Mrs. H. Harrison, a delicate blush tint, with which Mr. Wehrmann has been particularly successful by disbudding it. He secures blooms on long, straight stems, which are greatly in demand in the wholesale market, especially at this season. A vase of pompons was shown by George J. Ball, of Glen Ellyn, also.

Flowers were contributed to the show by the E. C. Amling Co., Poehlmann Bros. Co., Kennicott Bros. Co., Zech & Mann and the A. L. Randall Co., which also loaned baskets for the exhibit.

Retailers who staged exhibits were Clody, Stollery Bros., Birchwood Florist, Schiller and the George Wittbold Co., not Henry Wittbold & Son, as stated last week.

A motion picture was made of the flower show October 20, which will be shown as a news feature in Chicago theaters.

The cups which were given as premiums will be presented to the winners at the next meeting of the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago, to be held November 16, at the Hotel Randolph.

BADGERS TO MEET.

The annual meeting of the Wisconsin State Florists' Association will be held November 2, at Milwaukee. The headquarters and meeting place will be at the Public Museum and Library building, where the fall flower show, under the auspices of the Milwaukee Florists' Club, will be staged at the same time.

Besides the election of officers and selection of a meeting place for the summer meeting, a lively meeting has been arranged for. A banquet, with dancing, will mark the end of the first day, while the second day, Friday, November 3, will be devoted exclusively to the entertainment of visiting members and their families.

The committee went into adjourned session at Baltimore, at the Emerson hotel, at 6 p. m. Tuesday, October 10. There were present Henry Penn, chairman; President S. S. Pennock, Secretary John Young, George Asmus, J. Fred Ammann, C. C. Pollworth, Philip Breitmeyer, president F. T. D.; Major O'Keefe, F. H. Traendly, treasurer Allied Florists' Trade Association of New York; Paul R. Klingsporn and H. V. Swenson, of the Allied Florists' Association of Chicago; H. D. Brookins, of the Western New York Publicity Association, and Irwin Bertermann, president-elect of the S. A. F.

Chairman Penn gave an account of the proceedings of the committee at the meeting in New York and the decisions there made.

The session was mainly devoted to a discussion of possibilities in regard to the institution of an emblem which could be used by subscribers to the campaign fund and members of supporting organizations to distinguish them as supporters of the campaign. As a result two or three plans were forthcoming, which are to be worked out, with the idea of adopting one which will meet general approval.

A committee, composed of Major O'Keefe, S. S. Pennock, Henry Penn, George Asmus and Secretary John Young, was appointed, to act upon all the recommendations made at the two meetings, such committee to hold a preliminary meeting, if possible, at St. Louis, during the flower show there, which is to open November 7. It is expected that by this time plans under consideration by the committee will have developed sufficiently to make such a meeting advisable.

Public notice is hereby given that as no objection has been filed against the registration of the new coleus, San Jacinto, by C. E. Majors, Denison, Tex., the same has become complete.

National Flower Show, 1924.

George Asmus, chairman of the national flower show committee, has authorized the calling of a meeting of this committee, to be held in the Hollenden hotel, Cleveland, O., Monday, November 6, at 10 a. m. The business of the meeting will be to discuss the prospects for holding a national flower show in 1924. Any city having the required facilities and willing to offer inducements for the holding of such an exhibition should communicate with the secretary at once. This is an important matter, and should have prompt attention, as invitations coming before this meeting will have full consideration at an adjourned meeting of the committee to be held at St. Louis, November 7.

RAMSBURG VARIETY.

G. S. Ramsburg, of Somersworth, N. H., is widely known by reason of the excellent varieties of snapdragons which he has introduced, to the trade's profit. But those are not the only things Mr. Ramsburg has raised. His pride is divided between snapdragons and his sturdy grandchildren, of whom he has two, shown with him in the illustration on this page.

BUILDING A BULB CELLAR.

Will you inform us as to how we can best build a bulb cellar? We have thought of using stone or cement for the walls. The temperature gets as low as 25 or 30 degrees below zero here.

S. G.—Mich.

Without knowing something regarding the needs and surroundings, it is not possible to offer any definite suggestions.

If anything in the way of a workroom, office or show room is needed, it would be advisable to erect them with a cellar which could be used for bulbs. The wall should certainly be of concrete, unless a stone wall will be cheaper. While the use of 8-inch concrete blocks will have some advantages, if one is able to construct the cellar without employing masons, a grout wall will be cheaper. A form should be constructed, using 2x4s for the framework and covering with boards so as to form two wooden walls eight inches apart, with the boards on the inside. Carefully brace the 2x4s at the top and bottom, to prevent spreading. They should be eighteen inches apart and the boards should only be nailed enough to hold them in place. Three or four feet from the bottom of the wall, in order to prevent the springing of the forms, fasten them in place by a loop of No. 12 or No. 14 wire around the opposite 2x4s. When the forms are ready, they should be so arranged that when the space between is filled with grout it will form an 8-inch wall of concrete. If it is to serve for the cellar of a building, it will be desirable to have it about seven feet deep.

If heat is provided in the rooms overhead, so that frost will be kept out, no particular attention need be given to the construction of the floor, which will form the ceiling or roof of the cellar, but if the building is only for storage purposes, a double floor with paper between the layers will be necessary and the floor should be covered with straw or packing material during the winter, to make sure that the cellar does not freeze.

If no other buildings are needed, it will be entirely feasible to construct a pit to be used as a bulb cellar. Unless the subsoil is porous, so that it will not hold water, it is important that the surroundings be such that the cellar can be drained by means of tile.

A convenient width for such a pit is about twelve feet, outside measurement, and the length may be as desired. If made wider than this, the roof will need to be reinforced carefully or supported by means of pillars.

A height of six feet to the under side of the roof will be found satisfactory for the walls. Construct the walls the same as suggested for the cellar and cover them with a roof of concrete. This should be arched, or even-span, with a rise of one foot between the side walls and the ridge, or peak. The grout for the roof should be eight inches thick at the walls and five inches at the top. Of course, a form will be required for the support of the roof until it has set. Care should be taken that the walls are well banked, so that they cannot spread, and if the pit is more than twelve feet long, there should be a tie rod across the house every seven or eight feet. Run them straight across about four inches above the top of the vertical walls on the inside of the pit.

Unless the pit can be built into a hillside, the excavation should be about five feet deep, using the soil taken out to cover the sides and roof to the depth of about two feet. The opening should be in one end, with a frame for a double door. There should also be stairs and a covered gangway.

Arrangements should also be made for the ventilation of the pit in the fall and spring, in addition to what can be secured through the doorway. This may be through an opening in the end opposite the door, or by means of tiles set in the roof. By opening the ventilators at night and closing them during the day, the temperature in the pit may often be reduced as much as 10 degrees, if the pit in the fall or spring is too warm.

A good grout may be made from two parts of sand that will pass through a quarter-inch sieve, four parts of gravel —from one-fourth inch to two inches— and one part of cement. It is important that about the above proportions be used and, although ordinary bank gravel often furnishes the correct mixture, it is safer to sift it and make sure. Thoroughly mix the cement, sand and gravel, and after adding water enough so that it will show as water on the surface of the particles, shovel it over until an even mixture has been formed. Then shovel into the forms and if the right amount of water has been used every space will be filled without tamping.

Sometimes it is not possible to procure good gravel, but a supply of field stones ranging from two to four inches in diameter is available. In that case, make a grout with one part of cement and from two to four parts of sand and fine gravel, and, after pouring it into the forms to a depth of six inches, throw in as many stones as can be forced down into the grout by tamping.

Care should be taken that the walls are laid out square and plumb and that they are well braced and tied. If the grout is mixed in the proportions suggested and moistened so that it will run, there should be no difficulty in making a permanent wall.

For convenience in storing the bulbs, racks with shelves about one foot apart should be built along the walls to hold the flats, pots, pans, etc., in which the bulbs are started. As a rule, these shelves should not have a greater width than three feet. L. H. T.

GROWERS AT UPTOWN SHOW.

Dinner at Sovereign Hotel.

A dinner party of about fifty, composed of members of the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago, their wives and guests, enjoyed the repast at the Sovereign hotel, Kenmore and Granville avenues, Thursday evening, October 19. At its conclusion a short meeting was held, just long enough to listen to words of thanks from members of the Uptown Chicago exposition management, who praised Peter Pearson highly for his efforts to make the flower exhibit a success. Then the growers went in a body to the Broadway armory to see the show. The flower display there surpassed that of last year, and many florists who had not attended the growers' dinner were seen in attendance at the show.

New Roses.

Conspicuous were the exhibits of new roses. A vase of Commonwealth, to be sent out next spring by A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., was much admired. The coloring is exceedingly attractive and the blooms stood up splendidly after having been five days in the crowded hall.

Earl H. Mann had brought up from Richmond, Ind., three new roses from the E. G. Hill Co. America appeared in all its glory; it appeals to the growers the more they see of it. Amelia Gude was shown, and also a vase of the French yellow rose, Souvenir de Claudius Pernet, or, as it has been abbreviated in this country, Claude Pernet. This is the first time this celebrated variety has been exhibited in a show in this city and the inspection it received was correspondingly keen. Its color, a pure clear yellow in these blooms, was admired, but its thorns were not. Undoubtedly this will be a notable acquisition to the rose garden, but its use for forcing will be limited.

From St. Joseph, Mo., Dr. B. W. Murphy brought blooms of Annie Laurie, the sport of Ophelia which the Stuppy Floral Co. will send out next spring in accordance with the plans of the late Frank Stuppy. Its color is deeper than its parent and it is said to be more productive.

Local Exhibits.

There were, in addition to these and to the exhibits from local growers mentioned in the report in last week's Review, roses from the Wendland & Keimel Co., Elmhurst, and from the Weiss-Meyer Co., Maywood. Dramm Bros., Elmhurst, showed Golden Rule. Wiltgen & Sons took the award for carnations and showed several vases of seedlings in addition. V. Bezdek, Gross Point, exhibited a vase of 100 carnations. Other exhibits of roses and carnations were made, as well.

Henry Wehrmann, Maywood, showed two vases of pompons. One was especially admired, that of Mrs. H. Harrison, a delicate blush tint, with which Mr. Wehrmann has been particularly successful by disbudding it. He secures blooms on long, straight stems, which are greatly in demand in the wholesale market, especially at this season. A vase of pompons was shown by George J. Ball, of Glen Ellyn, also.

Flowers were contributed to the show by the E. C. Amling Co., Poehlmann Bros. Co., Kennicott Bros. Co., Zech & Mann and the A. L. Randall Co., which also loaned baskets for the exhibit.

Retailers who staged exhibits were Clody, Stollery Bros., Birchwood Florist, Schiller and the George Wittbold Co., not Henry Wittbold & Son, as stated last week.

A motion picture was made of the flower show October 20, which will be shown as a news feature in Chicago theaters.

The cups which were given as premiums will be presented to the winners at the next meeting of the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago, to be held November 16, at the Hotel Randolph.

BADGERS TO MEET.

The annual meeting of the Wisconsin State Florists' Association will be held November 2, at Milwaukee. The headquarters and meeting place will be at the Public Museum and Library building, where the fall flower show, under the auspices of the Milwaukee Florists' Club, will be staged at the same time.

Besides the election of officers and selection of a meeting place for the summer meeting, a lively meeting has been arranged for. A banquet, with dancing, will mark the end of the first day, while the second day, Friday, November 3, will be devoted exclusively to the entertainment of visiting members and their families.

CARNATIONS

CARNATION CUTTINGS.

At about what date should carnations be cut back to have the cuttings ready to take during January, and at what stage of growth are the shoots selected for this purpose? A. G.—O.

The time required by the different varieties of carnation to produce a cutting after being topped depends a good deal on the type of growth. A variety that starts the young breaks quickly, even before the bud is set, will require less time than a variety that does not start the breaks until after the bloom is cut. You will not go far wrong if you stop the shoots from which you aim to take your cuttings right away. You will have to go over them several times, to catch those that were too short to top the first time you went over them, so as to get a good, big batch when you are ready to begin propagating. Up to early February, we allow the shoots to become of fairly good size, so that we can take off the cutting without taking off the heel. By leaving the first few leaves on the plant, we later secure a lot of fine breaks, which make as fine cuttings as anyone could wish for. Later in the season, we take off the entire shoot, but cut away the heel in preparing the cutting for the sand. Any healthy young shoot from a strong plant, when large enough to make a proper cutting, will prove satisfactory as a cutting. Some growers prefer certain types of cuttings, differing a good deal in their preferences. We find that more depends on the culture later on, provided the cuttings were from a healthy plant and not too undersized. A. F. J. B.

CARNATIONS WILTING.

Kindly inform me what is wrong with my carnations. They are bedded in cement benches in straight muck soil. The plants are growing and they look strong and healthy, but the stems are weak and the blooms open only about one-half the way. As soon as the color begins to show in the blooms, these hang their heads and have a sleepy or wilted appearance. I have maintained a night temperature of about 50 degrees. C. R. W.—Ind.

Your carnations are probably suffering from the effects of the recent excessive heat. You do not state how long they have been in the benches, nor the amount of growth they have made. If the plants were benched shortly before the hot spell set in, even though they had taken hold well, and there were numerous shoots that were just ready to run up when the plants were dug, these shoots would come ahead in the heat and bloom. Under such conditions, the stems would probably be weak, and the blooms inferior and sleepy. Under favorable weather conditions, they would be much better, though not so good as those produced from shoots that had received no check after starting into flower. By benching carnations in July, we are able to top back these first shoots and avoid this early crop of inferior blooms. There is no gainsaying the fact, however, that really good carnation blooms cannot be produced during such hot spells as we went through last month. Now that cooler weather has set in, they will come better.

If the expected improvement does not materialize, in spite of the fact that the plants are growing, then it will be time to give attention to the physical condition of the soil. It may lack in humus, and in that case a few light applications of fertilizer and a light mulch may prove beneficial. Do not feed them, however, unless the plants are thoroughly established. A. F. J. B.

FAIRY RING ON CARNATIONS.

Kindly inform me, if possible, what is troubling my carnations. I have picked the dry leaves several times and have sprayed them several times, but the disease seems to come back on them. I have sprayed them for thrips, but the trouble may be something else. I have mailed you a few specimen leaves.

H. J. T.—Mo.

There is both rust and fairy ring on the leaves you sent. The rust would probably gradually disappear under favorable cultural conditions, but the fairy ring will engage your close attention for some time to come. You will notice the little brown or purplish rings about one-eighth to three-sixteenths of an inch in diameter with a small dot in the center. These are the fairy ring spots. Pick off every leaf thus affected, and then spray the plants thoroughly with Bordeaux mixture. Go over the plants repeatedly, picking off the newly affected leaves, keeping the plants covered with the Bordeaux. The next few weeks, before winter weather sets in, will offer the best atmospheric conditions for fighting this disease. Fairy ring, like most other leaf-spots, is usually started during periods of excessive humidity. Sometimes they start in the field during a wet spell in midsummer, but more often during the first few weeks after benching, while frequent syringing is resorted to to prevent wilting. Cool weather and a dry, bracing atmosphere will help you in combating this disease. Run a little steam in the houses, ventilate them on cool nights and paint one of the pipes with equal portions of lime and sulphur mixed with water.

LILIES FROM SEED

GROWING LILIES FROM SEED.

Florists who have preserved their copies of The Review will be able to refer back to the issues dated September 1 and September 8, 1921, in which Dr. David Griffiths, of the United States Department of Agriculture, wrote concerning the production of Easter lilies from seeds. These two articles dealt with the subject in every detail. Acting upon the advice therein set forth, C. L. Humphrey, Zanesville, O., undertook to grow some of these bulbs in the way outlined, and The Review has received two fine bulbs sent in by Mr. Humphrey, who speaks of his experience in growing the bulbs from seeds in the following manner:

"The only soil available in our plot at the time the bulbs were planted out, a year ago, was a heavy clay, which was not exactly suited to bulb growing, but, even so, it produced satisfactory results. The largest bulb obtained from the trial was eleven inches in circumference. Some of the plants had twelve little bulbs on their stems.

"This year, however, we had some light soil available for the planting, and we are certain that the crop planted this fall will produce even better results than that planted last year. All of the bulbs in the field produced a crop of blooms this summer, while some of them made as many as seven bulbs apiece.

"The seeds are sown January 1, and when the seedlings are large enough, they are potted in 2-inch pots. When the weather gets so that you can plant in the field, plant them outdoors. That crop will make some blooms. Dig the bulbs in the fall, pot the largest of these and they will bloom again for Easter. These bulbs are not like the Lilium giganteum; you can plant these out in the field and they will grow, bloom and produce the small bulblets, which in turn will make blooming-sized bulbs after being separated and grown outside for one season.

"When the seedling stock is dug the first fall, the smallest bulblets are replanted in the field, but the bulbs which are to winter outside must be set into the soil from four to six inches deep, and after the ground is frozen they should be mulched. These plants will produce blooms and will furnish some bottom bulbs for pots and smaller bulblets on the stem for field planting. Each planting should go into soil upon which no lilies have been grown for a few seasons previously."

REPELLING ROSE PEST

CONTROLLING ROSE MIDGE.

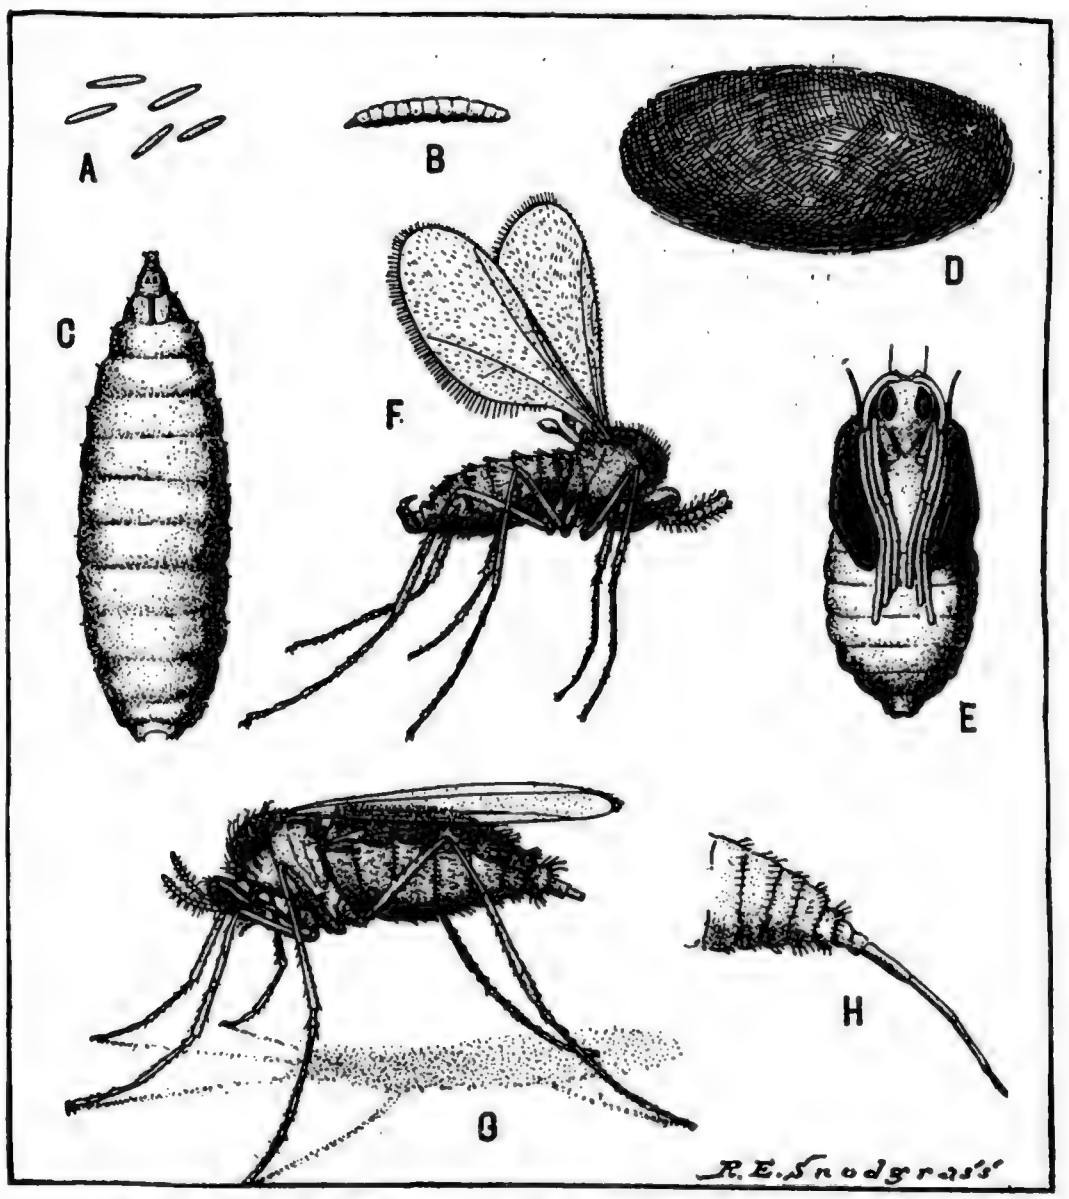
By Fumigants and Mulch.

Judging from the number of inquiries regarding the control of the rose midge which reach the office of The Review, it is evident that this dread pest is again working promiscuously at its nefarious depredations and is making serious inroads on the rose crops of many establishments.

If the life cycle of the rose midge is thoroughly understood at the outset, it will not be nearly so difficult to work out an intelligent campaign of extermination against the pest as it would be to go at it in a hit-or-miss fashion. This insect passes through four stages during its life: First, the egg; second, the larva; third, the pupa; fourth, the adult fly. The reason why the rose midge in the larval stage is so exceedingly difficult to destroy will become apparent to the reader when it is made clear to him that the adult female deposits her eggs, by means of her long ovipositor, as shown at H in accompanying cut, beneath the sepals, or the leaf divisions of the calyx, and also between the folded leaves of the leaf buds, where they hatch in about two days in ordinary greenhouse temperature. Let the reader imagine, then, the hungry young larva, or maggot, snugly hidden inside the bud of the plant, sucking the juices from the unopened petals of the buds, and he will have an excellent mental depiction of how the work of destruction is wrought by this pest in blasting the blooms while they are still in the bud. He will also realize how almost impossible or ineffective any method of exterminating the pest at this stage of its life must be, and that, in order to combat the insect intelligently, it is necessary to destroy the life of the adult by fumigation or by preventing the larva from pupating, which it does by entering the soil under the plants after it has emerged from the bud of the plant, where it spins a silken cocoon around itself. In this way the life cycle of that particular generation is prevented from being completed, and, of course, no more eggs will be forthcoming from it.

Where Eggs Are Hatched.

As stated above, the female midge, with her long ovipositor, deposits her eggs in the center of the buds. These eggs hatch in about two days and the larvæ begin to suck the juices of the petals, which action causes the leaves and petals to dry up and turn black. The larvæ become full-grown in about a week, after which they emerge from their protected hiding place and fall to the ground, digging themselves into the ground and spinning a silken cocoon around themselves, in which they remain for about seven days—during the cold weather they remain all winter. The adult fly then emerges, immediately proceeds to lay eggs, in the case of the female, for the next generation and then dies a natural death.



Surveying this cycle of the Neocerata rhabdophaga, or rose midge, it is seen that the life of the pest from the time the eggs are deposited until the adult emerges from the ground is about fourteen or sixteen days, but it is during the larval stage that the damage is done to the plants. It is entirely possible that the generations may overlap somewhat also. The larvæ have been observed to be especially injurious during two periods of the year; namely, from the latter part of May to the early part of July and from early September to November. Injury from this source has rarely been reported during the winter months.

Methods of Control.

From the foregoing discussion it is seen that the insect must be destroyed either by fumigation, by preventing the larvæ from entering the soil and pupating, or by planting another crop on the soil for a year or two and in this way starving the pests out. Since the rose is the only plant attacked by this insect, the most certain way to get rid of it is, as already mentioned, to plant the infested houses with some other crop for a year. When the roses are replanted, care should be taken that clean plants are obtained from a district where the midge is not prevalent. If it is not desired to rotate crops, the houses may be thoroughly cleaned in midwinter, and during December and January, when the pupæ are in the soil. All plants should be removed and destroyed and the soil completely changed. As a further precaution, any rubbish beneath the benches should be removed and the floors of the benches thoroughly sprayed with some insecticide, such as a twenty per cent kerosene emulsion. Although the above operations are expensive, nevertheless, they undoubtedly prove valuable when the greenhouses have become infested with the pest.

Fumigation with hydrocyanic acid gas is of benefit when done early in March, to kill the emerging flies of the first generation and at a time of the year when the growth of the maggots is slow. In the summer this treatment is less effective, as the gas cannot be used oftener than every two or three days without damage to the plants, and in these intervals many of the flies have an opportunity to emerge and deposit eggs. The gas is not sufficient to kill the maggots, which are well protected within the buds, unless used at such a strength that injury to the plants will result.

Fumigating the houses during the period of activity, from May to July and from September to November; covering the soil of the beds with one-half an inch of tobacco dust or slaked lime, in order to prevent the insect from entering the ground and completing the third cycle of its life; fumigating the houses with tobacco stems, placing a heap every fifty or sixty feet, in order to destroy the full-grown flies and thus prevent them from depositing their eggs; using the kerosene spray mentioned above, are the accepted remedies. The fumigations will, of necessity, have to be done consistently and kept up for a good many nights in order to be effective. The illustration on page 37 shows the rose midge in all of its various stages of life, also the male and female adult fly. The figures in the cut are greatly magnified and represent the cycle of life of the rose midge in succession as follows: At A are the eggs, at B the young larva, at D the silken cocoon which the larva spins for itself in the ground, at E the pupa; at F the adult male is represented, while at G the female is depicted. H is the ovipositor of the female with which she deposits her eggs in the buds, and C is B magnified about thirty diameters.

Rose Midge in Its Various Stages, Magnified Thirty Times.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS.

The United States civil service commission, Washington, D. C., has made announcement of an open competitive examination for the federal civil service, in which the members of the trade should be particularly interested. The announcement as received at the office of The Review contains a list of several positions in the horticultural service of the government which are open. Both men and women are eligible to compete. The receipt of applications will close November 21, 1922. Application blanks may be obtained from the secretary of the United States civil service board, Washington, D. C.

AROUND THE HUB

W. W. Edgar Co.

No matter when you go to the busy plant factory of the W. W. Edgar Co., there is much of interest to be noted, and you will never find the hustling and wide-awake manager, Herman H. Bartsch, idle. At the time of a recent visit he was found busy superintending the storing away of large quantities of Dutch bulbs, which were being placed either in frames or outdoors. When stored in concrete frames they are covered with several inches of soil, and on this recently potted French and otaksa hydrangeas in thousands are standing. The so-called prepared hyacinths and tulips for early forcing have been in the soil for a considerable time, and the balance of the 200,000 are being placed in pans as rapidly as time will permit. Bulbs stored outdoors are given a covering of eight or ten inches of soil. Over this is stretched army waterproof canvas sheets, which are found to answer admirably.

About 120,000 Darwin tulips are to be forced here this season. Some of the leaders are Bartigon, William Copeland, Pride of Haarlem, Farncombe Sanders, William Pitt, Princess Elizabeth, Calliope and Matchless. Of the early tulips, favorites are Vermilion Brilliant, Prosperity, Yellow Prince, Keizerskroon, General De Wet, Murillo, Prince of Orange, Tea Rose, Couleur Cardinal, Thomas Moore, Mon Tresor and Rose Luisante. Of the narcissi, Cervantes is favored as an early, while Golden Spur, Von Sion and Victoria form most of the others. The comparatively high price of King Alfred and the fact that it is not an early bloomer make it difficult to sell it at a profitable price in pans.

A large batch of formosum bulbs was noted in frames; also, 2,000 candidums; 8,000 giganteums are due shortly for Easter. The greenhouses here are stocked to repletion with a fine and varied lot of stock. Specially attractive is a house of oranges, heavily fruited. The fruits are extra large and the foliage a rich, dark color; a large batch from last year that had been planted outdoors had just been potted. A splendid lot of Erica melanthera cut from through the summer promised to be in full bloom for Christmas, and Cleveland and Orange Queen solanums are seen in large numbers.

There were several thousands of cyclamens, better than for some years in quality, in from 4-inch to 8-inch pots. The recent intense heat had somewhat adversely affected those most recently potted, but those well established were in splendid condition. Many thousands of seedlings were in flats for next year's crop. Melior is the leading begonia here, and several thousand were in fine shape. Some Cincinnati, Peterson and English large-flowered varieties are also grown.

Poinsettias filled one or two boxes and were in splendid condition. Mr. Bartsch is growing a large number in square boxes in place of pans. They are painted dark green and the plants appear to thrive much better in them than in pots, while the boxes cost 6 cents each less than the pans. There is also considerable labor saved in pot washing when the boxes are used. A large batch of standard oranges are something of a novelty.

One or two beds are devoted to carnations and chrysanthemums, mostly to supply home trade. Two large specimens of Acacia pubescens, grafted by Jackson Dawson in 1915 in 2½-inch pots, are now planted out and have stems three or four inches thick and twelve feet high. These will before long carry a wealth of flowers. Dracænas, ferns, rubber plants, palms, and much other decorative material fill several houses and there are no blank spaces to be found. Mrs. W. W. Edgar, head of the firm, with two daughters, is just home from a three months' European trip, and was busy in the office, once more gathering up the threads of business. A fine supply of coal is on hand. Most of it cost $11.50 per ton delivered, but values are somewhat lower now.

Frank Edgar.

Not far from the place of the W. W. Edgar Co. and on higher ground is Frank Edgar's establishment. The houses here are large and well adapted for pot culture. There are 3,000 begonias in excellent condition, among which Melior leads, with Cincinnati and Peterson next in favor. A few Lorraine and Turnford Hall are also grown. Poinsettias are grown in large numbers and are of high-class quality in all sizes.

Nephrolepis plants fill one large house. Varieties grown are Macawii, Teddy, Jr., Norwood and Roosevelt. The old Boston is not now grown. A batch of 2,000 Kurume azaleas, which had been planted out in a frame for the summer, are being potted in 5-inch pots and are nice, bushy stock, full of flowers and buds. Many cuttings are seen in the propagating beds, and some had already been potted. A house of Golden Glow mums had just been cut over. Another house contained Bonnaffon, Rager and other late-flowering varieties, as well as some pompons. About 8,000 French and otaksa hydrangeas had been potted in tubs, and there was a large batch of solanums. About 4,000 cinerarias are grown to flower from January onward.

Cyclamens for some reason have done wonderfully well here. Unfortunately, mite this year has surely damaged the plants and it has been necessary to throw many away. Even constant dipping does not, apparently, stop the trouble. On the contrary, Mr. Edgar thinks it harms plants more than it benefits them. The most skillful growers of cyclamens are up against this mite from time to time, and as yet no real cure has been devised for it. The crippling of the flowers and buds and distortion of foliage are unmistakable signs of its presence.

Wollrath & Sons.

At one time the establishment of Wollrath & Sons was well known as the F. R. Mathieson rose greenhouses. Now no bench crops whatever are grown. All available space is occupied by pot plants; in fact, in some houses they are growing practically two or three tiers deep on shelves, elevated on pots and on the benches proper. A father and three sons compose the firm, and they are hustlers from the word go and first-class growers of everything they handle. Several houses are filled with begonias; there are about 2,500 all told, mostly in 4-inch to 5-inch pots, and splendid bushy stock they are. Melior leads in number. Then comes Cincinnati and Peterson. There is a small batch of Peerless propagated here, handsome plants with deep bronzy foliage.

There are 5,000 cyclamens in from 5-inch to 10-inch pots, all in perfect health. Selling of plants in flower commenced September 1. Cyclamen seed is not sown until September 1; yet now many plants fill 10-inch pots and no poor plants could be seen. Poinsettias are grown in large numbers and in a variety of sizes. A batch of 4,000 herbaceous calceolarias were just being potted in 4-inch pots for late winter planting.

Ferns are a leading specialty here. Asplenium Nidus-avis is done beautifully. There are about 100,000 plants, running from pricked-off seedlings to large specimens. Large quantities of table ferns are grown, such varieties as Pteris rivertoniana, Wilsonii, Mayii, Distinction, Cyrtomium Rochfordianum and Aspidium Tsus-sinense being the leaders, although adiantums and other sorts are also grown. About 40,000 small ferns are usually carried in stock.

Of nephrolepis the varieties grown

are Macawii, Teddy, Jr., Norwood, Roosevelt and Boston. Large batches of Dracæna fragrans and D. Massangeana, crotons, Pandanus Veitchii, ficus and other foliage plants are grown, and it would be hard to find a poor plant in the lot. A large batch of the pretty little South African violet, Saintpaulia ionantha, was just coming into flower.

Over 12,000 hydrangeas were in pots for the coming season and about 100,000 narcissi. Tulips were being placed in pans. A little later 8,000 giganteum bulbs will be potted and several thousand rambler roses are yet to be taken in hand. A new propagating house, 10x100, with two side benches, will be completed this month, and early next month begonia propagation in it will commence in earnest. The houses here are not at all modern, but it would not be easy to find an establishment with a finer grade of pot plants than are grown by Wollrath & Sons, in Waltham.

PAPER WHITE ROOTS ROTTEN.

All the roots of our Paper White narcissi in pots are rotten. When they are planted, they make fine new roots; then they rapidly rot. We kept the plants in a cool house when first planted and then moved them into a light house. What is the trouble with them?

A. F. C.—Ala.

It is not easy, without seeing your plants and knowing the conditions under which they are grown, to determine the trouble. Paper Whites, as a rule, are considered among the simplest of plants to grow and flower, and they rarely cause any trouble. Have you used any manure, especially of chemical nature, in the compost or have you applied any to stimulate the plants at any time?

The writer is of the opinion that there must either be something wrong with the soil or something has been applied to cause the roots to decay. Paper Whites, after potting or after being placed in flats, can be safely stood outdoors or in a coldframe and left there until danger from frost threatens. There should have been nothing in a cold greenhouse distasteful to them. Of course, an excessive water supply would harm them and might cause root rot.

C. W.

FORCING HARDY PERENNIALS.

Will you give me a little information about forcing hardy perennials? Should they be rested a few weeks outside?

All of the hardy herbaceous perennials should be allowed to complete their growth and have a few weeks at least of rest before flowering. None of them should be started before the early part of January. A good freezing is beneficial to all plants to be forced.

DELPHINIUM BELLADONNA.

Kindly furnish me with directions for the forcing of Delphinium Belladonna under glass. H. & K.—Pa.

If it is desired to flower the delphiniums in March, the seeds should be sown in October in flats, maintaining a carnation temperature. When of sufficient size, the seedlings are potted singly, and are kept growing well up to the light. It is preferable to transfer them to a raised bench containing not over four inches of soil rather than allow them to remain on the solid beds. Should it so occur that raised benches are not available, the plants will do remarkably well in boxes six inches deep. A box 6x12x36 will hold twelve to fourteen plants. Great care must be exercised in watering the delphiniums in the dead of winter, in order to prevent damping off. Cold drafts must also be avoided, because delphiniums are readily susceptible to attacks of mildew. Little difficulty will be experienced in growing delphiniums if you are faithful to these directions. Place the plants ten inches apart each way in the benches. They grow much more vigorously and carry much better spikes under glass than outdoors. Plants will grow all the way from two and one-half to five feet high. It is best to cut out the terminal stalk and to allow the plants to become more branched. Once in active growth, they need an abundant water supply and either liquid manure or a mulch of cow or sheep manure. The soil should be a rich, sandy loam which is exposed to the sunlight.

TAKING COLEUS CUTTINGS.

When should coleus cuttings be taken in order to have salable plants for spring trade? L. J. S.—Pa.

Coleus cuttings for spring sales can be taken any time from February to the beginning of May. Coleuses root quickly and make salable stock more quickly than any other bedding plants, provided you have good heat. C. W.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

MILLER E. CARTER.

THOSE members of the trade who attended the S. A. F. convention at Kansas City, particularly if they visited the store of the W. L. Rock Flower Co., remember the cheerful courtesy of Miller E. Carter. Among the Kansas City trade, he is known as W. L. Rock's "right bower." His fitness for that responsible place he has demonstrated, though his qualifications would be vouched for simply by his selection for his job by Mr. Rock, whose ability to pick good men is well known. At Baltimore, visitors at the F. T. D. convention had proof of Mr. Carter's artistic ability in the shape of a wreath of celosias, an exceedingly handsome piece, aside from its novelty.

in order to prevent the insect from entering the ground and completing the third cycle of its life; fumigating the houses with tobacco stems, placing a heap every fifty or sixty feet, in order to destroy the full-grown flies and thus prevent them from depositing their eggs; using the kerosene spray mentioned above, are the accepted remedies. The fumigations will, of necessity, have to be done consistently and kept up for a good many nights in order to be effective. The illustration on page 37 shows the rose midge in all of its various stages of life, also the male and female adult fly. The figures in the cut are greatly magnified and represent the cycle of life of the rose midge in succession as follows: At A are the eggs, at B the young larva, at D the silken cocoon which the larva spins for itself in the ground, at E the pupa; at F the adult male is represented, while at G the female is depicted. H is the ovipositor of the female with which she deposits her eggs in the buds, and C is B magnified about thirty diameters.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS.

The United States civil service commission, Washington, D. C., has made announcement of an open competitive examination for the federal civil service, in which the members of the trade should be particularly interested. The announcement as received at the office of The Review contains a list of several positions in the horticultural service of the government which are open. Both men and women are eligible to compete. The receipt of applications will close November 21, 1922. Application blanks may be obtained from the secretary of the United States civil service board, Washington, D. C.

AROUND THE HUB

W. W. Edgar Co.

No matter when you go to the busy plant factory of the W. W. Edgar Co., there is much of interest to be noted, and you will never find the hustling and wide-awake manager, Herman H. Bartsch, idle. At the time of a recent visit he was found busy superintending the storing away of large quantities of Dutch bulbs, which were being placed either in frames or outdoors. When stored in concrete frames they are covered with several inches of soil, and on this recently potted French and otaksa hydrangeas in thousands are standing. The so-called prepared hyacinths and tulips for early forcing have been in the soil for a considerable time, and the balance of the 200,000 are being placed in pans as rapidly as time will permit. Bulbs stored outdoors are given a covering of eight or ten inches of soil. Over this is stretched army waterproof canvas sheets, which are found to answer admirably.

About 120,000 Darwin tulips are to be forced here this season. Some of the leaders are Bartigon, William Copeland, Pride of Haarlem, Farncombe Sanders, William Pitt, Princess Elizabeth, Calliope and Matchless. Of the early tulips, favorites are Vermilion Brilliant, Prosperity, Yellow Prince, Keizerskroon, General De Wet, Murillo, Prince of Orange, Tea Rose, Couleur Cardinal, Thomas Moore, Mon Tresor and Rose Luisante. Of the narcissi, Cervantes is favored as an early, while Golden Spur, Von Sion and Victoria form most of the others. The comparatively high price of King Alfred and the fact that it is not an early bloomer make it difficult to sell it at a profitable price in pans.

A large batch of formosum bulbs was noted in frames; also, 2,000 candidums; 8,000 giganteums are due shortly for Easter. The greenhouses here are stocked to repletion with a fine and varied lot of stock. Specially attractive is a house of oranges, heavily fruited. The fruits are extra large and the foliage a rich, dark color; a large batch from last year that had been planted outdoors had just been potted. A splendid lot of Erica melanthera cut from through the summer promised to be in full bloom for Christmas, and Cleveland and Orange Queen solanums are seen in large numbers.

There were several thousands of cyclamens, better than for some years in quality, in from 4-inch to 8-inch pots. The recent intense heat had somewhat adversely affected those most recently potted, but those well established were in splendid condition. Many thousands of seedlings were in flats for next year's crop. Melior is the leading begonia here, and several thousand were in fine shape. Some Cincinnati, Peterson and English large-flowered varieties are also grown.

Poinsettias filled one or two boxes and were in splendid condition. Mr. Bartsch is growing a large number in square boxes in place of pans. They are painted dark green and the plants appear to thrive much better in them than in pots, while the boxes cost 6 cents each less than the pans. There is also considerable labor saved in pot washing when the boxes are used. A large batch of standard oranges are something of a novelty.

One or two beds are devoted to carnations and chrysanthemums, mostly to supply home trade. Two large specimens of Acacia pubescens, grafted by Jackson Dawson in 1915 in 2½-inch pots, are now planted out and have stems three or four inches thick and twelve feet high. These will before long carry a wealth of flowers. Dracænas, ferns, rubber plants, palms, and much other decorative material fill several houses and there are no blank spaces to be found. Mrs. W. W. Edgar, head of the firm, with two daughters, is just home from a three months' European trip, and was busy in the office, once more gathering up the threads of business. A fine supply of coal is on hand. Most of it cost $11.50 per ton delivered, but values are somewhat lower now.

Frank Edgar.

Not far from the place of the W. W. Edgar Co. and on higher ground is Frank Edgar's establishment. The houses here are large and well adapted for pot culture. There are 3,000 begonias in excellent condition, among which Melior leads, with Cincinnati and Peterson next in favor. A few Lorraine and Turnford Hall are also grown. Poinsettias are grown in large numbers and are of high-class quality in all sizes.

Nephrolepis plants fill one large house. Varieties grown are Macawii, Teddy, Jr., Norwood and Roosevelt. The old Boston is not now grown. A batch of 2,000 Kurume azaleas, which had been planted out in a frame for the summer, are being potted in 5-inch pots and are nice, bushy stock, full of flowers and buds. Many cuttings are seen in the propagating beds, and some had already been potted. A house of Golden Glow mums had just been cut over. Another house contained Bonnaffon, Rager and other late-flowering varieties, as well as some pompons. About 8,000 French and otaksa hydrangeas had been potted in tubs, and there was a large batch of solanums. About 4,000 cinerarias are grown to flower from January onward.

Cyclamens for some reason have done wonderfully well here. Unfortunately, mite this year has surely damaged the plants and it has been necessary to throw many away. Even constant dipping does not, apparently, stop the trouble. On the contrary, Mr. Edgar thinks it harms plants more than it benefits them. The most skillful growers of cyclamens are up against this mite from time to time, and as yet no real cure has been devised for it. The crippling of the flowers and buds and distortion of foliage are unmistakable signs of its presence.

Wollrath & Sons.

At one time the establishment of Wollrath & Sons was well known as the F. R. Mathieson rose greenhouses. Now no bench crops whatever are grown. All available space is occupied by pot plants; in fact, in some houses they are growing practically two or three tiers deep on shelves, elevated on pots and on the benches proper. A father and three sons compose the firm, and they are hustlers from the word go and first-class growers of everything they handle. Several houses are filled with begonias; there are about 2,500 all told, mostly in 4-inch to 5-inch pots, and splendid bushy stock they are. Melior leads in number. Then comes Cincinnati and Peterson. There is a small batch of Peerless propagated here, handsome plants with deep bronzy foliage.

There are 5,000 cyclamens in from 5-inch to 10-inch pots, all in perfect health. Selling of plants in flower commenced September 1. Cyclamen seed is not sown until September 1; yet now many plants fill 10-inch pots and no poor plants could be seen. Poinsettias are grown in large numbers and in a variety of sizes. A batch of 4,000 herbaceous calceolarias were just being potted in 4-inch pots for late winter planting.

Ferns are a leading specialty here. Asplenium Nidus-avis is done beautifully. There are about 100,000 plants, running from pricked-off seedlings to large specimens. Large quantities of table ferns are grown, such varieties as Pteris rivertoniana, Wilsonii, Mayii, Distinction, Cyrtomium Rochfordianum and Aspidium Tsus-sinense being the leaders, although adiantums and other sorts are also grown. About 40,000 small ferns are usually carried in stock.

Of nephrolepis the varieties grown

are Macawii, Teddy, Jr., Norwood, Roosevelt and Boston. Large batches of Dracæna fragrans and D. Massangeana, crotons, Pandanus Veitchii, ficus and other foliage plants are grown, and it would be hard to find a poor plant in the lot. A large batch of the pretty little South African violet, Saintpaulia ionantha, was just coming into flower.

Over 12,000 hydrangeas were in pots for the coming season and about 100,000 narcissi. Tulips were being placed in pans. OBITUARY

Alexander S. Halstead.

Alexander S. Halstead, formerly head of the St. Clair Floral Co., Belleville, Ill., died October 20 at his home on Sycamore street, that city, after a lingering illness. The deceased was president of the St. Louis Florists' Club in 1898. For the last ten years he had not been active in business. He resigned as a member of the Florists' Club ten years ago.

Besides his wife, he leaves a son, Coester, and two daughters to mourn his loss. The funeral was held Sunday, October 22, at 8:30 a. m. from his home at Belleville. The remains were taken to Mascoutah, Ill., for burial in the family lot. Many florists attended, including all those in Belleville. Many beautiful floral emblems were sent, among them being one from the St. Louis Florists' Club. J. J. B.

Mrs. Harold H. Blossom.

Hosts of friends of the late Jackson Dawson, for many years superintendent of the Arnold Arboretum, Jamaica Plain, Mass., will regret to hear of the sudden death of his elder daughter, Minnie, at Dedham, Mass., October 19. Married a number of years ago to Harold Blossom, at that time with the firm of Olmstead Bros., landscape architects, Mrs. Blossom had lived a happy married life. For some time Mr. Blossom had been a landscape architect on his own account and had a large and growing business.

Mrs. Blossom before her marriage operated the Eastern Nurseries, Hollis-ton, Mass., quite successfully. These nurseries were acquired by the Dawson family and are still operated by members of the family. The deceased leaves a husband and four children to mourn her loss, as well as a sister and four brothers, one of whom, J. Frederick Dawson, is one of the firm of Olmstead Bros.

Funeral services were held at Dedham in St. Mark's church October 22, when a large number of mourning friends and relatives attended. There was a wealth of floral tributes.

Charles D. Mills.

Charles D. Mills, president of Mills the Florist, Inc., Jacksonville, Fla., died October 11, after an operation for appendicitis had been performed the preceding day. Mr. Mills had been ill for several weeks, but, in view of his usual robust health, those who missed him from his place of business did not consider his illness serious.

Mr. Mills was born at Greenville, N. H., May 19, 1862. He married Miss Etta Parmenter. About forty-one years ago Mr. and Mrs. Mills moved to Florida and bought a beautiful estate in Panama Park, which was named Sunnyside. Here a florists' business was started in a modest way.

When the business had become established, Mr. Mills moved to Jacksonville. The enterprise was markedly successful there and was later incorporated as Mills the Florist, Inc. The store was located on Forsyth street until two years ago, when it was moved to the present location on West Duval street. Just before his death Mr. Mills organized the Mills Seed Co., at a location a few doors from the flower shop.

Mr. Mills was active in religious and fraternal work. He was trustee and steward of the Snyder Memorial Methodist Episcopal church. He was a member of the board of directors of the Jacksonville Y. M. C. A. He was a charter member of Palmetto Camp No. 3, Woodmen of the World, an organization in which he took great interest, and at the time of his death he was sovereign watchman of the sovereign grand camp, an office he had held for a number of years. He was a thirty-second degree Mason, an Elk, a charter member of the Jacksonville Rotary Club and a life member of the Society of American Florists.

Besides his widow, Mr. Mills is survived by a brother and a sister, who reside in Massachusetts.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The expected severe frost arrived last Thursday night, and, with subsequent frosts, practically all outside flowers are killed, and the market supply devolves upon the cuts from the greenhouses. Outside stock was cut close to the danger point, so that the market was well supplied throughout Friday, October 20. Saturday, October 21, the demand was largely dependent upon indoor stock, and there was a buoyancy reflected in higher prices for roses and other flowers. The Monday, October 23, market, with a light supply, was dull and listless, and prices in staple lines went down remarkably. Of course, the usual explanation is offered: The public has had cheap flowers for a long period and has not realized that conditions necessarily have changed and perhaps it will require a week or two before the realization will become complete. Many varieties of small chrysanthemums, not affected by light frosts, are still arriving, but everything else has gone.

Roses Monday, October 23, were in light supply, but met a demand somewhat lighter. American Beauty is in heavy supply, but the quality is rather poor, and specials are graded largely into the inferior class. Hybrid teas show improved quality, with a lighter cut, due to cooler weather; yet, clearances are difficult with a slow demand.

Carnations are increasing in supply, but suffer from the general small demand. Some growers are sending in flowers of really good quality.

The market is abundantly supplied with cattleyas, with really good flowers not overplentiful. The call for them is rather limited, and prices remain the same as for the last two or three weeks. Oncidiums are a little more plentiful and meet a fair demand. Cypripediums, too, are in greater supply, but daily clearances are not sufficient to absorb all arrivals.

Chrysanthemums dominate the market, and the arrivals increase daily. All the early varieties are in, and some advanced midseason sorts are putting in an appearance. There is little fluctuation in price noticeable. Good pompons and singles are on the short side, but there is a good supply of mediocre stock.

The supply of violets is increasing, and the cooler weather has had a good effects on the quality.

White lilies are rather too plentiful for the demand. Valley drags a little. Gardenias are in rather small supply.

Various Notes.

We are getting into show time. The show of the Morris, County, N. J., Gardeners' and Florists' Society takes place October 26 and 27; the Horticultural Society of New York will hold its fall show November 9 to 12, at the American Museum of Natural History; and the American Institute's dates for its annual fair are November 8 to 10. The Nassau County Horticultural Society will hold its annual exhibition at Glen Cove, L. I., November 2 and 3.

According to the record of real estate transactions, Stumpp & Walter Co., the Barclay street seed company, has purchased the building it has occupied for some time. The property comprises a 5-story building, on a plot 51x101.

The executive committee of the American Dahlia Society will meet during the conflicting dates of the New York flower shows, and at their meeting matters pertaining to the society's recent show will be settled.

The Allied Florists' Trades Association, of New York, has resumed its newspaper advertising, some of its advertisements in prominent newspapers being quite notable last week.

Among the visitors to the city last week were Mrs. Victor Bergman, of Chicago; George Pollworth, of Milwaukee, and Julius Baer, of Cincinnati.

J. H. P.

ELYRIA, O.

A visit to the greenhouse at South Lorain is enough to convince one that a change has taken place. Six months ago Tony Carek, who for many years worked for his father, Frank Carek, decided to enter business on his own account. He purchased the business at South Lorain from Mrs. Beingesser and he, with the help of his good wife, has steadily worked to put the place in order. The place looks good and Mr. Carek reports a steady increase in business. Mr. and Mrs. Carek visited New London October 21.

Paul Wainwright, who works for the L. C. Hecock Co. spent his spare time last summer at home growing flowers for the Cleveland market. The beauty spot of his garden was his Celosia chrysanthe flora, grown from the famous Bryson Ayres strain. Mr. Wainwright hopes to do more with his garden next year.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carek, who for many years have resided on Twenty-second street, have moved into the house adjoining their greenhouses, at Penfield Junction.

Mr. and Mrs. William Jones, of Lorain, were Ashtabula, O., visitors October 21 and 22.

J. E. Tulea, of Lorain, spent Sunday, October 22, with the trade in Cleveland.

Miami, Fla.—Gordon Gardens, Inc., 2926 North East Second avenue, specializes in ornamental plants and palms, but this year has planted a considerable quantity of gladioli. It is expected to ship the cut flowers to northern markets in February, March and April. Hugh H. Gordon is president of Gordon Gardens. P. B. Mangus is manager.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

CARING FOR MUM STOCK.

As the various chysanthemums are cut down, some disposition must be made of the stock plants to be carried over for another year. Too often they are badly neglected, with the result that suitable cuttings in quantity are not obtainable when wanted. Where the weather is not too severe, a good, light coldframe is an ideal place for carrying over the stock plants; in fact, the writer has thus wintered them successfully for years where winter minimums much below zero are often recorded. If, however, you have a small, narrow house, no matter how small the glass may be, with side benches, it is as near the ideal place for mum stock as possible. The temperature can be kept a little above freezing and in such a house the plants will send up a veritable thicket of thick, fleshy shoots toward spring. The writer often sees stock stood below benches in flats or pots subjected to constant drip, and it is impossible to get good cuttings on such plants. Care for the stock plants well and they will well repay you later.

STORING DAHLIAS.

Frost has now cut down dahlias in nearly all sections, and the plants should be cut down to within six inches of the ground, lifted and well dried in the sun before storing. They winter well on shelves in a cool cellar. A cellar that will winter potatoes, one that is free from dampness but without fire heat, is suitable. If you grow only a few, a simple method of storage is to wrap each clump of bulbs in newspapers and store them head downwards in empty barrels. The paper will help exclude light frosts. Another plan is to pack the bulbs in barrels and, in lieu of wrapping them in paper, to lay sawdust among the bulbs; the sawdust absorbs moisture and also excludes cold.

Probably your gladioli are already lifted; if not, take care of the small bulblets, particularly in kinds which you find are popular, and, when they are dry, store them in boxes or paper bags. These bulblets can be sown in spring in drills, like garden peas, and many will flower the same season and prove especially useful, coming into season, as they do, when the larger-flowering bulbs have passed. Gladioli should be cut down within a couple of inches of the bulb. Dry shelves are an ideal storage place for them.

PLANTS FOR STANDARDS.

While fuchsias, heliotropes and geraniums are probably the best known and most popular greenhouse plants that are grown in pots or standards, there are a number of others which can be successfully treated in this way. Lantanas do exceedingly well and make excellent dot plants for bedding. Their somewhat disagreeable odor militates against their use on the piazza or in the house. White marguerites will make fine standards for next May, even if started now. The various hydrangeas may be treated in this way also. Standard freesias are effective and last Christmas the writer saw some excellent standard Jerusalem cherries. There is considerable work attached to the growing of standards, which the purchaser invariably appreciates by being willing to give an enhanced price for them.

STANDARD GERANIUMS.

While speaking of standard, or tree-form, flowering plants for pot culture, it is well to remember that zonal geraniums are among the best. Select good, strong cuttings of whatever variety you want as standards. Pick off all the flowers and side shoots and keep the plants tied up as straight and secure as possible; maintain about 50 degrees temperature at night, which will start the plants nicely, although they can be grown cooler. There are not so many standard geraniums grown as could be profitably sold, and they are really a novelty in many places. Try a few. They will look well in the store or show room and, if you ever make exhibits at your local flower show, nothing could be better for your group than nicely flowered standard geraniums.

FUCHSIAS.

Fuchsias are old-fashioned flowers, but they retain their popularity. Not adapted to all sections of the United States and doing best in those parts which border on the oceans, where they can obtain a little shade and where summer torridity is not excessive, they appeal, nevertheless, to many who live in the drier and warmer sections, in which their successful culture is not easy. As a boy and young man, the writer well remembers seeing many magnificent pyramidal specimens, especially at exhibitions in the west of England. This large type of plant is not much in favor now, but standards are largely used in bedding and as greenhouse plants. Fuchsias are satisfactory, provided they are not in the full sun, and few other plants bloom more profusely over a long season. They make lovely basket plants, and now is the time to take cuttings for this purpose. Put three or four plants in a 10-inch basket and, if they are planted in January or February, they will make a luxuriant growth and be in excellent shape for Memorial day.

The writer has used fuchsia baskets on piazzas and in pergolas for years, with most satisfactory results. Moss is used next the wires and a rich compost fills the remainder of the space. A ring of moss, mixed with soil, runs around the top of the basket, so as to make a liberal saucer for water. There are several fuchsias of trailing habit, although practically all varieties make good basket plants. Where standards are wanted, cuttings should be kept growing and staked up without pinching until they reach the requisite height; then the tops should be removed. Always keep standards staked securely while they are growing.

Fuchsias, before long, will begin to lose their foliage and, when they are in pots, this is the time gradually to decrease the water supply. For partial shade in the garden, planted out in large pots, tubs or baskets, fuchsias are most satisfactory flowers. For window and piazza boxes they are also good, and, as a rule, the darker varieties are most popular, and single varieties are far more popular than double.

HARD-WOODED PLANTS.

If you want to increase your stock of such popular ericas as melanthera, mediterranea, cupressina and persoluta alba, the present is a suitable time to put in a batch of cuttings. Short cuttings rubbed off with a heel are the best and will root more quickly than those which are cut below a joint. A cool propagating house that will root carnations is suitable for ericas. Camellias can be rooted in the same way, but they are slower than ericas. There is an increasing call for camellias and, as none can be imported, there would seem to be a good field here for those who have plants from which to get propagating material. Azalea indica and the new race of Kurumes, destined before long to be great commercial favorites, can also be rooted now. Use short-jointed heel cuttings wherever possible. Boronia elatior, B. megastigma, myrtles, metrosideros; the hardy ericas, embracing the Scotch heathers; Daphne indica and other hard-wooded subjects can be put in sand now. Daphnes may take six to nine months to root, sometimes a year, but others will root in a shorter period. Use sand which is well drained and, if it is lacking in porosity, add some fine charcoal or fine coal ashes to it.

MIGNONETTE.

Where mignonette is grown, there is usually more or less trouble from the green caterpillar, the larva of the white cabbage moth, which is abundant and destructive under glass at this season. Careful hand picking gives the best results. The earliest spikes on mignonette are of small value and are best pinched back. Good spikes come as the weather grows cooler. Mignonette is a cool-loving plant and is always at its best in midwinter, when temperatures are low. A temperature in winter of 40 to 42 degrees is ample at night. Solid beds grow better mignonette, on the whole, than benches. Bottom heat is harmful to mignonette, although helpful to many crops in benches.

WHY is collecting one's bills like a motion to adjourn? Because it's always in order.

SUCCESSFUL men in any line of business are prone to a malady called "swell head." "Pride goeth before a fall," and those who prosper should try to preserve their sense of proportion.

IT isn't so much the price of coal as the execrable quality of much of it that gets the growers' goat. Will someone tell us how we can, individually, do something to right the situation?

THERE is every reason to believe the spring demand will consume all the good bedding stock that is ready in time, but don't sacrifice quality to obtain quantity. Grow it good and ask a fair price.

THE Italian ruscus arrived several weeks later than usual this year, with the result that those who dye this material the Christmas red are working to capacity, with every prospect that the demand will exceed the supply.

BUSINESS is good in practically all departments of the trade, many going so far as to say that, while prices are lower than in the boom years, the volume of merchandise moved is exceeding all previous records. The one general complaint is of slow collections and it seems probable that some time must elapse before ground lost can be recovered.

RETAILERS who like to attract the public's eye by timely window displays could assist in a worthy cause, while they are advertising flowers, by featuring the annual "roll call" of the American Red Cross, which extends from Armistice day to Thanksgiving day. No doubt, your local chapter will be glad to furnish posters and other accessories for your window.

WE are free to admit The Review is not infallible, but in a majority of the cases in which an error creeps into an advertisement it develops that it was printed exactly as the advertiser wrote. Every week the proofreaders correct several manifest errors, as where an advertiser writes "per 1,000" when obviously he meant to write "per 100." Sorry all such errors cannot be caught, but it would help some if advertisers always would read what they have written before mailing it.

THE Editor's desk has been adorned, and likewise scented, by bunches of violets from Frey & Frey, Lincoln, Neb. They lived up to their name of Frey's Fragrant.

MOST sheep are white, but there is an occasional black one. So it is with florists. There is no question that those who are deliberately bad deserve to have the spotlight turned on them.

FLORISTS who take orders for home planting should lend a hand to boost national Tree Planting week, October 27 to November 3. The activity of nurserymen in behalf of this event is told in the Nursery Trade Department.

THE annual meeting of the Tennessee State Florists' Association will be held at Nashville, November 13 and 14, and is expected to be fully up to the standard set by this live body in preceding years. Railroad tickets should be routed from the C. S. A. show at St. Louis home by way of Nashville.

LYCOPODIUM does not enjoy its old-time popularity as a Christmas green, used in its natural state, but nevertheless the supply is being readily consumed at advanced prices. In the old days, when bouquet green was a big Christmas seller, it was worth in the Wisconsin woods around 2 cents per pound. At present the market in the woods is 6½ to 7 cents per pound, and most of the stock coming to the railroad is shipped to the florists' supply concerns which "prepare" natural foliage. In the old days lycopodium was only perpetuated in case of oversupply at Christmas; the dyeing and fireproofing were only a means of preventing loss, but at present the principal market is through the perpetuators. One of these houses alone put up 500,000 pounds last season and will handle at least as much this year, having already taken in several solid carloads, with others rolling. This house reports one customer last season took five cars of the treated lycopodium and made it into Christmas wreaths.

MOTHERS AND OTHERS.

Various individuals lay claim to the promotion of Mothers' day, as if it were a private enterprise brought to success by a single person. Nothing could be farther from the facts. Mothers' day became an occasion of nation-wide observance solely—that word ought to be in capitals—because of the universal and deep affection of every person for his or her mother. No credit for that goes to anyone but mother herself. The rapid spread of the day's observance since its inception is due to the fact that 10,000 to 15,000 florists have been advertising the day each year. There should be no dispute of the fact that without such publicity from this trade, Mothers' day would not be as largely observed as it now is.

Do you want proof of the trade's essential part in making the holiday what it is? Listen:

In 1906, a lady, Miss Anna Jarvis by name, wrote a letter to the "vox pop." column of a Philadelphia newspaper suggesting the wearing of a white carnation on the second Sunday of May in honor of one's mother. In 1908, two years later, a florist of Lincoln, Neb., wrote The Review about the local mayor's proclamation of Mothers' day and asked the source of the holiday. Inquiry in Chicago by a member of The Review staff revealed a slight clue: A newspaper dispatch from Philadelphia had mentioned the day, said a reporter, but—mark this!—it was of so little moment it had not been printed. Some women, it was thought, were behind the day. But search among women's clubs in Chicago found ignorance of the day. Finally a registered letter, personal receipt requested, to "Secretary, Mothers' Day Association, Philadelphia," brought the signature of Miss Anna Jarvis. As a matter of fact, therefore, the trade discovered her in obscurity and made her mother's birthday famous when, the following year, florists advertised the day throughout the country, upon The Review's suggestion of the holiday's possibilities to its 10,000 (at that time) readers.

But the day is nobody's property—no, not the florists'. Neither is Christmas the toy manufacturers' property, nor the Fourth of July the fireworks makers'. The day is mother's day—always was and always will be. Mothers all like flowers and, though some will receive candy and jewelry, most of them will continue each year to be remembered with flowers on the second Sunday in May. Six-year-old Johnny dotes on buttons and his little brother, Jimmy, is happy waving a flag. Mother is older; flowers, the greatest carrier of sentiment, will be her portion. Let's forget other persons' claims on the day and recognize only mother's. Florists will continue in their good work of making more mothers remembered with more flowers.

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

Writes a reader: "I should like to have some of your readers' advice whether or not the clerks in a retail store should know the cost price of the roses or plants they sell, or should it be kept a secret and the selling price put on by someone in authority?"

WHERE IS MR. SLOANE?

Inquiry is being made for the present address of Charles Joseph Sloane, who formerly traded as the Anita Specialty Co., at 77 Summer street, Boston. If anyone knows Mr. Sloane's whereabouts and will send the information to The Review, it will be relayed to the interested parties.

THANK YOU KINDLY!

For its efforts to promote whatever is for the advancement of the trade, The Review scarcely expects thanks; such efforts are part of its mission. But when appreciation is expressed, it makes us feel good, nevertheless, and we go at our next job with added vim. So we are responsive to this letter from Baltimore:

It is the desire of the general committee of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association that I express to you their sincere appreciation of your coöperation in helping to put the Baltimore meeting over big. Not only at the time of the meeting did you publish details, but for many months previous you assisted the local committee in advertising the many things to be seen in our fair city, which resulted in Baltimore's having the largest attended business meeting in years.

Thanking you again for your loyal support, I remain very truly yours.

Robt. L. Graham, Jr., Sec'y.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

C. B., Wis.—See "Building a Bulb Cellar" in this issue.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

There was a snap and life to business last week that had been missing for a long time. In order to make sure of stock, florists phoned the market and asked to have stock reserved. Many calls were received for carnations; they were bought up as fast as they could be unpacked. Carnations are improving in quality. Roses are coming in well. The market was sold closely on these all last week.

Club Meeting.

A meeting of the Florists' Club was held Wednesday, October 18, in the hall at 1228 Grand avenue. T. J. Noll, chairman of the committee appointed at a previous meeting to report on the grading and standardization of cut flowers, made his report. Mr. Noll was instructed by W. J. Barnes, president of the club, to write to the National Flower Growers' Association, voicing the approval of the club of the association's efforts to grade cut flowers.

Two members were added to the club. One was H. M. Berner, local representative of Lord & Burnham Co., and the other was Oscar D. Joslin, a member of the W. J. Barnes organization. Mr. Barnes announced the following committees for the ensuing year: Membership—M. E. Carter, E. G. Lacey, Miss Lou Boggess; entertainment—E. J. Barnes, Robert Fields, Earl Parker; publicity fund—Miss Hayden, W. L. Rock, Mrs. T. A. Moseley, C. A. Chandler, Edward A. Humfeld, T. J. Noll, L. R. Bohannon.

Various Notes.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. is cutting fine Columbia and White Killarney roses.

Longview Farm has cleaned up one bench of Smith's Advance and is now cutting Oconto mums.

The Alpha Floral Co. had twelve baskets for the opening of the new Electric theater, at Kansas City, Kan., October 19.

Samuel Murray was home for several days last week with a severe cold. His store force sent him greenhouse tomatoes, mushrooms from Chicago and various other delicacies. Mr. Murray is entirely well now. One of the days that he was home was unusually busy. Orders were received for two casket covers. They were made of Columbia and Butterfly roses, delphinium and valley.

A. L. Reicht is cutting good carnations for the early crop. He is bringing in May Sunshine, a large yellow carnation that is exceedingly good. Not many of this color are grown and few have been in this market in recent years.

Glen K. Parker, manager of the Stuppy Supply Co., will spend three days of each week visiting the trade in Kansas City and on the road. Miss McDaniels, who was bookkeeper for the Hotel Baltimore for eleven years, is assistant to Mr. Parker and will have charge of the office and look after business in his absence.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Rock are enjoying a rest at the club house at Lakeview, Kan.

L. R. Bohannon, of the Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co., was in Texas last week. He is sending in some nice orders for holiday supplies.

A. G. Caster bought from the Stuppy Supply Co. the opening stock for the O. L. Smaltz Flower Shop, which will open in St. Joseph, Mo., October 28. This will be one of the largest flower stores in that city.

Mrs. T. A. Moseley's window was the most attractive of all the displays for the fall fashion show, which was held in Kansas City, Kan., the first week in October. No prizes were given for window displays, but the members of the Merchants' Association used their best efforts to make their show places attractive. The committee told Mrs. Moseley that her store window was the most artistic and was deserving of a prize, if one had been offered. Autumn foliage, flowers and draperies in corresponding shades, baskets of celosia and large urns with pampas grass were the main features.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kusik announce the birth of a daughter, October 21.

M. E. Carter has returned from a short vacation in Kansas.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Newell and family spent the week-end at Excelsior Springs, October 21.

The Miller Floral Co. sold roses for $1 a box Saturday, October 21. There were eighteen roses in each box, all home-grown stock. No deliveries were made. Four persons were kept busy all day waiting on the customers. The entire lot of roses was cleaned up. This company has had some fine wedding orders this month and has more booked for the next few weeks.

The Pathe news is showing pictures of S. Bryson Ayres' Blue Ridge flower farm. The films were taken Sunday, October 15. Mayor Frank H. Cromwell and wife and Mr. Ayres are shown. The pictures were run at the Pantages theater all week. Later they will be at the Orpheum and other theaters here and all over the United States and abroad. Mr. Ayres considers this one of the best kinds of publicity and in turn the Pathe firm was glad to get the pictures as a news feature.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Stuppy Supply Co. in St. Joseph, Mo., October 16, A. E. Stuppy was elected president to succeed the late Frank X. Stuppy. Dr. B. M. Murphy was elected director in Mr. Stuppy's place.

Rau & Kaupfer have been cutting mums since October 6. They are bringing white, pink and yellow mums to market three times a week. With the exception of one month, they have been cutting carnations all the year. They stopped cutting carnations July 28 and began again August 28. J. E. K.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

Market conditions have greatly improved. The demand in a great many instances is greater than the supply. The heavy frost that killed practically all outdoor stock recently was of great benefit. Last week sunshine brought out the mums. A good many are now to be had. Roses have greatly improved in quality, as well as carnations, which are larger and longer-stemmed than they were.

Various Notes.

Fred Helgren, superintendent for the firm of W. J. & M. S. Vesey, spent Sunday, October 22, with growers in and about Chicago, for the purpose of examining Rose Commonwealth.

Mr. and Mrs. Clem Lanternier have moved into their new home on St. Joe boulevard. The grounds are beautifully laid out.

Richard Blossom, of the Blossom Flower Shop, attended the F. T. D. convention at Baltimore. He says that it was a wonderful meeting. Mr. Blossom also spent some time at Washington. The Blossom Flower Shop reports a great increase in business, in comparison with the same period last year. Decorations for weddings have kept the force here busy.

Miss Alice M. Flick, who is attending school at Ann Arbor, spent the week-end at home.

Among trade visitors recently was A. Weller, of the Weller Nurseries Co., Holland, Mich.

A. Sawyer, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., was a visitor last week.

Mrs. Constein, of the Constein Greenhouses, of Upper Sandusky, O., and Mrs. Nellie Ziegler, of the Flower Shop, Bellevue, O., were in the city last week, in connection with some wedding orders for which they were securing flowers. They report an increase in business in their respective cities. S. N.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

There has been a decided increase in the volume of business in the Chicago market during the last week, but it has been accompanied by a decline in prices. Warm days and cool nights have resulted in an increase in the supply greater than the increase in the demand, with the result that there has been an abundance of stock, provided only that the buyer was willing to pay the price of the better grades. It has been noted that there was a distinct inclination to curtail purchases whenever certain price limits were reached. The retailers everywhere seem to be doing a first-class business, but they also seem firm in their resolve not to buy beyond a certain price. The result has been that the demand for good stock in the smaller sizes has cleaned up everything that was offered, while the special fancy grades have accumulated and, in many cases, eventually been sold at concessions. This situation has been particularly apparent with roses. It has been possible to sell each day all the short and medium roses that came to market, while most of the wholesalers have carried over each night rather good quantities of the longer grades. It has been noted that the demand was strong up to 10 cents to 12 cents, but that when a higher price was asked the buyers took only small quantities, and with reluctance, even though the price was low for such good stock. It is true that the buyer who uses 20-cent roses is able to give his customers better value for their money than the man who uses 8-cent roses.

The quality of roses is excellent, weather conditions having been favorable. The leading variety, of course, is Premier, with Columbia second; Russell is no longer much in evidence, though here and there some first-class flowers are seen. During the last few days there has been a marked increase in the call for Crusader and Milady, both of which now are available in first-class quality.

The supply of chrysanthemums has increased rapidly, as it always does at this date. It seems apparent, however, that the local growers have gone largely into the later varieties and the bulk of the stock seen on this market still comes from California, though it is probable that this condition will change quite soon. There has been considerable loss in the shipments of California mums this season and the wholesalers who handle them cannot sell them cheaply without going in the hole. There are increased supplies of pompons and they are selling briskly. Among the most popular flowers in the market are pompons which have been disbudded and grown to single stem. These flowers sell up to 15 cents and more of them could have been used last week.

It is the general report that the demand from New Orleans and the south for All Saints' day is unusually large this season. For several years this call for stock has been dwindling, the Pacific coast shippers of chrysanthemums having cut into it in a large way. This year, however, the demand seems to be coming back to Chicago. The call is specially for white chrysanthemums and white carnations, though everything else is included in a smaller way.

Carnations are increasing in supply and improving in quality, but the abundance of pompons is preventing a further advance in price. Easter lilies and orchids are in limited supply, as is valley to a less extent. Sweet peas are irregular, improving with each day of sun and suffering from each day without it. A few violets are seen, local singles and Hudson river doubles. When good they sell well. Frost has practically ended all outdoor flowers.

The green goods market is quiet, except that ferns have advanced 50 cents. Boxwood is being received in considerable quantity and is selling well.

Poehlmann's House Warming.

Practically every member of the trade who visited the market October 23 took time to inspect the new quarters of Poehlmann Bros. Co., at 163 and 165 North Wabash avenue, where the building has been remodeled for the Poehlmann occupancy on a 20-year lease. In the course of remodeling, the street floor, second floor and basement, each 40x90, have been practically rebuilt and the equipment is new throughout. The street floor is to be used as the salesroom for the city trade. A new refrigerator, 12x29 feet, has been installed. The offices are on a mezzanine floor at the rear of the room. The shipping department is in the basement, with a new cooler, 18x34, built beneath the alley on the north. A new 10-ton Brunswick-Kroeschell refrigerating machine has been installed. The salesroom and offices of the supply department are to be located on the second floor, but have not yet been removed from the Randolph street location.

Although much work remains to be done, the new quarters were in excellent shape for the opening day. The city salesroom was elaborately decorated with large palms from the Morton Grove greenhouses and with splendid vases of cut flowers, showing practically the whole line. The roses on display were the finest seen in this market this year, being of exhibition grade. August Poehlmann and Adolph Poehlmann were in from Morton Grove to act with John Poehlmann as reception committee and hundreds of florists stopped to compliment them on the appearance and facilities of the new store.

August Poehlmann states that he has leased for the company the fourth and fifth floors of the building at 67 and 69 East Lake street, which shortly will be occupied as warehouse, factory and shipping room for the florists' supplies department. This will cause an advantageous centralization of operations, as the present River street location will be given up.

are making elaborate preparations for the visit of the Chicago Florists' Club and other members of the trade, Thursday afternoon, November 2. Each house in the cut flower market displays a large poster announcing the event and a record attendance is expected. The Maywood florists specially invite the retailers to come out and get acquainted with the producing end of the business.

The Days They Celebrate.

W. J. Smyth, whose windows are so attractive that Michigan avenue is moving seven feet nearer to them, was born October 20, 1863, and therefore was 59 years old last Friday.

A. H. Budlong and N. J. Wietor both were born October 24, Mr. Budlong in 1870 and Mr. Wietor in 1872. Each has acquired a competence at rose growing. Mr. Wietor has retired and Mr. Budlong has turned the greater part of his responsibilities over to his son, Herbert, who will be 28 years of age October 31.

August F. Poehlmann was born at Milwaukee, October 21, 1869, and celebrated his fifty-third anniversary last Saturday.

Our Florists in Politics.

"Leading florists of Chicago, not to be outdone by other mercantile lines who have banded together in clubs to support for reëlection Judge Frank S. Righeimer, today sent word to Republican headquarters enrolling a florists' club for the jurist," said the Chicago Evening Post October 19. "The florists indorse County Judge Righeimer's record, but add to their message a stirring appeal for Republicans to back him as the first county judge the G. O. P. has had in Cook county for many years."

Thirty florists signed their names to such an appeal, it was stated. The officers of the club are:

President—H. N. Bruns.

First vice-president—F. Oechslin.

Second vice-president—George Asmus.

Secretary—George V. Wienhoeber.

Treasurer—Reinhold E. Schiller.

It was announced that the original list of enrollment is to be added to from time to time by the florists, and when the membership is completed the full enrollment will be given out.

to open a store adjoining the main entrance of the Arcade building at Devon avenue and Broadway. William F. Schofield, the North State street retailer, is the head of this new enterprise, which may become a chain of stores throughout the city. Mr. Schofield will continue the State street store as his individual enterprise. The new store is 16x47, in green and gold, with tapestry on the walls, a quite classy affair. The A. L. Randall Co. is putting in the fixtures.

Paul J. Krause is busy out on the south shore. He has six weeks of landscape work ahead of him, some of the orders including good-sized jobs around the many new homes in that locality. The greenhouse department had all tender stock under glass when the first frost came. English ivies in 4-inch pots are reported as in request among retail florists who are filling ferneries. They have a nice lot of them, as well as smaller sizes.

H. Wittbold & Son have a new and attractively lettered Dodge.

George J. Ball, of Glen Ellyn, has definitely decided to install oil burning equipment for one of his two boilers. When the Chicago Florists' Club met at the Stielow range two weeks ago he became interested in the Atorotary system and has just instructed F. R. Crane, Jr., to go ahead with the installation. Mr. Ball was confronted with a storage problem, but has now made arrangements to have his oil delivered by truck, at a price that figures about 60 cents per ton less on the basis of coal costs.

pelled to run their factory day and night to keep up.

Friends of P. C. Schupp will be pleased to learn that, after having been operated on for appendicitis at the Ravenswood hospital October 22, Mr. Schupp had so far recovered that he was able to be taken home October 27. His splendid constitution is serving him well and he expects to be back to business in a few days.

It is reported that a number of boxes of Pacific coast chrysanthemums were offered in this market last week by the express company, the shipments having been misdirected to Chicago when intended for retailers in other cities. The wholesalers did not care to handle many of them and in most cases it is believed the correct addresses were supplied and the shipments forwarded to destination.

E. C. Amling left October 26 to return to Los Angeles. Among the business details looked after while here was the sale of a 19-foot strip of land he owned on Lake street, to the Oak Park Trust & Savings bank for $10,000. Mr. Amling is one of the large stockholders in the bank and made the sale to give the institution additional space for its new building, although he had been holding the property at a higher price.

list has been arranged and a big show is in prospect. Mr. Olson says business never was better in the Twin Cities, his firm having had more orders in the last three months than in the same months in any other year in the history of the concern. He believes the activity will be continuous.

Harry O. May and wife, of Summit, N. J., were here for a week, visiting Mrs. May's sister. They returned home October 25. Mr. May found time to look over the local market and expressed the opinion that Chicago rose growers are fortunate in not having to contend with the huge quantities of dahlias that flood the eastern markets in the fall.

"PROVED QUITE GOOD."

Day by day eastern florists are coming to appreciate that they should look westward for the market place. Not that the market itself invariably is westward, but that the large number of advertisements appearing in The Review make its columns the market place. The Review is read throughout the United States and eastern florists get orders from their neighbors by making their offers known through The Review; also, they get orders from buyers far away. It works out like this:

Please discontinue all our ads until we can go over our stock and see what we have left to offer. The advertising in The Review proved quite good and we shall continue in a week or so again.—Westcott Greenhouse Co., Walton, N. Y., October 19, 1922.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

Last week a heavy frost covered Pittsburgh several mornings. This, naturally, decreased the supply of outdoor flowers, especially dahlias. The change in the weather also has stimulated the cut flower business, and this week found the market practically cleaned up at an early hour every morning. The supply of roses was hardly sufficient to answer the demand. Carnations were also much in request, and the supply was hardly ample. Some fine chrysanthemums were in the market and moved out at good prices. Pompons are now one of the factors in the market and move readily. American Beauty roses continue in the market. Valley is in demand. Easter lilies are always in demand, but the supply was again hardly sufficient to take care of requirements.

Various Notes.

The supply departments of the wholesale houses are especially busy at this time filling orders for holiday goods. The wise florist this year is the one who is getting his goods early, as, from all indications, the freight congestion is going to make deliveries rather uncertain. At the present time, embargoes west of Pittsburgh have been lifted, but east of Pittsburgh it is still impossible to ship by freight. Express shipments are also moving slowly. All customers purchasing in this district should get their supplies for Christmas early, in order to avoid disappointment.

A committee is being formed to handle the collection of a fund for the Pennsylvania State College, at State College, Pa. The announcement of this committee will be made later. The florists of the state of Pennsylvania have been allotted a unit amounting to $100,000, and it is the desire of this committee that Pittsburgh should do its share.

The bituminous coal situation is gradually righting itself in the Pittsburgh territory. Gas coal, nut and slack, offered in the early part of the month at $4.50, net, per ton, with a freight rate of $1.25 per ton for Pittsburgh territory, can now be had at $3.50 per ton, with a still lower price on steam coal, which has a less value in B. t. u.

Summing up business as a whole last week, both retailers and wholesalers report a good volume of business, some stating there was an increase over that of last year. H. J. H.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

The trade last week enjoyed a nice business, due to a large number of social events and a considerable amount of funeral work. The season has now started in earnest and every day sees a good demand for all kinds of stock. The outdoor flowers have all been killed off now, by several heavy frosts.

The supply of roses has shortened until there are not enough to meet the demand, and prices remain steady and a little above the average for this time of the year. The roses arriving now are of the finest quality, with Premier and Columbia easily leading and Butterfly and Ophelia close seconds. Carnations are improving in quality and quantity every day, but the demand is still heavy and the market reports a shortage each day. Now that cooler weather has set in, they should soon be at their best and fill a great need for small flowers. The supply of Easter lilies still falls considerably short of the demand and what few make their appearance clear out promptly at good prices.

Mums are still scarce and high in price, but the coming week should see a large supply and the cut should be heavy from now on. Pompons are just starting to come on this market and they are picked up quickly each day; in fact, they are all sold before their arrival. Dahlias have about disappeared from the market, because of frosts in several parts of New Jersey, where the main supply is obtained. The supply of orchids and valley, while not heavy, is still sufficient to take care of the demand. Some of the finest valley and orchids ever seen on this market are coming in daily.

Various Notes.

Harris & Lever, Tonawanda, N. Y., are cutting some fine mums and Easter lilies, which find a ready sale at their store at Niagara Falls.

Leo Elbers has opened a new retail store at Michigan and Broadway. He reports that he is well satisfied with his venture.

Ralph Galley, of Gardenville, has completed the construction of his new greenhouses and will soon be producing stock for the local market.

D. A. Herron, of Olean, was a visitor last week, and reports that he will soon be cutting some of the finest mums that he has ever grown.

E. H. Bentley, of Wellsville, was a recent visitor. He reports a fine early fall business. J. B. M.

NEW CLEVELAND STORE.

The Cleveland Plant & Flower Co. has moved to its new quarters. The new location will give the firm three times the amount of floor that it had in the old location. This enterprising firm, with W. C. Priest and S. H. Berthold at its head, started in business a little more than eight years ago. It was originally incorporated for $10,000, but is now worth $50,000, having increased its original capital five times in eight years. The new store has 35,000 square feet of floor space and 225 square feet of refrigerating space. It is decorated in green and cream, with gray woodwork and oak office furniture. These two aggressive business men, who commenced as the smallest wholesale house in Cleveland, February 12, 1914, have now stepped into second place.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Jack Frost has locked out the dahlias, cosmos, celosias, tritomas, delphiniums and the entire "caboodle" of outdoor flowers, and only the hardy pompons are left. Herman Zimmer saw it coming. Many clever retailers saw it coming. They bought dahlias so freely during the week that their customers have not lacked them yet. They are still in the shop windows and invite orders, but the growers know that the fields are blighted and the wholesalers know, and the market will have to adjust itself to the changed conditions.

There is more activity in the market. Business has some snap to it. There are orders, lots of them, and flowers are being used freely. Early in the week much of the poorer stock accumulated fast, but was pretty well worked off by the end of the week. Carnations have been an anxiety to the wholesalers. There were a great many low-grade carnations. These were extremely hard to sell at low prices. Fine carnations sold rather better, but even these were not in brisk demand.

Chrysanthemums are coming in freely. The early varieties are over and the first of the finer midseason sorts are with us. Sun Glow is the leading yellow. Rose Queen is a pink and Oconto a white, by which it is meant that neither pink nor white chrysanthemums are yet as fine as the yellow. The pompons that have come so far are from out of doors; they are chalky white and, therefore, not even desirable, the deep, rich colors being most prized in pompons.

Roses are quite scarce. Much has been said and written about the growers holding back their crops for higher prices and such foolishness. As a matter of fact, this is not a good time to cut many roses, for two reasons: The market is likely to be overloaded and it does not work out so well later, but this year frost has come early and there are so few roses that the market for them is excellent. Violets have come; sweet peas are increasing; there is some snapdragon, and a little mignonette, and a few callas. Gardenias are exceedingly scarce. There is plenty of valley and a good many Cattleya labiata. Easter lilies have been selling quite well. The demand for foliage is increasing.

The Dahlia Season.

The dahlia season has closed abruptly, ten days earlier than usual and three weeks earlier than last year. The wholesalers think that it has been a fair season; while short, it was brisk for a time. One point is clear, however; the day has passed when anybody can grow cut flowers profitably. Maytrot can do it; Peacock can do it; Wolfrum can do it. Undoubtedly, there are others who can do it, but the average commercial grower cannot do it. The amateur of today knows more about dahlias and their culture than the florists. A glance at the Collingwood show held early this month proves this to be correct. The public is not willing to pay good prices for ordinary flowers. I believe that there is a great future for the dahlia specialist in our cut flower market, but he must thoroughly understand his business.

Senator Vare's Funeral.

Wm. S. Vare, state senator from the first district of this state, died at his

CHRYSANTHEMUMS
IN QUANTITY NOW

The mid-season varieties are coming in strong now. They will not only insure us of a larger supply, but also of a larger assortment and better varieties than the early ones.

CARNATIONS

They are improving in quality. In fact, compared with other years, we believe they are quite up to the season's standard. If you are not growing any Carnations of your own, arrange with us for a regular supply. We will take care of these orders now, also later in the season when the supply may be scarce elsewhere.

CATTLEYAS

On account of the large quantity of Orchids we handle, we can well afford to carry a good supply on hand. This puts us in a position to fill your orders on short notice. We can furnish Orchids in almost any quantity if you give us enough time to get a shipment from the greenhouses.

The senator was greatly beloved and his funeral from a floral standpoint was the largest that the city has ever known. The quantity of flowers when assembled was extraordinary. Fabulous tales are told about the number of conveyances required to deliver them and to take them afterwards to the cemetery and to the hospitals.

$15,000 to $20,000. Mr. Grakelow received orders for Senator Vare's funeral from every ward organization in the city; from many officials at the city hall, from personal friends of the senator and from his family. Many of the orders were very handsome; among them were ten large baskets. Mr. Grakelow's handsomest order was a blanket or pall coverlet ordered by the senator's family. It was made of lavender sweet peas, a couple of thousand blooms. In the center was a double cluster of Easter lilies, with Cattleya labiata and lavender sweet peas. At each of the four corners was a bunch of yellow roses. The effect was beautiful.

The Show at the Academy.

David Rust, secretary of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, has kindly furnished the following facts descriptive of the society's plans for the ninety-fourth annual flower show, to be held at the Academy of Music, November 7 to 9:

Prospects for show look very good.
Mum plants reported in good shape.
Cut flowers suffered somewhat with warm weather; cold nights from now on will finish them all right.
Show is being advertised more than ever with posters, window cards and small enclosures. Banks and business firms are sending these enclosures with November 1 statements; 100,000 go out.
Hotels will put these little enclosures in every room.
Five thousand window cards will be put out.
One thousand large posters put on billboards.
The Garden Club of America is coöperating and will stage exhibits Tuesday, November 7, to include table decorations, baskets, bowls and vases of flowers and miniature gardens.
Exhibits are promised from W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.; Joseph Manda, West Orange, N. J.; Charles H. Totty Co., Madison, N. J.; A. N. Pierson Co., Cromwell, Conn.
There will be the usual exhibits of orchids, foliage plants and ferns. Good exhibits of roses are promised, including some new ones. Entries for carnations good.
J. J. Habermehl's Sons will decorate the Academy of Music.
Staging: All plants brought in on Monday, November 6; mum cut flowers, Tuesday morning, November 7; cut flowers, orchids, roses and carnations, fruits and vegetables, Wednesday morning, November 8; floral decorations, Thursday, November 9.

Judging: Plants, Tuesday morning; mum cut flowers, Tuesday afternoon; cut flowers, orchids, roses, carnations, fruits and vegetables, Wednes-

"The Leading Florist"

HAVE YOU SEEN THE NEW WRIGHT FERN?

WRIGHT'S FLOWER SHOP

THE RETAIL STORE

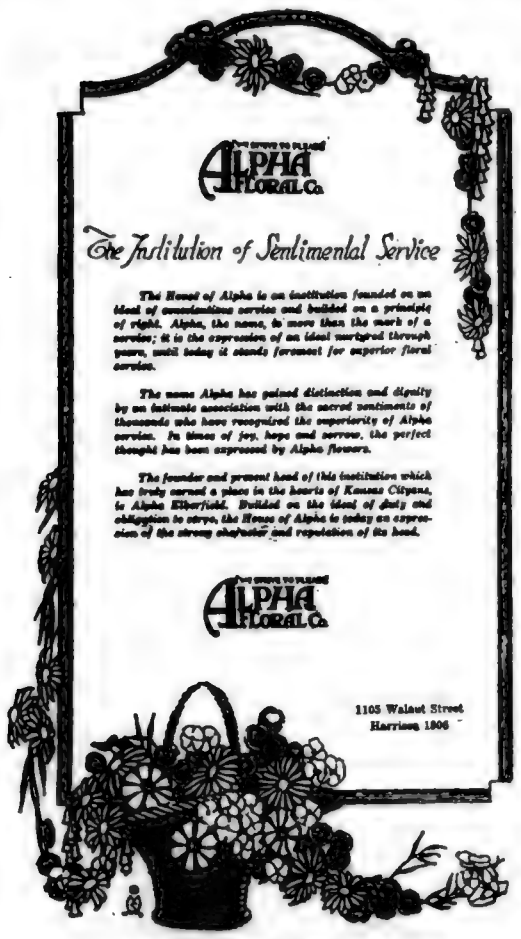
A PAGE OF HINTS AND HELPS FOR THE RETAIL FLORIST

SERVICE FOR SALE.

And Flowers with It.

One of the leading retailers in the trade was pointing out the tremendous contrast between prices twenty-five years ago and those charged today. According to this retailer, prices in '98 varied according to demand; holiday prices were proportionately high, just as they are today.

But today the everyday prices surpass the special prices of yesteryear. Why is this? one asks. What has so strengthened the demand? Some say "coöperation"; some say "increased efficiency"; some say "change in the public mind." And they are all correct. The latter is the result of the former two. The public has learned to love flowers and the public is still in the primary classes, because there is much in which they are to be educated.



Twenty-five years ago if you looked into a daily paper, the chances are that you would see no florist's advertisement. Five years ago few advertisements were running. Today, one sees florists' advertisements daily. Why?

Beating Back the Overhead.

The retailer understands and is coming more and more to understand that the only way he can control the overhead is to increase his volume of business. How is he to do this? He must talk it to the people. His flowers can "say it." But it is the retailer's responsibility to procure an audience for the flowers.

The retailer is coming to realize that he cannot sell anything unless he includes with the sale a goodly amount of service. And it is service that he advertises. He tells the public that he stands for the square deal, the proper treatment of the trade, the proper value for the money. He founds a policy and he goes forth to show what he means to the public. He is out to sell service.

The advertisements illustrated on this page are examples of some of the season's first advertisements. They are typical and they point the way in which the florist of tomorrow is going to attract his buyers. The public looks for service.

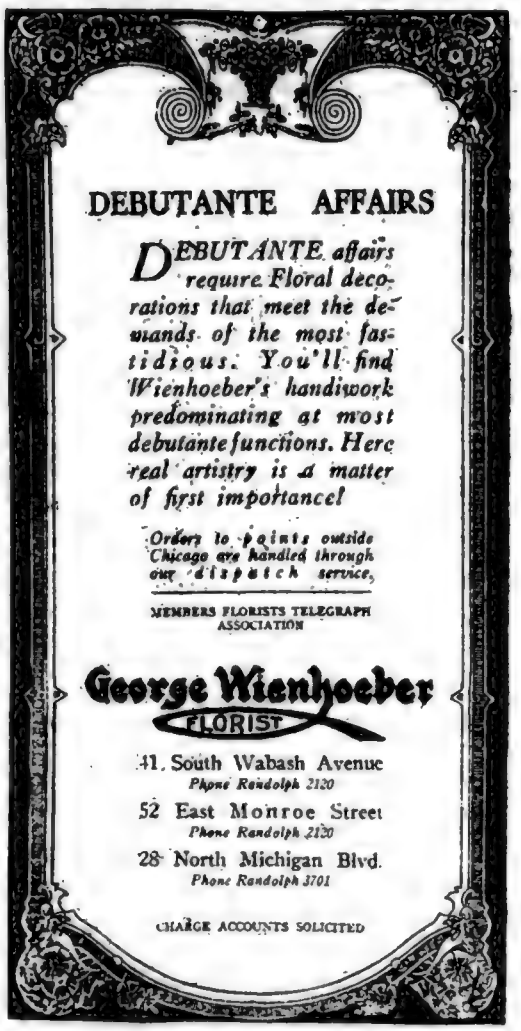
FLOWERS FOR HOSPITALS.

In nearly every community one or more florists are constantly seeking to get better attention paid to orders for flowers delivered at local hospitals. In spite of the large quantities which hospitals receive, it is remarkable how scant is the attention the flowers are given and how meager are the means provided to handle them properly. There is slight chance to effect a remedy in the case of old hospitals, but it was pointed out at the F. T. D. meeting at Baltimore how equipment might be provided in hospitals in the course of erection, so that florists might be better satisfied with the way the flowers delivered there would be handled.

Charles H. Grakelow, of Philadelphia, told how florists of his city had met with the architects who were making the plans for a million-dollar hospital there, and made suggestions, which were later embodied in the plans, for special rooms for the reception and the overnight storage of flowers. In Montreal, a big new hospital recently erected there has a room on each floor to which the flowers are taken from the patients' bedrooms each afternoon, instead of merely being placed in the corridor. These rooms are cooled and are provided with running water, so that the water in the vessels containing the flowers can be changed regularly.

W. W. Gammage said that in London, Ont., a hospital recently erected, which cost between $300,000 and $400,000, was provided with a receiving room for flowers and a room on each floor in which they might be stored overnight.



Philip Breitmeyer said that in new hospitals in Detroit, by reason of the florists' efforts, several rooms were provided for the reception and overnight storage of the flowers sent to patients. It was his suggestion that a letter be sent to the national organization of architects requesting that rooms for receiving and storing flowers be made the custom in hospital plans. In view of the value placed upon flowers by the surgeons who attend hospital patients, greater attention to their needs might well be paid by the managers of such institutions. By offering helpful coöperation, particularly when a new hospital is in course of erection, florists in various localities can do much to remedy the deficiency against which they have long complained.

COST OF TELEGRAM.

A rule has been generally established that when an order for flowers is sent by wire from one florist to another, the customer pays the cost of the telegram. If a buyer wishes a $10 basket of flowers delivered in another city, and the cost of the telegram to that place is 75 cents, the bill is rendered as $10.75.

Of course, in carrying out this rule exceptions are made as justified by circumstances. If a man comes into a store and orders three dozen American Beauties, at $20 a dozen, to be delivered to a friend of his in another city, the florist is not likely to add 75 cents to the amount of the order. If the telegram costs a couple of dollars or more, an additional charge might be made, but in cases where the telegraph charge is insignificant in comparison with the total of the bill, the former may be overlooked.

It is a waste of time to endeavor to ascertain, while the customer waits, the cost of a telegram to the exact penny. The custom in many leading flower stores is to post a list of the principal cities in various sections of the country in a conspicuous place for clerks' reference, giving the cost of a first-class telegram of ten words, the cost of a night letter, and the additional cost per word to each point. If an order is taken for flowers to be delivered in New York, the cost of the telegram is ascertained at once by referring to the figures opposite the name of that city. If the telegram is to go to a small city not on the list posted, the probable cost may be learned by consulting the figures opposite a large city near by. The cost of the telegram is usually given the customer in round figures, no effort being made to be exact to the penny. Make a charge of 50 cents, 75 cents, $1 or $1.50, in accordance with the individual case, making the charge liberal enough so that there is no probability of loss to be sustained by the florist when the telegraph bill comes in at the end of the month.

DELIVERY TAGS.

Why They Are Important.

An artist's skill is of definite money value to the florist. The harmonious blending of colors and the pleasing arrangement of flowers on display are certain to result in sales. Customers patronize the florist who is the proprietor of the most attractive conservatory or flower shop and whose flowers and plants are of the better grade. The attractiveness of the display or conservatory draws their attention and creates desire; the worth of the flowers and plants clinches the sale.

The up-to-date florist realizes that he not only must supply his customers with flowers of the highest grade, but that they must be packaged in a box that is dainty and attractive and in keeping with the beauty of the flowers it contains.

One of the most important features of the packaging is the delivery tag. In purchasing flowers or plants, customers expect to receive them in a good-looking package, or, if a bouquet is ordered to be delivered to an acquaintance, the purchaser realizes the importance of first impressions and is more than pleased to know that the florist will be careful that the packaging is of the best. A nice-looking box is spoiled by an ordinary-looking tag or label. The contrast creates an unfavorable impression.

Adding Distinction.

On the other hand, a good looking tag or label, printed in distinctive colors and design, puts the finishing touch to the flowers and the package. It speaks for the florist and is his business card of introduction. The psychological reaction upon the mind of the recipient, its daintiness and attractiveness create the impression that the flowers or contents of the package are equally dainty. and attractive. This thought remains in their minds, and, when it is their desire to purchase flowers, they think of the conservatory of that florist and it is that shop that will receive their patronage.

The article that is distinctive or unusual attracts attention, and, vice versa, that which is common or ordinary does not attract attention or notice. And so it is with tags. The ordinary printed tag does its work well, no question about it. It delivers the package or the article, but there its work is ended. It can easily be given more to do. It should be given an appeal and tell everyone of the florist. It should bring attention to it and to the conservatory or shop it represents. To do this it must attract attention in its unusual color, design and printing. If it has this appeal and does attract attention, its efficiency is increased tenfold. It is more than a delivery tag. It is an advertisement, an advertisement that has the unusual faculty of speaking for the article or shop that it represents while in contact with the products of that shop.

The advertising value of a high-grade tag or label far more than pays for its cost, and to get the full measure of this value, the tag or label must be of distinctive and attractive design and color.

It is well to remember that the tag or label is the first thing that comes to the attention of the owner of the flowers. It is the first impression and that first impression should be favorable.

ONE FORM OF COPY.

Nairn & Sons, florists and nurserymen of Christchurch, New Zealand, have developed a novel advertising scheme. They conduct what is known as "Nairn's Weekly Garden Notes" in the Saturday edition of the Christchurch Sun, choosing the women's page for the publication of the items. Instead of a set advertisement, describing this and that plant and the price, the matter is set forth in an interesting, chatty form. Any home gardener or flower buyer would read the information with interest, while the language is so simple that any newspaper reader can follow the thoughts without effort. Every weekly article is really a contribution to horticultural literature and is appreciated accordingly. Then follow the plants, etc., offered, and the prices. An article dealing with scent in flowers was used as a nature study lesson by school teachers, with pleasure to the children. This is good advertising and Nairn & Sons have set a successful example that florists elsewhere might follow.

If imitation is the sincerest kind of flattery, then our trade is being perpetually praised—and by other trades. Frequently the slogan has been paraphrased, and now the candy men have adopted the idea of coöperative advertising for a special day, a la florists.

October 13 this year was candy day and at that time advertisements of cooperative nature appeared in many papers. Frank King, of Bellaire, O., spot-

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Last week the days were cool and bright, and there were light frosts at night. The frost killed many outdoor flowers; dahlias and gladioli made their farewell bow for the season. Asters are about gone for the season.

Chrysanthemums are about a week behind schedule, but the market has many of the early varieties, and the shipments are increasing daily. All consignments last week cleared well. The rose market is improving finely. Long, fancy American Beauties are on display.

A. H. Hummert, chairman of the guarantee committee, reported that the fund had reached its height of $10,000, and that the committee would mail out a call for final payment November 1.

J. S. Carter, chairman of the entertainment committee, reported that his committee had all its arrangements complete for the opening of the show.

Carl Beyer, of the ticket committee, reported that the admission will be 50 cents. Employees' tickets, he said, could be had from the committee at 25 cents, each employer being limited to fifty. the Flower Growers' Publicity Association was held Tuesday, October 17. Chairman Pilcher presided. The secretary's report showed a considerable amount of money on hand for advertising, after the payment of $538 to the publicity fund. W. A. Ferree, advertising manager for the board, gave a talk on the contemplated advertising for the season. This was fully discussed and a motion prevailed that $1,000 be placed at the disposal of the advertising committee for the purpose of advertising the flower show. The next meeting will be held October 31.

The meetings of the County Growers' Association and the St. Louis Association of Gardeners will both be held November 1. The former will be held at the Eleven Mile House and the latter at the municipal greenhouses.

The students of the School of Fine Arts who were in competition for a drawing for the cover for the official program of the fall flower show submitted final work October 15. Thirty covers were submitted, the winner being a disabled soldier. The big poster to be used, all hand-painted, is the work of Miss Helen Bremer, 15-year-old granddaughter of J. J. Beneke; 100 of these are ready for distribution.

Officers of the Florists' Club will meet November 2 at the home of Vice-president Oscar Ruff for the monthly conference. Interesting features will be planned for the club meeting, November 9.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. has outgrown its old location at 1310 Pine street, which it has occupied for the last ten years. The firm, therefore, has leased the southeast corner of Fourteenth and Pine streets, which has a frontage of fifty feet, with 1,000 square feet more space than the old quarters. The firm plans to be ready for business at the new location November 1.

cided that the show committee, G. M. Geraghty and S. A. McFadden, take any necessary steps following the meeting of the chairmen of the various divisions of the show, October 20, and that the club support the committee.

Club Meeting.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Association held its regular meeting October 16. There was a good attendance. Each meeting sees the addition of several new members. At this meeting the following new members were proposed: J. W. Patterson, S. Jenner, Charles Miller, W. J. Simpson and William Longlands.

R. Heyward, librarian, gave a review of the various periodicals received during the month.

It was decided to arrange for a lecture on chemicals for the soil at an early meeting. The annual meeting will be held November 20.

A resolution was passed hoping that William Hoath would be speedily restored to health and strength.

The suggestion of the secretary, Alex Simpson, that a gardeners' section of the association be formed was given unanimous support, and a resolution was passed that this association take immediate steps to bring about the formation of such a section.

A committee, consisting of Alex Simpson, G. Thompson and W. J. Potter, was appointed to bring in a recommendation regarding side holes in pots, as suggested by Mr. Walker of McDonald College, at the convention of the association.

There will be a special display of flowers at the annual meeting.

Various Notes.

Flowers are scarce at present.

C. Engelmann, of Saffron Walden, joined the Canadian party at Baltimore and came on to Toronto in the private car. Here he was taken to Richmond Hill and Brampton to see some of the Canadian ranges. He was afterwards treated to a dinner and theater party.

The Toronto retailers have decided not to hold the usual mum show this fall.

Toronto florists who were at Baltimore wish to thank most heartily their confreres south of the border for a most enjoyable time. It will be long remembered. J. J. H.

The Market.

Summer conditions are practically over in the cut flower market. Last week occurred heavy cutting down of stock by frosts. Outdoor stock is still coming in, but the greater portion is done for. This produces a hardship for the trade, as there is not a plentiful supply of other stock to be had.

Mums are rather late this fall, and the rose crop is off at present. Carnations are not plentiful. The few mums that are arriving are rather small and mostly in pink. White and yellow are at a premium. Roses are scarce and usually clean up the first thing in the morning. Asters and gladioli have practically disappeared and few dahlias remain.

Carnations are a little more plentiful, and some few are fairly good in quality, but the majority are still small and short-stemmed; nevertheless, they are helping fill the vacancy left when asters diminished. Pompons are now arriving in greater quantities and have been snapped up quickly. Some exceptionally good cosmos, both in the single and double varieties, are arriving and have been used frequently in decorations. Easter lilies are still scarce and the few on the market are bringing regular Easter prices. Double and single violets are now arriving, but have been moving rather slowly. Valley has had a steady demand.

Various Notes.

Charles F. Edgar, with the Bergman Decorating Co., was a recent visitor. He had a fine display of colored grasses,

The Market.

Business is good. Weddings are numerous and there has been a large call for flowers for funeral work. A few heavy frosts, which occurred last week, injured outdoor stock such as dahlias, etc., but did not kill the plants. The quality of the roses and carnations is improving each week.

Various Notes.

Mabel Thompson, with Theodore D. Kuebler, has been sick for two weeks, but is better and is again back at work.

The Lockyear Floral Co. has been extremely busy with wedding work and funerals. The firm is cutting good roses, carnations and mums. M. H. Lockyear attended the meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association at Indianapolis last week. Mr. Lockyear gave a talk on a system of bookkeeping for florists.

Karl Zeidler and wife returned October 14 from their European trip. They visited their old home in Austria and other places. They report having had a most enjoyable trip.

Contrary to reports, C. L. Niednagel's roses are in fine condition and give promise of fine cuts for all season. All other stock is in excellent condition.

A visit to the greenhouses of the Blackman Floral Co. found all hands busy, and all stock in fine condition. The stock of Christmas plants is large and in the pink of condition.

Carl Elspermann and his assistants have completed the work of installing the new heating plant, and the latter works successfully. E. L. F.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

The florists of this city are busy preparing for All Saints' day, which is compared here with Memorial day in the northern states. Almost all classes of people find it necessary to buy flowers to decorate their family tombs on this day.

The cemeteries here are real flower exhibitions on this occasion. Chrysanthemums are the predominating flowers, and the variety that is most certain to be ready for this day is Mrs. Henry Robinson. Chrysolora and some other October-blooming varieties grown in the north are rarely ready for this festival.

A number of the florists have window displays of the California-grown chrysanthemums. Great quantities of them are being sold here. Northern-grown cyclamens in bloom are making their appearance here also.

A tall-growing native variety of ageratum comes in useful, because blue flowers are scarce at this time of year. The Klondyke cosmos does well outside here, and is just beginning to bloom. We can grow a spring and a fall crop of cosmos of all varieties. August-sown crops are showing buds at eighteen inches. Sweet alyssum blooms all winter and has already begun to do so.

The Madagascar periwinkle blooms continually, also the fibrous-rooted begonias, but these are not grown in such large quantities as they are in the north, because they need protection on cool nights.

Legion, which began October 16 in this city, made considerable work for all of the florists. P. Chopin, of St. Charles avenue, had charge of the decorations for the grand ball, which was given at the Hotel Grunewald in honor of the visiting legionnaires and their ladies. The city was lavishly decorated and illuminated for the occasion. The entertainment committee prepared an extensive program of events, a few of which are named below. There was a handicap race for aeroplanes of all sizes, over a triangular course of eighty miles. Prize fights, boxing and wrestling matches, tennis matches, golf tournaments, swimming contest, rifle meet, carnival balls in three of the largest halls of the city, and endless other smaller affairs were held. Mayor McShane and Governor John M. Parker were at the opening of the convention to greet the delegates and visitors for the city and state.

A great number of new homes have been built in the best residential district this year, making a large amount of new work for the landscape florists.

October is always a busy month for those in the trade; it is the month everybody wants his winter lawn planted. It will be of interest to those in the northern states to know that a great many people plant English or Italian rye on their lawns, to make a nice green lawn when the Bermuda the larger varieties. On account of the abundance of dahlias, the mums move slowly. The smaller varieties are not reaching the market in large quantities. Dahlias have been of the highest quality throughout the entire season. Roses also are plentiful and the quality of the stock is good. There is a good supply of Easter lilies, but callas are scarce. Valley and orchids are reaching the market in good quantities and are of fine quality. Sweet peas are beginning to make their appearance. Violets are reaching the market in fair quantities. There is also a good supply of carnations, but they are only fair in quality.

Various Notes.

William F. Ekas has handled the Vincent cut of dahlias this season in an exceedingly creditable manner. The method of packing used this year is a great improvement over that of last year, for the stock has reached the stores in better shape.

Everyone feels that the F. T. D. business meeting was a grand success. The general committee had its final meeting Monday, October 16, and after accounting for all bills, it found that a percentage of the subscriptions would be paid back to the donors. It was felt by the members of the committee that coöperation was the basis for the success of the whole affair.

At the next monthly meeting of the Florists' Club, to be held November 13, Mr. Besley, our state forester, will give an illustrated lecture on the care and preservation of our forests. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance of members.

The Market.

The summer has been a rather unusual one for the trade in Nashville. Because of extreme drought, there have been fewer outdoor flowers than usual, and this may, in part, account for the fact that business has been better this summer than anyone anticipated. Nevertheless, it was dull enough the latter part of July and during August. On the whole, the trade agrees, however, that there were fewer unprofitable weeks this summer than has usually been the case.

We are suffering from extreme drought this fall, and, as a result, the dahlia crop is practically nil, except where it has been possible to give it abundant irrigation. Even where the Skinner system has been used freely, dahlias are not up to standard this year. Nevertheless, they are moving nicely, and are a great help in filling the good demand for flowers at this time. Just now business is good and has been for the last two or three weeks. Chrysanthemums are coming in freely and are showing excellent quality for so early in the season. Carnations are arriving freely now, but they are not up to standard in quality.

We had our first killing frosts last week and, doubtless, with the cool weather, carnations will improve in quality. There is still a good number of carnation plants in the fields here, but they are being moved rapidly and perhaps another week will see them all either sold or planted.

Roses are in good supply and of good quality. In fact, Columbia and the other newer varieties have prevented a shortage in roses. While there was a large number of Angelus planted this year in Nashville, only an occasional flower has appeared on the market.

Bulbs are in, and it is noticeable that the quantity imported is much less than last year, although last year the number was much smaller than previously. Tens of thousands of home-grown bulbs are being forced here this year. Our florists are finding that home-grown bulbs are at least equal, if not superior, to the best that they can import; and except in Paper Whites and hyacinths and tulips, it looks as if there were soon to be no bulbs imported for our growers.

Various Notes.

The greenhouses have been put in first-class condition all over the city this year; new putty has been put wherever it was required, and the trade is prepared to use a minimum amount of coal. Large quantities of wood have been secured by some of the greenhouses, to be used in case of coal shortage.

The Joy Floral Co. has added some new equipment to its store at Columbia, Tenn.

Geny Bros. have added a fine line of goldfish and goldfish supplies at their store. They find them to be a profitable side line. They have also twenty-five or thirty high-grade canaries. These canaries serve as an attraction to bring people into the store, and are profitable in themselves.

We are bending every effort to be in readiness for the meeting of the State Florists' Association here, November 13 and 14. It is planned to hold a flower show in connection with the meeting, which is expected to be the largest meeting yet held by the association. A large number of trade exhibits will be staged. The show is to be held in the garage of the Imperial Motor Car Co., occupying the entire ground floor. This takes the meeting from the business part of the town, which is expected to result in much better attendance at the regular sessions of the meeting. Space for trade exhibits will be free, but reservations should be made by November 10. in this vicinity, making many persons who formerly had gardens dependent upon the florists for their home bouquets. Business is reported to be fair. Mums and other fall flowers are now coming into the market in large quantities. Prices are exceedingly low as compared with those of this season two or three years ago.

McLaughlin & Murphy, 181 Clinton avenue, report that they have had a large amount of funeral work. They have several weddings booked for November already. R. B. M.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Typical fall weather prevailed last week, and several severe frosts have cut much outside stock, thus helping clean up the market. A general survey of the trade shows that business is not at its best just now. Stock has tightened considerably, and there has been no surplus for the last week. Roses have stiffened in price. This stock is improving as the cooler weather continues. Columbia, Ophelia and Butterfly are mostly in demand. Chrysanthemums are becoming more plentiful and their quality is good. Pompons are in demand.

Dahlias are becoming scarce. Carnations are in fair supply, but are not overplentiful. Some good bouvardia is seen and moves well. Violets are also improving and the demand is good for the early season. Calendulas are in good supply and are selling well. Montbretia is slowing up now and sells well. Gladioli are about over now, although a few are seen daily. Valley is of good quality and sells well. There has been a heavy demand for orchids the last week. Lilies are not abundant.

Various Notes.

Morris M. Cohen, of Cohen & Hiller, New York, called on the trade last week and showed many novelty ribbons and chiffons for the fall business. He reports business along the line as exceptionally good.

openings. They are showing a considerable number of novelties in strawflower baskets, etc. Funeral work at this store continues to be good.

Max the Florist, of Lyell avenue, has been busy the last week or so with a big demand for funeral work.

Lane Bros. recently opened a flower store on Ridgeway avenue.

The Hasset Flower Shop, until a few days ago located on East Main street, has discontinued business.

Approximately $3,000 worth of Dutch bulbs were ruined in the recent fire at the greenhouses of Mrs. H. P. Neun, which occurred Thursday afternoon, October 12, when an explosion took place in the boiler room.

H. E. Wilson's East Main street store reports business as fair. During the last week there has been little funeral work, but there has been much wedding work. They have a fine lot of mums on hand, which are moving well. Pompons are also coming in well.

Alberts the Florist made a big show-

MEALY BUG ON VINCAS.

I have sent a specimen of vinca, which is diseased in some way. A woolly deposit lodges in the cleft of the leaf and the vine and rapidly develops. Soon eggs can be found beneath the white fluff. The vine begins to show weakness, the leaves die and, finally, the whole plant is dead. T. E. F.—Ill.

The shoot of Vinca variegata was smothered with mealy bug. These are small and soft-bodied scale insects, which attack many plants under glass and not a few outdoors, especially in the warmer states. The best remedy is pressure of cold water through a nozzle on the end of the hose. Keep this up and you will get rid of this pest, but it will be necessary to repeat the spraying, as mealy bugs are rapid breeders and soon do great damage to plants. C. W.

ASHES AS FERTILIZER.

plant elicited the information that ashes from burned garbage will contain about five per cent of phosphoric acid and two per cent of potash. Its value would be about the same as any other vegetable ashes. A certain amount of this material can be used to good advantage in every greenhouse establishment. Bear in mind, however, that nitrogen is the element needed in largest proportion in plant production. Tankage produced from the same material contains the same elements as you have and with a large percentage of nitrogen added. The three together make a better all-around plant food than the phosphoric acid and potash alone.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

"As fast as they come in, they go out," observed Joseph Fuller, Leominster, Mass., referring to carnations and chrysanthemums; this demand, regardless of the fact that gardens are abloom with dahlias, is evidence that the public appreciates variety.

• • • •

"Confidence and patience," commented A. Lange, of H. F. A. Lange, Worcester, Mass., "are two cardinal virtues necessary to our business." A house of Chrysanthemum Early Frost is cut over here. One of Yellow Frost is now fit. The store, seasonably decorated in autumn foliage and antique vases, attracts much attention.

S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., is again to the front with carnations, with Doris, Laddie and Maine Sunshine as leaders.

Manager Bartsch, of the W. W. Edgar Co., Waverley, Mass., is experimenting with square wooden boxes, in place of pans, for poinsettias. The idea is quite original and has many advantages; some pans are continued. The boxes are painted green. Plants look fine here and there is not a yellow leaf to be seen. Mrs. W. W. Edgar, actively identified with the business, who recently returned from a European tour, expressed pleasure at the fine made-up designs in natural flowers as seen in the windows of the London florists. "The Elements of Retail Salesmanship"

HERE is a book every florist should read and then pass on to the people who work for him. The Review will send it, postpaid, on receipt of the publisher's price, $2.25

Probably everybody who thinks at all about salesmanship has realized that in its study lies the best chance of increasing the volume of business in the florists' trade. How to make more or larger sales? That is the question. The man who finds the correct answer solves the problem of high rents, high wages, of constantly rising cost of doing business; he puts the overhead expense back where it used to be "before the war." Increased sales mean increased profits for the proprietor and they mean increased earnings for the employee.

Also, everyone who has thought about salesmanship as applied to flowers and plants has recognized that the department stores and mail-order houses seemed to possess and practice better methods than those used by florists!

Paul Wesley Ivey is a lecturer on salesmanship who has conducted many courses of instruction in department stores. His book, "The Elements of Retail Salesmanship," shows us how the department store does it—how salespeople become skilled in sizing up the customer and closing the sale. The methods suggested in the book are purely for individual application—any person who "waits on trade" can try them out—it would be a lot of fun as well as a source of profit.

The Review recommends that every florist first read the book—then have his salespeople read it. Talk it over. Try it out. Have an experience meeting—see how the theories of salesmanship work out in practice in your store.

Read Ivey's chapter on "Knowing the Customer." It classifies all customers into half a dozen groups according to certain well defined characteristics and tells how the salesman can create an environment around the customer favorable to selling. Try it out—prove which of the clerks in the store is best at reading the customer's character. Many have said this chapter alone is worth more than the price of the whole book of 248 pages.

"The Elements of Retail Salesmanship" was written for department store or specialty shop people—it shows us how others do it most successfully. Order your copy today.

FARE TO COUNCIL BLUFFS.

The management of the Mid-west Horticultural Exposition announces that reduced railroad passenger rates have been secured from practically all of the railroad passenger associations in the United States for the show, at Council Bluffs, Ia., November 13 to 18. This means a fare and a half for the round trip, on the certificate plan, provided a total of 250 tickets or more are sold and the same number or more of certificates received.

A person buying a ticket to Council Bluffs, Ia., should ask the ticket agent for a certificate, stating that he or she wishes to attend the American Pomological Society meeting, November 15 to 17, or any of the meetings of the following societies at Council Bluffs which will be held in connection with the exposition: Iowa State Horticultural Society, November 14; Iowa Fruit Growers' Association, November 14; Society of Iowa Florists, November 16, and the mid-west beekeepers, November 15 and 16. The certificates will be validated at Council Bluffs, allowing the person holding same to buy a return ticket for one-half fare over the same route.

In most cases, the date of sale of tickets will be November 9 to 15, and return limit November 22.

The Mid-west Horticultural Exposition will be the largest and best of its kind held in America this year. Close to $10,000 is offered in cash premiums. Blaine C. Wilcox is superintendent of the floral section.

SHOW AT RALEIGH, N. C.

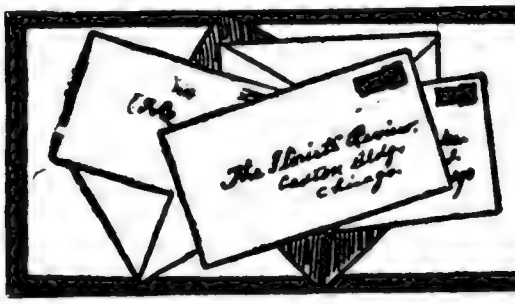
For the first time in a number of years Floral hall, Raleigh, N. C., was arrayed with flowers and plants exclusively when the state fair opened here October 18. Six of the leading florists of the state were represented at the exhibit with elaborate displays of flowers, plants and novelties.

H. S. Steinmetz, Raleigh, N. C., had a display of ferns, palms, evergreens, baskets of roses and chrysanthemums, sweet peas and delphiniums. The front of the Steinmetz display was featured with Jerusalem cherries and pepper plants. An exhibit of bulbs was also seen here.

The booth of the J. J. Fallon Co., Raleigh, N. C., was decorated with whitened cedar twigs on which the name of the firm was spelled out in violets. White and pink roses, white and yellow chrysanthemums and wicker vases trimmed with pink and blue ribbons were seen here.

Adjacent to the booth of the J. J. Fallon Co. was the display of the McCarron Floral Co., Raleigh, N. C. Under a canopy of Spanish moss was bunched a beautiful display of ferns, chrysanthemums, roses and carnations. In the center of the display was a wax figure of a bride carrying a bridal bouquet. A wicker cage containing a canary bird gave this exhibit a genuine appearance of originality.

Scholtz, the Florist, Charlotte, N. C., who also has stores in Gastonia and Greensboro, featured lilies of the valley together with palms, ferns, roses and bamboo.



One of the central booths was filled with the exhibits of the Middlemount Gardens, Asheville, N. C. This exhibit was built up to a pinnacle with potted palms, from a groundwork of moss and cork bark. Other florists from the vicinity of Raleigh were also present with exhibits.

BOSTON.

The Market.

The quantity of flowers coming in is not large and prices on all lines remain satisfactory to the grower. Sharp frosts have cut off all outdoor flowers, and so far even chrysanthemums are not overabundant. These conditions will probably not last much longer, as, with the main crop of chrysanthemums in, a change is bound to come.

Chrysanthemums continue to sell remarkably well. Yellow and pink varieties are in the best demand and sell at much better prices than whites. Oconto, Unaka, Halliday and Delice are still the leading varieties seen. A fair number of pompons have appeared and sell quickly at good prices. Carnations are going a little better than a week ago, which is surprising, as well as pleasing, to the growers of these popular flowers. Quality constantly improves, although a good many are still quite short-stemmed.

Roses are selling remarkably well; the supply, in fact, is not equal to the demand. American Beauties are in good demand. Butterfly and Columbia are the leaders among hybrid teas; many growers have dropped Ophelia entirely. Violets are higher than a week ago, selling at $1.50 per hundred. Lilies are now confined to L. longiflorum. Such white bouvardia as comes in sells readily to the high-class retailers. There are small lots of hardy larkspur which still dribble in, but dahlias, gladioli, cosmos and all outdoor flowers are gone. A few indoor asters still come in. There is a good supply of cattleyas, mainly C. labiata, and they are in good demand at $12 per dozen. Cypripedium insigne Sanderæ is fairly abundant and there are small lots of yellow oncidiums and other orchids.

Valley is in good demand for fall weddings, and there are some nice nerines offered. Both Asparagus Sprengeri and A. plumosus are selling well.

Chrysanthemums in pots are more abundant, but the quality is not so good as usual. Plants which were grown in the field through the summer lost much foliage from fungoid affections and after potting did not establish themselves as well as usual. The wet summer was responsible for much leaf disease. Begonias and cyclamens are practically the only other flowering plants offered just now.

Various Notes.

Albert John Wollrath, of the firm of Wollrath & Sons, the noted pot plant specialists of Waltham, was married October 22 at St. Mark's church, Winthrop street, Roxbury, to Miss Lydia Malvina Pallo. A reception was held at 139 Beacon street, Waltham, in the evening, which was largely attended by friends and relatives. The young couple received many handsome presents and start out on life's highway with the sincere good wishes of numerous friends.

Fred W. Holbrow, of Dorchester, is bringing in some excellent Bouvardia Humboldtii and Oconto mums. He is at present busy installing an oil-heating plant for his greenhouses.

John J. O'Brien, the well known Beacon street florist, states that fall business is opening up satisfactorily. His store is in an exclusive part of the back bay and caters to a high-class trade. Mr. O'Brien spent a most delightful and profitable time at the F. T. D. convention in Baltimore and had a fine time also at Philadelphia.

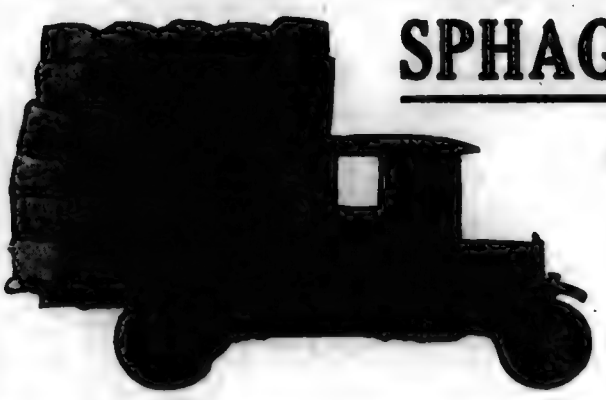
At the Park street store of Thomas F. Galvin, Inc., last week were noted some excellent nerines and, among orchids, fine Cypripedium insigne Sanderæ, as well as cattleyas and other species. A nice selection of chrysanthemums in pots, as well as begonias and cyclamens, was noted here.



The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Boston Flower Exchange, Inc., will be held at 8 p. m., Saturday, October 28, at the American house, 56 Hanover street, Boston. A large attendance is expected, in view of the consolidation of the wholesale market and the purchase of the Cyclorama building on Tremont street for a new grand central market, and much business of interest will come up.

William H. Ward, of Montvale, who formerly grew carnations, freesias and myosotis in quantity, now has all his greenhouses planted with Asparagus Sprengeri and A. plumosus.

At the store of T. J. Grey Co., on South Market street, Mr. Miller states that Dutch bulbs have sold remarkably well this season, but the high prices of French bulbs have greatly affected their sale. They are doing a good business now in market garden seed for greenhouse use.

Welch's, Inc., is keeping busy and is receiving some splendid stock. A large shipment of roses and mums from New Jersey is received several times a week and the quality is first-class.

There was an accumulated excess of temperature for the year of 671 degrees October 18. As if aware of this fact and with a desire to equalize matters a little, the weather man treated us to some really cool weather October 19 and 21. The temperature fell as low as 12 degrees and 15 degrees above zero not far from Boston and wiped out many fields of dahlias still in full beauty. It was the coldest spell of October

Use It With Flowers!

The great flour mills in Minnesota grind out hundreds of thousands of bushels of grain annually to feed the body, a necessity.

The flower growers of the country cut hundreds of thousands of flowers annually to satisfy the soul, a necessity.

Which of the two is the greater?

The Scriptures say: "Do not ye yet understand that whatsoever entereth in at the mouth goeth into the belly, and is cast out into the draught?"—St. Matthew, 15, 17.

FLOWERS! They quiet all unrestful thought and still the throbbing brain; they soothe like hymn from mother's lips the weary ache of pain.

weather experienced for twenty-two years, and caused a great run on the coal dealers for fuel from the many who had been lulled into security by the previously warm weather.

Penn's had an attractive wedding decoration at St. Cecilia's church, Boston, October 22. The bride carried an arm bouquet of valley and cattleyas; the maid of honor, one of Mme. Butterfly roses and cattleyas, and the bridesmaids, bouquets of Butterfly and blue larkspur. In one of the large show windows this week a pretty autumn scene is staged with a handsome painting of the Berkshire hills in autumn tint as a background.

A. A. Pembroke, of North Beverly, made his first shipment of carnations to the wholesale market October 20. His leading varieties this season are: Good Cheer, a great favorite; Laddie, T. C. Joy, Matchless, Aviator, Benora, Pink Delight and Morning Glow.

Now that frost has removed the foliage from many of the trees and shrubs in the Arnold Arboretum, the numerous varieties of cratægus make a brilliant show, heavily loaded with fruits. There are some 600 named varieties of cratægus in the arboretum, and the fruits on many are of remarkable size.

Plans have been prepared and approved for a fine garden in Franklin park, Boston, to cost about $120,000, which will include a large rose garden. Meantime the proposed $300,000 rose garden in the Arnold Arboretum, while not much discussed, is by no means abandoned and Professor Sargent has sanguine hopes to finance it successfully.

ing private estates on Long Island and nurseries in New Jersey.

Do not forget the annual fall show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, which will be held November 4 and 5. Chrysanthemums, groups of plants, winter-flowering begonias, fruits and vegetables will be the leading features.

William Sim's new carnation, Gold Dust, is proving to be one of the most popular varieties here this season. Mr. Sim is growing a large house of it, and the color is a taking one.

Some specially good chrysanthemums sold as high as $9 and $12 per dozen last week, quite like old-time prices.

The business of Peter Fisher, of Ellis, has been incorporated. Stanley, Mr. Fisher's eldest son, comes into the business. Mr. Fisher has by no means lost interest in carnations and has some fine seedlings coming along of the "bread and butter" type. W. N. C.

Penn the Florist is happy to report a smashing wedding month for October, when he had the largest number of bridal orders that he has ever had. On Columbus day, October 12, he had some thirty-two orders. Among the most notable orders for this date were the house and church decorations for the Horne-Phelan nuptials, when Miss Eleanor Horne, of Roxbury, was united in marriage to Captain Frank Phelan, of the governor's staff. The church of St. Mary of the Angels was beautifully decorated for the occasion with white and yellow chrysanthemums, autumn leaves, palms, etc., and arches were arranged in the center aisle of yellow chrysanthemums, ribbon and autumn foliage, with the same decorating material on each pew. The altar was decorated with autumn leaves, crotons, palms, southern smilax and white and yellow chrysanthemums. The home of the bride was decorated with yellow chrysanthemums and southern smilax, while the receiving room was banked with southern smilax and gold baskets of yellow chrysanthemums and the aisle posts with chrysanthemums and white ribbons. The bride's bouquet was composed of white bouvardia and white orchids, with showers of lily of the valley. The bouquet of the maid of honor was made of croton leaves and Farleyense ferns, with croton showers. Two of the four bridesmaids carried bouquets made of yellow chrysanthemums, tritomas, calendulas and Farleyense, while the other two carried bouquets of red gladioli, Farleyense and croton showers. It was a most unusual combination of flowers and yet one of the most attractive of recent weddings. St. Clement's church and the home of Miss Goodwin was also decorated on that day for the latter's wedding. Fred Maxwell supervised the decorations in both instances.

Port Allegany, Pa.—A representative of B. E. & J. T. Cokely, of Scranton, Pa., called at the Port Allegany Greenhouses last week and found all hands busy and business good. Mrs. E. G. Ventres is the proprietor of this firm, which has the distinction of being the first to install electric lights in its greenhouses in this part of the state. This is a great benefit to those customers who buy in the evening.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Oakland, Cal.—The Tennyson Nursery Co., of which Walter L. Bates is owner and manager, supplied many of the prize mums which made up one of the most attractive features of the east bay manufacturers' exposition, which began October 9 and continued for nine days.

Hollywood, Cal.—The Camille French Flower Shoppe announced its formal opening, which took place Tuesday afternoon, October 10, in the Hollywood-Vermont business district. Camille Lionais and Anna M. Hickel are the proprietors. The firm will handle cut flowers and do floral decorating work.

Tacoma, Wash.—The dahlia show held in connection with the western Washington fair, held recently, was pronounced to have been the finest show of this nature which growers have seen in that section of the country. The florists of Tacoma and vicinity were well represented. Among those who had exhibits, but who were not competing for prizes, were Mrs. Charles Turner, Tacoma; Mrs. W. H. Lee, Tacoma; Mrs. Sheffield, Burton; Mrs. F. S. Pomeroy, Seattle; Mrs. C. W. Showers, Kent; the Benthien Floral Co., Tacoma; the Western State hospital, Steilacoom; W. E. Sherbrooke, Kirkland; the Woodland Park Floral Co., Sumner; C. Coltas, Sedro Woolley; Mrs. Colvin, Fox Island.

KIRCHHOFF AT MONTEREY.

W. E. Kirchhoff, Sr., formerly at Pembroke, N. Y., where he grew the famous varieties of gladioli associated with his name, is now at Monterey, Cal., and, from the following account in the Monterey Herald, is carrying forward with equal success the work he began in the east:

W. E. Kirchhoff, Sr., came to Monterey last spring, and at the present time has ten acres of fine named varieties and seedlings of gladioli on Kimball avenue, near the Castroville road, three miles east of Monterey. Mr. Kirchhoff is well known throughout the east as a hybridizer and grower of the finest gladioli.

There are many of Mr. Kirchhoff's latest creations still in bloom, and he welcomes visitors who enjoy flower beauty, which is a revelation to many who first visit his place. There are several hundred seedlings which have not, as yet, been named, and visitors are invited to see these and to suggest names which they feel appropriate. Two new creations have been named Mrs. W. E. Olmstead and Monterey. These are both distinctive and decidedly better than any variety in their color. Mrs. W. E. Olmstead is a pure yellow; the flowers are well formed and correctly arranged on a massive spike. Monterey is a beautiful apricot shade, having the same qualities as the variety Mrs. W. E. Olmstead. The blooms of both are of immense size and of good substance.

Mr. Kirchhoff's booth at the recent fair at Monterey was one of the most attractive features of the exhibition.

WHITTIER, CAL.

Although it is in the immediate vicinity of Los Angeles, this flourishing little foothill town is not visited as often as some others by tourists. But it is a town of homes, and a good, steady business is always done here. Not much in the way of cut flowers is grown, the Los Angeles market being depended upon for stock.

Albert Knight has a good run of funeral work all of the time, and this, in connection with the greenhouses on Greenleaf avenue, keeps him busy. Mr. Knight's father recently came here from Cornwall, England, and will probably locate here with his son.

L. B. Merrick has an attractive nursery on South Passiter avenue, and has worked up a large stock of goods, salable plants. He has a good local business, but the majority of the stock is sold to other nurserymen and landscape gardeners. Everything is in fine trim and bears the imprint of careful culture. Business in the wholesale end is particularly good now, according to Mr. Merrick.

H. R. R.

The Market.

While there are still occasional slack days, the market cleans up well regularly and the amount of stock sold is remarkable. Dahlias have been arriving in enormous quantities, but they are sold every day, few being held over. Gladioli are good property and scarce. The mums, of course, are leaders and they were never so good in the history of the business as they are this year, as no rain fell during the flowering season. Although the blooms may revive after a shower and be good for local use, they never ship as well after being wet and, doubtless, the absence of rain accounts for the excellent reports received from all over. Besides the well known commercial varieties, there is a deep pink sport of Chieftain that is most attractive now and an excellent keeper. Bonnaffons are particularly good. The cool nights are helping the roses and shipments are going out in fine shape. Other choice stock is scarce. Small flowers are poor.

Various Notes.

G. L. Crego, lately of Portland, Ore., and previously of Maywood, Ill., has been in the city some time and is looking for land to locate here. Mr. Crego will be remembered as the grower of the beautiful type of aster which bears his name.

P. Matraia, of San Francisco, has been visiting the trade.

The E. C. Amling Co. is making a great showing of baskets, wreaths and other specialties in variety. The roses now coming from the Amling range at Santa Ana are particularly good. This firm has a lease on some property farther south than its present location, near the new Japanese market.

L. D. Jackson, for many years in the nursery business on Stephenson avenue, sold out recently and went to Texas, but decided that a small piece of land

CHRYSANTHEMUMS ARE FINE

This is a splendid year for Chrysanthemums. Not only are the blooms large, and the colors clear and bright, but the cool nights have hardened both flowers and foliage so that we can ship successfully long distances.

We can furnish a medium grade, but we specialize in quality blooms.

Read our advertisements in the issues of The Review, October 12th and 19th, for season's prices on Cyclamens and Heather. Don't fail to have at least a small shipment of the Lavender Pink Heather (Regerminans), for Thanksgiving. It is in wonderful condition this year.

Of course you know we have Lily of the Valley, Greens, and every seasonable flower or plant.

in southern California was better than the whole Lone Star state, so he has joined the army of buyers at Carlsbad, where he has secured five acres. Mr. Jackson intends to go into growing bulbs for the wholesale trade.

George J. Hall & Co. have taken another 5-year lease on their store at East Fifth street. They are going to remain with the wholesale district. Extra fine mums are sent out by them.

S. Murata & Co. are handling a most attractive line of goldfish in aquariums of different shapes and sizes. "Reggie" Overstreet has no need to take the Chevrolet to the beach any more, for he can catch the fish alive at the store. The shipping end of the business here is particularly good.

The mum season is in full swing at the store of W. Armacost & Co. Large shipments of the best commercial varieties are going out from this establishment daily. Although the price begins to favor the buyer a little, the best stock still holds up well and is easily worth the price asked. Roses are arriving in fine shape from the Sawtelle range, and local buyers are early on the lookout for them. H. R. R.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

Dry, warm weather brought the chrysanthemum crop up to a peak of volume and excellence last week. There was no dearth of other flowers in the market. Violets were in prime shipping condition, the first rain and the touch of autumn in the air having done away with the softness that marked the crops early in the month. Roses were good and fairly plentiful; they commanded satisfactory prices. There were plenty of carnations, as well as good crops of cosmos, gillyflowers, French, African and other kinds of marigolds, del-

Speaking of Gladioli

Do you know that the variety MRS. DR. NORTON is a most pleasing shade of apple-blossom pink, that BYRON L. SMITH is a superb lavender and GOLDEN MEASURE a glorious clear yellow? This is the English yellow which has been selling at several dollars a bulb. Having increased our plantings, we are now offering these three fine varieties and a few other good ones at prices within the reach of all progressive florists.

Here are the prices for immediate acceptance, fall delivery. Better get busy, as they are moving in large lots.

phiniums, etc. Scotch heather came in last week and was of good quality. Asparagus was reported to be somewhat short, but there were plenty of ferns, including woodwardia. Lily of the valley and gardenias were being cut in sufficient quantities to meet the demand and orchids were more plentiful. Burning bush, both red and yellow, was still in the market and there were excellent potted plants, especially cockscomb.

Various Notes.

Walter Armacost, a leading wholesale florist of Los Angeles, visited this city and was warmly welcomed by his friends in the trade.

Nearly 100 stage and motion picture stars are to perform at the California industries exposition on motion picture day. They have been brought by Daniel C. Frohman, noted theatrical producer. A percentage of the door receipts will be contributed to the actors' benefit fund, a fund for the aged and disabled actors. Mr. Frohman was welcomed by Mayor James Rolph, Jr.; Angelo J. Rossi, president of the exposition, and a number of other notables. Mr. Rossi, who is the junior partner in Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is credited with having done much to make the exposition the success that it is proving to be.

Adrian J. Schoorl is much gratified at the brisk manner in which his Holland bulbs have been selling. He said: "Most of the varieties in my recently received bulb shipments are selling fast and several varieties are about sold out. I expect an early clean-up. The condition in which the bulbs arrived was not so good as that of last year, although they were stored in a cool room. In my opinion this is due to the wet season they had in Holland and to early shipment, which prevented the bulbs from becoming sufficiently dry. They are just damp, but the quality is good. The rains early in the month made people anxious to plant their bulbs, and the trade has been exceptionally brisk since the rain."

Domoto Bros. state that shipping of chrysanthemums by the trade this fall is so brisk that the box factories cannot get out the supply of shipping crates fast enough. A little annoyance, but no serious inconvenience has been caused by this.

T. Oishi, of the United Flower & Supply Co., states that the firm is sending Manager H. K. Tanaka to Japan to make connections with Japanese firms for florists' specialties.

"Taxed to capacity," has become the slogan of J. A. Axell lately. He has enlarged his staff and sets his employees an example by working at top speed, which seems to be bringing satisfactory results in arousing emulation among the workers.

that he could put on a night shift, but goods for the refrigerator car have to be at the ferry by 7 p. m. E. W. McLellan is expected home in a few days. He has been touring the country for three months. His firm is now adding violets to the chrysanthemum activities which have been so strenuous this fall.

There is an unconfirmed rumor, which, however, comes from reliable sources, that Frank Thatcher, nephew of Angelo Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., may shortly become a benedict. Mr. Thatcher has just returned from the chief city of one of California's most noted valleys, and his friends say that the object of his trip was not entirely for the benefit of the florists' business.

Enomoto & Co. are handling some especially fine Turner chrysanthemums. For their All Saints' day orders for New Orleans, they are sending a good many pompon and other small mums, which are especially rich in autumn coloring. Enomoto & Co. have added two men to their staff, who do nothing but make up French bouquets of strawflowers. So heavy is the demand that these men are just able to keep the orders filled.

F. C. Jaeger & Son state that it is all they can do to keep up with their wholesale orders. "We sent away 10,000 chrysanthemum blooms on the last refrigerator car," said F. C. Jaeger, Jr.

The Charles C. Navlet Co. is meeting with great success in the sale of its Holland bulbs. L. Picetti says that he and the members of his staff are sending the bulbs out as fast as they can handle them. "They are good bulbs; we have been fortunate in receiving them," he declared.

Darbee's began their New Orleans shipments October 23 and 24. They are kept busy with chrysanthemums and violets, in which they specialize. Ac-arriving and they will soon be a thing of the past. Valley is coming in and is clearing every day. Business in general is on the increase.

Various Notes.

For a prominent double wedding of recent date, the Holden Floral Co. had the church decorations, for which were used 600 yellow mums and 2,000 yellow zinnias, with autumn leaves and greens. The bridal bouquets consisted of valley, gardenias and white orchids. Niklas & Son furnished the decorations for a large dinner dance following the wedding. Martin & Forbes furnished several corsages for the affair.

Thomas Luke, of the Smith Flower Shop, has returned from a booster caravan trip, this time in the interest of a world's fair for Portland, in 1927.

The setting up of a new 150-horsepower boiler has been completed at the Forest Grove range of Martin & Forbes.

J. E. Robinson has installed a mechanical stoker at his Woodstock place.

Miss Thelma Murray, of Hoyt Bros. Co., Spokane, Wash., was in the city last week.

At a meeting of the florist members of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, it was decided to hold a flower show in the Green room of the Chamber of Commerce building, November 14 to 16. Jesse Murray, William Fehrenbacker and R. E. Gehr will have charge of arrangements. N. V. H.

Outdoor flowers are about gone, although we have had no killing frost. Chrysanthemums are arriving almost in sufficient quantity to take care of the local demand. Carnations are arriving much better and longer-stemmed. Roses are unusually good and exceed the demand. Greenhouse-grown sweet peas are being offered; a few outdoor sweet peas are to be had.

Chrysanthemums, cyclamens, primulas and ferns make up the stock in potted plants.

Various Notes.

The frost's holding off is making business quiet for this time of the year. However, we all look for good trade when it does get started. The stock

Jack Burt and F. R. McCormick recently drove to Seattle and Portland, Ore., calling on the trade. Mr. Burt reports the florists down at the coast are all fine fellows to call on and that they helped to make the trip more enjoyable by showing the visitors the town, as well as the greenhouses.

The Glenrose Greenhouses are cutting some fine yellow carnations.

Funeral work has not been quite so heavy this fall as in other years. One of the largest funerals was for the manager of the Pantages theater. The Elks' temple was one bower of flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Hill have returned from a 2-week trip, part of the time having been spent at Vancouver, B. C. A number of greenhouses were visited, where the stock looked as though Vancouver will not suffer for the want of good plants and cut flowers. One firm seen has 2,400 fine azaleas to offer the Christmas trade. H. H.

Seed Trade News

President, Alexander Forbes, Newark, N. J.; secretary, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

FRED BARTELDES, Lawrence, Kan., will celebrate his seventieth birthday anniversary October 28.

R. B. HOWE, president of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, says that bulbs of all kinds are moving nicely and that many shortages have developed.

THE first 269 claims presented at the office of the receiver against the Everette R. Peacock Co., Chicago, bankrupt, amounted to approximately $454,991.

THE Beckert Seed & Bulb Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., is corresponding under one of the neatest letterheads in the trade. Regarding the letterhead, a prominent Chicago seedsman said, "That kind of stationery counts."

C. D. COVENTRY, secretary of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, has returned from his trip to the west. He reports that the firm's Idaho bean crop is splendid and that business throughout the west is generally good.

HERE is a bit of philosophy and consolation to seedsmen as tacked to the wall of a prominent Chicago seed firm: "For when the One Great Scorer comes to write against your name, He writes not that you won or lost, but how you played the game."

GEORGE G. STUMPP and Julian H. Walter, of Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, N. Y., have purchased the realty of the firm's present location, at 30 and 32 Barclay street. The building is a 5-story structure on a lot 51x101.10. The purchase price was $180,000.

THE Lake Park Seed & Plant Co., of Lancaster, Pa., has filed a suit for $100,000 damages against J. M. Eaby, a bond holder, of Paradise, Pa., alleging that the request for receivership that he recently filed was unwarranted and has hurt the firm's reputation. The company has published a report by accountants declaring the company has surplus assets of $810,513.

THE Western Canners' Association will hold its seventy-seventh semiannual convention at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, November 9 and 10, and the Wisconsin Pea Canners' Association will hold its annual convention at Milwaukee the following week, November 13 to 16. Secretary J. A. Hageman, of Fort Atkinson, Wis., says that it will be one of the biggest and best conventions the Wisconsin association has ever held.

SETTLING POSTAGE RUMORS.

Rumors have recently been circulated that the Postoffice department intends putting an additional rate of 3 cents per package on all parcel post packages after January 1, 1923.

The committee on postal laws of the American Seed Trade Association, of which G. F. Bradley, of Cleveland, is chairman, requested a definite statement from the acting third assistant postmaster general, and his reply is as follows:

"I am in receipt of your letter of the 11th instant, which the Postmaster General has referred to me, in regard to a proposed change in postage rates on fourth-class, or parcel post mail.

"While the matter of a general readjustment of postage rates, including parcel post rates, is receiving consideration, no change has as yet been decided upon. LOSSES ON DUTCH BULBS.

Importers of bulbs are recovering from the panic into which they were thrown by the flood of complaints that struck them a fortnight ago. It now appears that practically all of the season's imports arrived in good shape except the consignments on the New Amsterdam, which reached New York September 9. Unfortunately, the New Amsterdam had the largest shipment of the season, a total of 13,758 cases, out of the total of 55,218 cases so far received through the port of New York. There were thirty-eight consignees among the importers who had stock on the New Amsterdam, but this means little, because four different custom-house brokers each had over 1,000 cases, which were consolidated shipments, now scattered far and wide across America. It is reported that the shipments on the New Amsterdam were nearly all insured against heating and that Lloyd's now has thirty men working on the claims which already have resulted. New York representatives of the insurers were at Chicago last week and are still in the west.

It seems that the narcissi on the New Amsterdam were practically ruined. Cutting the bulbs shows a loss of from seventy-five to eighty per cent. The insurers want to settle on that basis, but of what value are the remaining sound bulbs if their soundness only can be determined by cutting them in two? Early tulips also heated on this boat, but hyacinths appear to have come through safely.

Next year it probably will be impossible to insure bulbs against heating. Lloyd's back away whenever they get heavily hit, as has happened several times before. Then, for a year or two, no insurance is available at any reasonable rate. Subsequently they begin taking on a little more each year until another heavy loss ensues.

It develops that moderate quantities of bulbs have come to the United States this year via Montreal, and there are reports that some of the stock on the New Amsterdam had been ordered to be shipped through Canada, the exporters ignoring their shipping instructions. The probability is that next season many large importers will have their bulbs come by various routes and that no one boat from Holland to America will bring such a large quantity as came on the New Amsterdam this year.

A speaker can do most when he has a large audience willing to listen. So following, in advertising the best results can be obtained from advertisements where the greatest number of people observe them with a maximum interest.

In big metropolises people ride on street cars and while they ride they read, often finding a great deal of time to observe the car card advertisements. Perhaps this is the reason why the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, chose street cars as the place for the charm-

GLADIOLUS NOVELTIES

Mostly all of our own raising, including our new Gladiolus Maiden's Blush, of which the Florists' Review writes as follows:

Gladiolus Maiden's Blush originated with J. J. Grullemans & Sons of Lisse, Holland, being one of a number of Primulinus hybrids of pronounced early flowering habit. The color of this beautiful variety is of a most attractive shade of light pink and some good judges think Maiden's Blush will become one of the most widely grown and popular varieties, when it is well known. It is said that this variety will force in the greenhouse in seven weeks.

We offer to the trade, as follows:

In this case the travelers had something worth while looking at, a car card that really attracted. Imagine the moon in the illustration a bright yellow and the rest of the type and adornments a pretty shade of green, and you have in mind the effect that hit those that read the advertisement "right between the eyes." This car card has succeeded in bringing considerable business into the store. People must be appealed to before they will act.

NEW BRITISH SWEET PEAS.

Describing new sweet peas, the Horticultural Trade Journal, of London, England, says: "Orange Prince Spencer is a splendid new sweet pea, most easily described as being in the way of George Shawyer, which may be designated a giant orange salmon with rosy tinted wings. Orange Prince Spencer is of a brighter shade and does not burn in the sun, a quality which will earn for it an assured place among sweet peas. Advance has a charming white ground, richly flushed rose pink; nearly every stem has huge duplex flowers. Rosemary, of a distinct color which may be best described as a rich cherry red on white, produces many fours. Powerscourt is the largest-flowered and strongest-growing lavender sweet pea yet AGENCY LAWS AND SEED SALES.

Seed Containing Foreign Matter.

Where a buyer of seed entrusts its receipt and planting to an employee and the seed is manifestly not in the condition required by the contract of sale, the buyer will not be permitted to hold the seller liable for resulting crop loss, holds the California District Court of Appeal in the case of Daley vs. Irwin, 205 Pacific Reporter, 76.

The plaintiff bought barley seed from the defendant under a contract requiring the seed to be recleaned. On delivery, the seed proved to contain foreign substances. Yet the buyer's ranch foreman received the seed, and sowed part of it in the buyer's absence. Under these circumstances the court holds that the proper measure of damages recoverable by plaintiff buyer was limited to the difference between the value of the seed contracted for and that delivered, and not the loss resulting from planting the inferior seed. In the course of its opinion, the Court of Appeal says:

As Court Sees It.

"The barley supplied, although claimed by the defendant to be recleaned, was full of weed seeds, radish seeds, chaff and trash, which was apparent upon the most casual inspection, notwithstanding which Ramos, with the aid of his workmen, and in spite of their repeated complaints that the operation of the seeders was delayed by the large amount of foreign matter in the seed, proceeded to sow this barley, and continued to do so until the return of the plaintiff to the ranch, who immediately ordered its planting to be discontinued, and procured from other sources the remaining seed necessary to complete the sowing of the ranch.

"It is conceded by the respondent, as indeed it must be, that the plaintiff could not enhance his damages arising from the breach of warranty as to the quality of the seed by sowing it, with knowledge of its true character, and charging to the defendant the difference in value between the crop realized and that which would in all probability have been realized had the seed been of the quality sold, but is confined to the difference in value between the seed as warranted and that actually delivered; but, in support of the judgment, it is the contention of the respondent that he was entitled to rely upon the warranty arising from a sale of seed of specified quality or variety, that he had no personal knowledge of the inferior character of the seed actually supplied until after the bulk of it had been sown upon his land, and that he is not chargeable with the knowledge of the true character of the seed possessed by his agent, Ramos, since, according to the plaintiff, Ramos was a mere menial or farm hand, without authority to represent his employer in the acceptance or rejection of the barley ordered from the defendant. we have already said, there is no conflict in the evidence of the authority of Ramos, in spite of his employer's belated attempt to belittle it. . . .

"It seems clear to us that in the case at bar the plaintiff, as a matter of law, was charged with the knowledge acquired by Ramos as to the character of the seed supplied by the defendant, and that the instructions of the court to the jury on the question of damages should have excluded all loss arising from the sowing of the barley, and been confined to what the court in its charge termed 'general damages,' i. e., the excess, if any, of value which the barley would have had if it had complied with the warranty over its actual value. This they did not do, but erroneously permitted the jury to find damages based upon the character of the crop resulting from the sowing of the seed." S.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Theodore Payne, Los Angeles, Cal.—"Bulbs and Flower Seeds for Fall Planting," a neat and businesslike pocket-form booklet, compactly but clearly printed; sixteen pages, in a pleasing gray cover with green lettering. Though Mr. Payne carries a general stock, he specializes in exotics and California native species.

Peter Hopman & Sons, Hillegom, Holland.—Wholesale catalogue of gladioli, in which the company specializes; eight pages, in a cream-colored cover. The stock offered, though it consists largely of standard varieties, includes some new ones, a few of which are of Hopman origination. Though the catalogue itself is not illustrated, enclosed in it are several separate leaflets, each of which bears a fine half-tone picture.

McClellan Refrigerating Co., Chicago, Ill.—"Ice by Wire," an excellent specimen of catalogue-making, presenting an interesting and persuasive argument, by means of both text and illustrations, in favor of the McClellan refrigerating machine; twenty-four pages, printed in first-rate style and bound in a well designed, appropriate cover. "This machine," says the company, "was the first to be used and perfected for individual refrigeration."

Thomasville Nurseries, Thomasville, Ga.—"Twenty-fifth Anniversary Booklet; Hjort's Thrifty Roses and Ornamental Plants"; sixteen pages, clearly printed and well illustrated. The cover, with its roses in colors on the front page and a black-and-white outdoor view on the back, is tasteful and attractive. A general line of nursery stock is offered, as well as some varieties that are particularly suitable for the south. The roses, which occupy half a dozen or more pages, are said to be "budded on vigorous stocks, adapted to the long summers and occasional droughts in the south."

Louisville Nurseries, St. Matthews, Ky.—"Artistic Homes"—such is the inscription, in green, embossed letters, on the handsome and artistic golden brown cover of this 60-page catalogue. On the first page of the text is the more explicit title, "Artistic Home Landscapes and How to Produce Them." The contents of the book are true to the title, presenting some helpful suggestions, especially by means of alluring pictures of home grounds. Altogether, in typography, illustrations and general arrangement, the book is unquestionably attractive. Full lines of nursery stock, both hard-wooded and herbaceous, are listed. The nurseries are owned by the Wood, Stubbs Co.

Barteldes Seed Co., Lawrence, Kan., and Denver, Colo.—A notably handsome and accurate 16-page bulb catalogue, containing many finely colored illustrations. This catalogue was issued early in the season and was mentioned in The Review of July 27. Enclosed in the copy just received, however, is an October "pink list," quoting current wholesale prices of grass seeds, alfalfa and other field seeds, nursery stock for fall planting, implements and supplies.

HIS MONEY'S WORTH.

It is a pleasure to anyone, no matter what line of business he is in, to know that his customers have found his goods satisfactory and profitable to use. When a man spends $19.20 for an advertisement it is a pleasure to know that he receives more than $5,000 in returns, like this:

I want to say a good word for The Review as an advertising medium. Some time since I sent you a small ad and it brought me one order for an even $5,000 and of course other orders followed.—A. T. Cook, Hyde Park, N. Y., October 15, 1922.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

LA PORTE, IND.

The Ove Gnatt Co. reports that business has come back strongly this season. Fred Hennoch states that the concern never had so many orders on hand at this date in any previous year, with the prospect that they will all be working at capacity up to December 15. The company has had several tenants in a part of its building, but some of these have been induced to move and the extra space has been added to the Gnatt facilities. Negotiations are under way to obtain the space occupied by all the other tenants, which will make much needed room. At present the perpetuation and dyeing of ruscus, statice and lycopodium is being pushed. Several carloads of lycopodium have been taken in and the ruscus has arrived from Italy, considerably later than in other years. The company's new catalogue was mailed October 1.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

ROBERT PYLE, president of the American Rose Society and president of the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., lectured before the Garden Club of Worcester Thursday, October 19, in Horticultural hall, Worcester, Mass.

APROPOS of the suggestion in this department last week that nurserymen could make far more sales if they facilitated the assistance of florists, J. A. Young, secretary of the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association, comments, "This man has the right idea. Florists could add a neat sum to their profits and the nursery business would be helped in a tremendous way, should all the florists undertake to sell nursery stock. A committee from the S. A. F. and one from the A. A. N. which would coöperate could bring about an even greater degree of mutual helpfulness between florists and nurserymen."

MICHIGAN NURSERYMEN.

B. J. Manahan, president of the Michigan State Association of Nurserymen, will issue a call in the near future to all Michigan nurserymen to attend a state meeting at Grand Rapids, Mich., during the month of December, 1922. The object of this meeting is to form a closer and more active state association of Michigan nurserymen. All nurserymen are cordially invited to attend this meeting, whether members of the A. A. N. or not. Notice of the date of the meeting and its location will be mailed to all Michigan nurserymen within a short time.

TREE PLANTING WEEK.

From October 27 to November 3.

Members of the Illinois Nurserymen's Association who attended the convention of that organization in the Congress hotel, Chicago, last January will, no doubt, recall the rousing discussion which took place during one of the sessions, starting the ball rolling toward the "Plan to Plant Another Tree" movement, with Secretary J. A. Young, Aurora, Ill., as its leader. They will also recall how their imaginations carried them far beyond material things under the influence of Mr. Young's oratorical powers. But it is doubtful whether any of these men, not excepting Mr. Young himself, foresaw or could have predicted the extent to which the ripple, caused by the pebble thrown into the silent pool at that time, was destined to spread. To have produced a state tree planting week, held March 12 to 19, 1922, was an accomplishment worthy of much praise, but to have created a ripple which has generated enough momentum to carry itself throughout the entire country, culminating in a national tree planting week, with the endorsement of state governors from coast to coast and with nurserymen's associations working together on the project as one vast machine, within a period of less than ten months, is certainly an unheard-of piece of work in the annals of the nursery industry. The movement is no longer a dream, but is a thought which is now being crystallized into a reality.

Governors Endorse Project.

Governors of states have issued proclamations setting aside October 27 to November 3 as Tree Planting week, and as an indication of the spirit in which these proclamations are being issued, let us quote Len Small, governor of Illinois, who said: "Tree Planting week, October 27 to November 3, has my hearty approval. I urgently recommend that this week be observed throughout the state. This is a splendid movement and deserves the hearty support of every public-spirited citizen in Illinois."

The movement is not merely a means of disposing of nursery stock. It has for its object the preservation of natural beauty, the increase of the number of flower, fruit, nut, shade and ornamental trees and shrubs, as well as those for timber, shelter and protection. The nurserymen are the natural sponsors of any movement of this nature, and upon them the responsibility has devolved. Who else is better fitted to carry out this important work? Do not the nurserymen spend their lives perfecting these valuable treasures of the country?

Of what does the equipment consist with which this task is expected to be accomplished? How large is the body of nurserymen who are deployed throughout the entire country and who must be drawn together? The nursery industry comprises about 4,000 nurserymen and has a vast sum of invested capital. The annual sales are computed to be about $20,000,000. This industry must be looked to to furnish the trees for forestation, for fruit and for shade, as well as ornamental trees, and above all, it furnishes a wealth of expert knowledge, contributing in every conceivable way to the health and happiness of the entire population of the country. In addition to this, the nursery industry adds to the property value and increases the economic values of the country each year. It tends to conserve the moisture and adds to the crop values from year to year.

Nurserymen Seek Coöperators.

In order to make a success of this project, the nurserymen are aware that they must coöperate with other organizations, which are working along similar lines of endeavor. A prominent nurseryman in each state has been selected to act as key man in his state. Farm bureaus, farmers' institutes and all civic organizations and clubs have been appealed to for their assistance by the nurserymen. But the nurserymen cannot fail to realize that they have an ally more potent than any of the above-mentioned organizations. They must also make their appeal to the florist. What more logical person is there to act as an agent for the nursery industry than the florist? Do not the florists come into personal contact with exactly the people with whom the nurserymen must deal, if they intend to make a success of their movement? It is also to the advantage of the florist to advocate the planting of trees and shrubs, as this is in a direct line with his own campaign of educating the public into the use of more flowers and greens. There is a large market waiting to be opened in this field.

Along with the campaign to increase the number of sales in the nursery industry, it is the desire of the nurserymen to give as much information as possible regarding the planting and culture of the trees and shrubs they sell. They must instruct the purchasers of the stock in the proper care of it and show them how to protect the stock from the ravages of disease and pests which are almost certain to be encountered. In connection with the movement to encourage the planting of trees, shrubs and flowers, therefore, the nurserymen have also instituted a campaign of education and a clip sheet has been prepared which contains information on what, when and how to plant and how to care for the trees after they are planted, together with many other suggestions and advice concerning the national tree planting week. This sheet can be had by addressing J. A. Young, Aurora, Ill.

In the way of advertising the movement the nurserymen have produced a full-page advertisement for running in the daily press, which explains in full detail what the object of the movement is. The wording of the advertisement is reproduced below:

Plan to Plant Another Tree. By official proclamation of the governors of the various states, your attention is urgently called to Tree Planting week, October 27 to November 3.

From Atlantic to Pacific, from the palm tree to the pine, all over this broad land, good people who enjoy beautiful surroundings will plant trees during Tree Planting week.

Trees, hedges and blossoming shrubs can make your home, your community and your nation the garden of the world. Bring the contentment of nature's landscapes—the inspiration of her forest trees—the elegance of her bounteous fruits and flowers into your daily life!

"Home, Sweet Home," will be sweeter still with trees and shrubs and flowers around your door. Since time began trees and fruits have been of tremendous value to mankind.

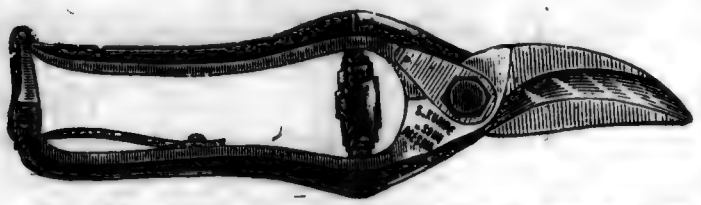
Garden clubs, chambers of commerce and other civic organizations, universities and public schools, farmer clubs and farm bureaus indorse Tree Planting week.

Don't forget the date, October 27 to November 3. Order your trees and plants at once. Explain this movement to your friends and neighbors—see your local nurseryman. Every individual should plant a tree.

This page advertisement, also prepared by Mr. Young, carries space for the signatures of florists and nurserymen who contribute the cost of its insertion in their local newspaper.

DECIDUOUS FRUIT TREES.

The Identification of Root Stocks.



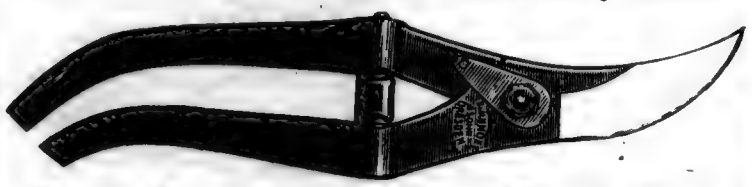
Horticulturists have at various times devoted considerable thought and study to the question of root stocks. This problem is of peculiar interest to the orchardist and nurseryman of California on account of the wide range of soil and climatic conditions existing within the confines of the state, bringing into existence the most extensive and varied fruit industry of the world. On account of this diversity, the question of proper rootstocks for different fruits and various environments here assumes an importance not approached in any other fruit growing section.

Fruit growing has been of the greatest commercial importance in California for more than half a century; nevertheless, the rich soils and favorable climatic environments of the state have been largely responsible for the success of the industry rather than the expert knowledge of the growers. With the advent of higher land values and keener competition, orchardists are each year

Paper on "The Identification of Deciduous Fruit Tree Rootstocks," by Warren P. Tufts, assistant professor in pomology at the University of California, delivered before the Sacramento convention of the California Nurserymen's Association.

The Kunde & Son Normal Double Cut Pruning Shears

are the Shears that give satisfaction. Once used, you would not be without them



No. 135. Normal Double Cut Pruning Shears.—This is the best and strongest all around shears for nurseries and florists. Will cut a branch 1 inch in diameter; 8 inches long. Price $3.00 each; $30.00 per dozen.

We gave the Kunde double cut pruning shears a good trial by cutting the tops of the budded Manetti roses, which were very heavy, but they stood the test, as they worked very satisfactorily. Also the knives we bought are very fine. Please send us by return mail six more shears.

Yours truly,
KOSTER & CO.
Bridgeton, N. J.

With regard to the shears which you sent us as a sample: We have given them a fair trial and we think them far superior to anything we have used in the way of domestic shears, having used about all of the different makes. They seem to carry an edge very satisfactorily and they are built so substantial that the blades do not seem to spread apart under severe strain of cutting as do the domestic shears.

No. 136. Normal Double Cut Pruning Shears.—With very narrow, heavy blades which will enable you to get into very narrow space where you could not get with any other pruning shears. Will cut up to 1-inch branch; 8 inches long. Price $3.25 each; $32.00 per dozen.

demanding more specific knowledge of the facts upon which their business is based. As the acreage devoted to horticultural crops has increased in California, plant pests—insect, bacterial and fungal—have become more numerous both by introduction from other regions and by adaptation from native host plants. Accumulated experience and observation lead the present-day horticulturist to the conclusion that in order to secure rootstocks adapted to various environments, which at the same time are resistant to plant pests, it will be necessary to make a more thorough study of the whole problem.

Level of Water Table.

Excessive irrigation has caused the water table to rise in recent years, in certain orchard regions, to such an extent that the root systems are often submerged in water for long periods of time. As virgin soils are put under cultivation new problems constantly arise; for example, the calcareous nature of the subsoil in one section is causing fruit growers considerable apprehension. The leaves of pear trees are here rendered chlorotic by the excessive lime content of the soil. Observations have shown that trees on certain stocks are more resistant to chlorosis, which seems to be physiological in nature. Other problems facing the present-day grower are pear blight (Bacillus amylovorus) and oak root fungus (Armillaria mellea), diseases for which no satisfactory methods of control have yet been discovered. The remedy for the above-mentioned troubles will possibly be found in the selection of proper root-stocks. Native untried roots may solve many of these problems, but should this not prove to be the case desirable roots indigenous to other countries must be found and utilized.

Difficulties in Recognizing Roots.

One of the chief difficulties the California agricultural experiment station has encountered in conducting a systematic study of the rootstock problem has been the lack of a definite means of identification of roots of deciduous fruit trees now in common use. In the hope that a more definite knowledge of the subject might be had, this investigation was undertaken with two objects in view: First, to determine, if possible, constant gross morphological differences between the more common rootstocks used for the propagation of deciduous fruits in California, that might be used as means of differentiation when nothing more than a portion of the root system is available; second, to differentiate between the various kinds of stocks on the basis of microscopic anatomical study of their root structure.

In a brief article of this nature it does not seem advisable to attempt a lengthy dissertation on the methods employed and the minute differences discovered. The observations briefly outlined below are the result of a year's study involving close examination of more than 10,000 microscopic sections and hundreds of individual roots collected under as widely varying soils and climatic conditions as possible. Roots of various ages were used in all cases.

Anatomical Differentiations.

Although many species of roots appear identical from external appearances, distinct differences are to be found in their anatomical structure. The chief results of the investigation in the stone fruit rootstocks were as follows: First, with the exception of the apricot, color should not be used as a criterion when trying to identify a deciduous fruit tree rootstock, as the color of the apricot root is always beet-red; second, the almond and peach roots can be separated by the character of the lenticels and bark surface, the lenticels of the former being smooth and rarely protruding more than one-sixteenth of an inch above the surface of the bark or exceeding a longitudinal height—distance measured parallel to axis of root—of one-sixteenth of an inch, the bark on old roots being relatively rough, the lenticels of the peach being decidedly rough and protruding one-eighth inch or more above the surface of the bark, reaching a longitudinal height of the same distance, the bark of this root being always smooth; third, although the common peach and Davidiana peach are identical with one another from external appearances, they are distinctly different from an anatomical point of view; fourth, the only definite method determined for the identification of Myrobalan plum root is of an anatomical nature; while the bitter and astringent taste of the Mazzard cherry separates it from the Mahaleb.

The following are the observations with pome fruit rootstocks: Pear, quince and apple roots are identical with one another in many respects, externally and internally. The only positive means determined for the separation of these roots was by an anatomical study.

The writers realize that the above brief statements are of little practical value to the layman; nevertheless, the facts seemed to be of sufficient interest to present them at this time. Practically no difficulty is experienced in quickly distinguishing one prunus root from another by the methods worked out by Heppner. However, further studies will be necessary to enable definite differentiation between the roots of the various cultivated species of the pyrus group. It is hoped that these facts, with adequate illustrations, may shortly be made available to horticultural workers in California.

ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS.

The Market.

The nice fall weather of a week ago has given place to dark, cloudy and partly rainy weather. Heavy frosts have killed outside vegetation and indoor crops are slow in coming on. Chrysanthemums are slowly opening and stock of all sorts is scarce and easily disposed of. There have been many large social events, some requiring elaborate decorations.

Minneapolis Flower Festival.

Twin City florists who are on the general flower show committee have been busy during the summer making plans for the big show to be staged in the Minneapolis National Guard armory, November 11 to 16. For the last month meetings have been held every week or oftener, getting details in shape.

Dr. Allen, who has had considerable experience in managing shows of various sorts in the armory, has been selected to manage the flower show. Instead of the ordinary method of raising a guarantee fund for shows of this sort, blocks of tickets have been purchased at their full value, to be resold or given as complimentary tickets to their customers; 15,000 of these tickets have been subscribed at the present time.

The final premium list was mailed October 23 and totals about $5,000. Nearly $1,000 of this has been subscribed by members of the trade in special premiums.

The National Guard armory is to be decorated in an artistic manner. Some seventy-five cases of southern smilax have been purchased for this purpose. The staging will be arranged in the

The Market.

Business has been fairly good, considering the fact that it is taxpaying time, which usually causes apathy in the flower market.

Roses of excellent quality have been appearing and have been moving at from $4 to $15 per hundred. The quality is good. The quality of carnations is daily improving, but prices are about the same as they were, because of the fact that mums are coming in. The latter are more plentiful and sell at from $2 to $5 per hundred. The varieties appearing are Golden Glow, Chrysolora, Golden Queen, Harbinger, Tokio, Crystal White, Oconto and Comoleto.

Some orchids, at $1.50 each, are on the market. Valley is available at $6 to $8. All garden flowers are gone since the killing frost. Green goods are ample for the demand.

Various Notes.

The Smith & Young Co. is cutting some good orchids.

Baur & Steinkamp are cutting a number of good seedling mums.

C. R. Greene has returned from a trip after attending the F. T. D. convention at Baltimore.

Carl Engelmann, of Saffron Walden, England, was a visitor in the city October 19. He was entertained at dinner at the Spink Arms by the Indiana florists. Fred Husted, of New Albany; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Peterson, of Cincinnati; E. G. Hill, of Richmond; Louis Kirch, of Louisville, Ky., and Al. Warner, of Noblesville, were in the city for the occasion.

The November meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association will be held November 2, instead of November 7, at Baur & Steinkamp's establishment. E. E. T.

WHEN you leave the fumigator burning in the greenhouse and shut the door after you—how sure are you that it will do its work?

That all depends on the fumigator.

It lights quickly, burns evenly and will not go out. No waste—every particle is consumed.

It is guaranteed to contain 12½% pure nicotine and it retains this strength indefinitely—the air-tight tins take care of that. It is most economical; in fact, it costs but 75 cents to fumigate a greenhouse (30 by 200 feet).

Greenhouse Heating

Subscribers are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

USING OLD BOILERS.

I should like to use a few Ideal W-15-5 boilers. The radiation of each one is estimated at 500 feet; they have five sections and the fire box of each is 15x28 inches. I should like to use two of these for one house, and the temperature to be maintained in the house is 50 degrees, with the outside temperature at 30 degrees below zero.

If I were to use only one of these boilers, how large a house would it heat? There will be two feet of masonry and thirty-two inches of glass in the side walls. How many feet of 3-inch pipe for the flows and 2-inch pipe for the returns will be required? I am asking you this because it is possible for me to obtain these boilers at a reasonable figure and they are nearly new.

E. J. M.—Wash.

If only one of the boilers is to be used, we suggest that a house 20x40 feet be built. Except for the severe weather reported, the house might be 20x50 feet, and with plants in the house that would not be injured by a drop to 45 degrees in the temperature for a few hours, it would be safe to use one of the boilers in a house of this size, especially if a little extra attention is given to the firing when the outside temperature is more than 15 degrees below zero.

For such a house, it would be advisable to use three 2½-inch overhead flow pipes and twelve 2-inch returns, placing one flow on each side wall plate and the other three feet below the ridge. All of the flow pipes may be supplied by means of one 3-inch main flow from the boiler to a point just inside the greenhouse. The returns may be in from three to five coils, according to the arrangement of the benches.

If two boilers are to be used, two houses, 24x50 feet, could be heated, provided they are built with one wall in common, or they could be 20x50 feet if built separately. In case the two boilers are to be used for one long house, this house might be 20x100 feet, although it would be preferable to make it a width of twenty-six feet, in which case the house should be about seventy-five feet in length. Such a house can be heated by means of three 2½-inch flows and eleven 2-inch returns. Whatever the size and number of the returns in the coils, the same sizes of pipes should be used in the main returns as were used in the main flows. In other words, the main return to each boiler should be 3-inch, and to connect a coil of four 2-inch return pipes, seventy-five feet long, with the main return, a 2½-inch pipe will be needed.

If a house is to be twenty feet wide, it would be advisable to make the ridge

USING TWO BOILERS.

I am building three greenhouses, 20x 60 feet, 12x60 feet and 16x60 feet, respectively. The respective heights to the ridge are twelve, eight and ten feet. In the first house there are eighteen inches of glass in the east wall, while the south end is exposed. The south end of the second house is exposed, while the south end of the third house is exposed and there are thirty inches of glass in the west wall. At the north end of the houses there will be a connecting house.

I have about 1,600 feet of 2-inch pipe, together with a small amount of 3-inch and 4-inch pipe. Kindly advise me how the piping can be arranged to the best advantage. The first house will have four benches, and I thought of putting in one 3-inch flow through the cen-

A furnace is no better than its poorest joint

There is one furnace lining that always presents its full strength to the inferno of the furnace—

Plibrico is delivered only in steel containers of distinctive appearance as shown below.

PLIBRICO JOINTLESS FURNACE LINING

Unweakened by joints, Plibrico, the jointless fire brick, will far outlast the ordinary furnace, thus justifying its slightly greater cost many times over.

Plibrico is a superior refractory in the handiest form — unbaked, so that it may be molded and pounded into any required shape to suit any possible furnace requirement. It is then baked or vitrified in place, forming a rock-like, gas-tight, and, above all, a jointless refractory lining, resistant to temperatures ranging to 3100 F. Its form makes it universally adaptable; its quality makes it best for every purpose.

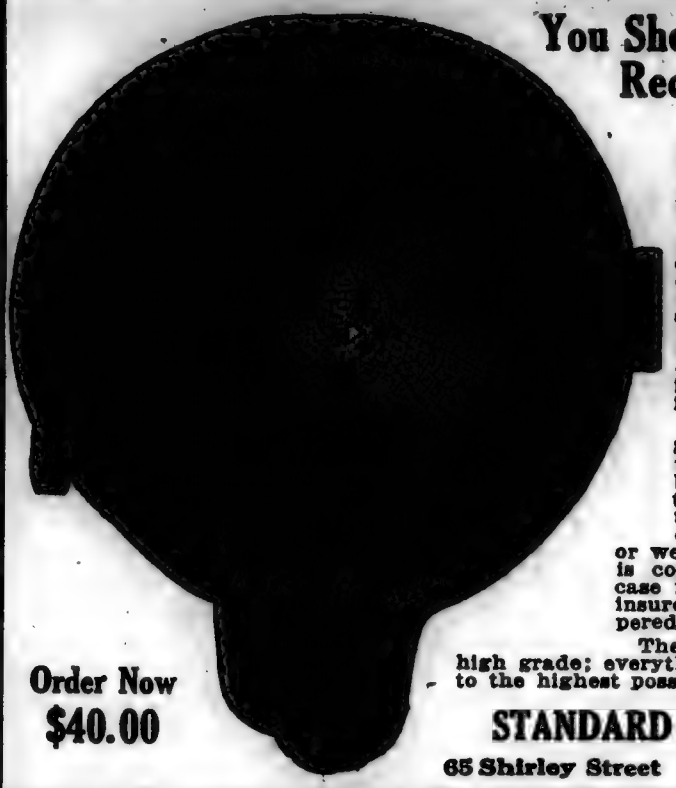
ter to connect with two 2-inch pipes under the middle benches. I also thought of putting in one 2½-inch pipe on the east wall to connect with three 2-inch pipes. Then there would be one 2-inch pipe to connect with two 2-inch pipes on the west wall and two 2-inch flows and two coils of two 2-inch pipes in the second house. In the third house there would be two 2½-inch flows and three 2-inch coils on the sides, one 2-inch flow and one 2-inch coil down the middle to heat the house to 55 degrees when the outside temperature is 10 degrees below zero. I have two Gurney boilers. One of these has a 26-inch grate and the other has a 22-inch grate. Are these boilers going to be large enough to heat the range?

G. W. B.—Mass.



The radiation as outlined above seems admirably planned and there are no criticisms to make. It would give good results without the slightest change.

There are, however, two points which might improve it slightly. It is noted that you propose to use a 3-inch overhead flow pipe for the middle of house No. 1. This would be all right, but, as we figure it, this house will have a slight excess of radiation and, if there are enough 2½-inch pipes on hand, it would be preferable to substitute that size, especially as a 2½-inch flow pipe will be sufficiently large to supply the coil of two 2-inch return pipes; in fact, it would probably answer if a 2-inch flow pipe were used for the middle coil in this house.

In house No. 3, it is noted that three 2-inch pipes are used in the coil on the east wall and only one return is used in the middle coil. It would be advisable to use two returns in each of these coils and three on the west wall, which, as it is understood, has two and a half feet of exposed glass.

The small heater has sufficient capacity for the house 20x60 feet, and the other two houses can be handled by the large heater. If it can be arranged without too much trouble, the suggestion is made that the flow and return pipes from the three houses be connected into headers, with which the flows and returns to and from the heaters be joined. If this is properly done, it should be possible to heat the three houses with the large boiler in mild weather, or for perhaps one-half of the time between September and May.

Elmira, N. Y.—The Rosery Garden Shop, formerly at 182 North Main street, has moved into its new location at 160 North Main street. The new store was planned and laid out by Jay Parker, its manager. In addition to the cut flowers and plants, the firm also carries a full line of seeds and bulbs.

You Should Have a Standard Recording Thermometer

J. K. Alexander, the dahlia king, East Bridgewater, Mass., writes: "Your thermometer is the best I have seen for my business."

Records are as important in the growing business as in any other business. Progressive growers who spare no effort in raising highest grade stock use Standard Recording Thermometers and know the great aid of keeping records of temperatures. Your equipment is far from complete if you have no Standard Recording Thermometer.

The actuating element of the Standard Recording Thermometer is of lamina metal, which, besides being extremely sensitive to temperature changes, is practically indestructible. Record charts are furnished either daily or weekly, and the whole mechanism is contained in an attractive metal case fitted with lock and key, which insures the record from being tampered with.

The clock movement is of extremely high grade; everything about the instrument is up to the highest possible standard of manufacture.

Charles Brown, of Brown & Kennedy, has returned from a successful trip to Los Angeles. Mr. Brown is president of the San Francisco Coöperative Flower Market.

S. L. Pritchard, proprietor of the flower store in the Goldberg, Bowen establishment, has just put a new automobile delivery wagon into commission; it is one of the prettiest in town. Samuel Matraia, member of a well-known florist family here, has joined Mr. Pritchard's staff. He has recently been in the business in Fresno, Cal.

Podesta & Baldocchi report having a great rush of funeral work. They have also been kept busy by home dinners, which seem to be increasing in number. "People give dinners in restaurants less than they did formerly," said Victor Podesta, and he added that dining at home is good for the florists.

Joseph's is in the thick of its winter social work. George Wagner, head decorator for Joseph's, had a recent wedding in the artistic Swedenborgian church, of this city, which was all done in yellow chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids carried garlands of mums in autumn shades, while the bride carried lilies of the valley. The illumination was produced by means of candles.

Picetti Bros. report that they have had a large amount of funeral work recently, which has kept them busy.

CARNATIONS CONTINUE STRONG.

The demand for field-grown carnation plants seems to be keeping pace with the unusually heavy offerings at this time, and there is no trouble marketing all the plants that have been grown. No doubt it always will be easy to dispose of good field-grown plants of the popular varieties. A letter like this one illustrates pretty well what the situation is:

Please cancel my ad on field-grown carnations, as I am sold out. Your advertisements bring results.—P. L. Graves, Jonesboro, Ark., September 30, 1922.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

Better Glass Surer Profit

THERE is a reason leading engineers and designers of greenhouses specify American Window Glass Company's Glass.

They know the essential requirements of greenhouse construction and their object is not only to attain strength but to guard against any condition, no matter how slight, that might affect successful operation.

The Greenhouse Glass made by this company is notable for its evenness, strength, careful grading and for the whiteness which assures more light on dark days.

No need to specify or use ordinary glass. Every box of American Window Glass bears the long elipse and our name, together with the grade marking which guarantees the quality. The largest greenhouses in the country are glazed with the American Window Glass Company's Products.

The Market.

Considering all conditions, business was good last week. On a number of days the retailers complained of doing no business at all, while on other days there was a considerable rush of trade at the stores. The average made for good business.

Roses sold well, especially the better grades, and the call was exceptionally good for Dunlop, Premier and Columbia. These sold at as high as $15 and $20 per hundred. Roses generally sold at from $4, for the shorter grades, to $12, for ordinarily good stock. American Beauty roses are pretty good and sell at about $6 per dozen.

On carnations the prices ranged from $2 to $4 per hundred, with the exception of Laddie. The latter readily brought $6 per hundred. Good chrysanthemums brought from $3 to $6 per dozen, although it was possible to get large supplies of poorer grades in the earlier varieties at as low as $10 per hundred. Chrysolora, Pacific Supreme, Early Frost, Snow Queen and Oconto were the varieties most in evidence. A large quantity of pompon chrysanthemums are being brought in, at prices ranging from $1.50 to $6 per dozen bunches, according to quality. Some fine pompons of outdoor production are being offered.

Dahlias, cosmos and other soft outdoor stock were almost entirely wiped out by the frost the latter part of last week. This caused a sigh of relief from the florists, who had grown tired of handling these cheap flowers in such large quantities. The disappearance of dahlias, in particular, will make for better prices next week on other stock, which has been affected by the presence of these and other cheap outdoor flowers.

The supply of lily of the valley was not so great as it has been, and the demand also slackened considerably. It is priced at $8 per hundred. Orchids are bringing $1 and $1.25 each.

Various Notes.

The closed car salon staged by the local automotive trade brought many good orders to the retailers for decorations of all kinds. Quantities of palms, ferns and baskets filled with fine chrysanthemums and other cut flowers were used in these decorations. This proved a welcome addition to the regular trade of the week and served to swell receipts. The Louise Flower Shop, on Connecticut avenue, had several shipments of fine chrysanthemums come here from California for this occasion. They arrived in pretty fair shape and made a hit. Included in the shipments were white and yellow Turner, Bonnaffon and several fancy varieties in pink and red. This enabled this store to offer something decidedly out of the ordinary.

There was a wailing, a weeping and a gnashing of teeth at the store of Gude Bros. Co., October 20, when the boys there received word from New Orleans that Granville Gude, Washington's entry in the special match race with Walter Hoover, the world's sculling champion, was deprived of a chance to wrest that title from Hoover when the latter pulled up stakes and left town without giving a real reason for refusing to enter the race. Hoover arrived in New Orleans Wednesday with his racing shell and left again Thursday night after telling American Legion officials he was compelled to go home. A huge crowd had counted on seeing this race and when Hoover backed out the young florist was matched with two local oarsmen. At the half-mile post they were so far behind him that they quit cold and returned to the float. At the store Granville Gude is the most popular member of the force, and the betting was all in his favor. The Washington delegation to the Legion convention had gone to considerable expense in preparing for the matched race and they do not feel any too kindly towards the champion.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

October has been unusually active and the prospects are favorable for a considerably increased business as the season advances. There have been a number of large weddings in which cut flowers, bouquets and decorations for house and church have been general.

The days of crisp, cold weather stiffened the mums in great shape, with the result that the stock is far superior to what it was a week ago. Prices are about normal and there is a normal supply of all kinds of stock. All outdoor stock has gone and the indoor stock, especially of roses and carnations, is showing constant improvement.

Various Notes.

John W. Stobbart, on Cross street, Franklin, has just put up a new greenhouse, 20x40.

C. Greene, of the East Greenwich Greenhouses, has just got a new touring car for his personal use.

Welcome Carmichael, of Carmichael Bros., of Shannock, was married last week in Worcester to Miss Dorothy Howard.

A gardeners' club is being organized at North Attleboro; this is in charge of a committee, consisting of Frederick Paye, P. D. White and J. J. Bleik.

Paul Brookner reports an unusually

Roses and Carnations should be sprayed every two weeks with Wilson's O. K. Plant Spray to keep them free from aphis, red spider and mildew. Such prominent growers as J. T. Everitt at Glen Cove, L. I., and David Miller, Tuxedo Park, N. Y., use Wilson's O. K. Plant Spray very extensively for a greenhouse spray.

WORCESTER, MASS.

Outdoor flowers are a negligible factor on the market. Flowers grown under glass are at a premium and are selling readily. The severe frosts which have occurred so early in the season have been disastrous to the outdoor mums and for the first time in many years the scarcity is felt. The coal situation, beginning April 1, is, no doubt, to blame for the shortage of flowers. It is both apparent and real all over the east. Variety is no longer in the markets. Florists are doing all they can to combat the difficulties, making up everlastings, dried grasses and autumn foliage with good effect. Potted plants are already selling rapidly. Business remains normal. Preparations are being made for a big holiday trade at Thanksgiving, this being one of the festivals New Englanders especially recognize. E. A.

The formal opening of the Quarrey Floral Co., in the Worcester market, was held Saturday, October 7. The new branch is completely stocked with bulbs, for fall planting, and plants and flowers for home decorations.

NEWPORT, R. I.

The announcement of the dates of the Garden Club of America convention, June 26 and 27, was made at the last meeting of the Horticultural Society and reports were received from the committees appointed to prepare for the event, more than a year ago. Owing to a change in the program, the large exhibition hall at the Art Association's building will be used for the sessions of the convention and will consequently not be available for exhibition purposes. But arrangements are being made to make use of some other building. W. H. M.

CAMPANULAS

CAMPANULAS FOR IMMEDIATE SHIPMENT.

HOW TO FORCE THEM.

As soon as received, pot them and carry the plants after that into a frame; they are better off if they do not freeze, they don't appreciate it. Up to February they want anything but a warm house; leave all the foliage on you can; hold the house as near to 32 deg. as possible and also after that time don't subject them to a high temperature; lift the plants and heel in a coldhouse to be planted out in a solid bed in February, to be slowly forced into bloom for cut-flowers for late April and during May.

Campanula Medium, blue, rose and white; Campanula Calycanthema, blue, rose, white, $8.00 per 100, $60.00 per 1000.

Imagine a Daisy of a rich red or a soft pink, or any other color, borne on long stems and 2 to 3 inches across. Try a few of my field-grown plants at 25c, 35c and 50c each, according to sizes.

POMMERT'S "PURITY."

This is the new commercial white that created a sensation at the Washington, D. C., convention of the S. A. F., was given a first class certificate and was presented to President Harding by the ladies of the S. A. F. with an appropriate speech dedicating it to the memory of his mother.

It is a pure white when cut in bud and opened in water; flower is size and form of America but has more substance making it the best shipper and keeper we have ever grown.

Strong healthy grower in the field and greenhouse; an ideal forcing variety but two weeks later than Lilywhite; an all season kind. You will have to have it eventually—Why not now? The best money-maker of all in the cut flower market. Be sure to get the right one "Pommert's." Our soil produces the best bulbs to be had.

AFTER

BRING YOUR GREENHOUSE TROUBLES TO US

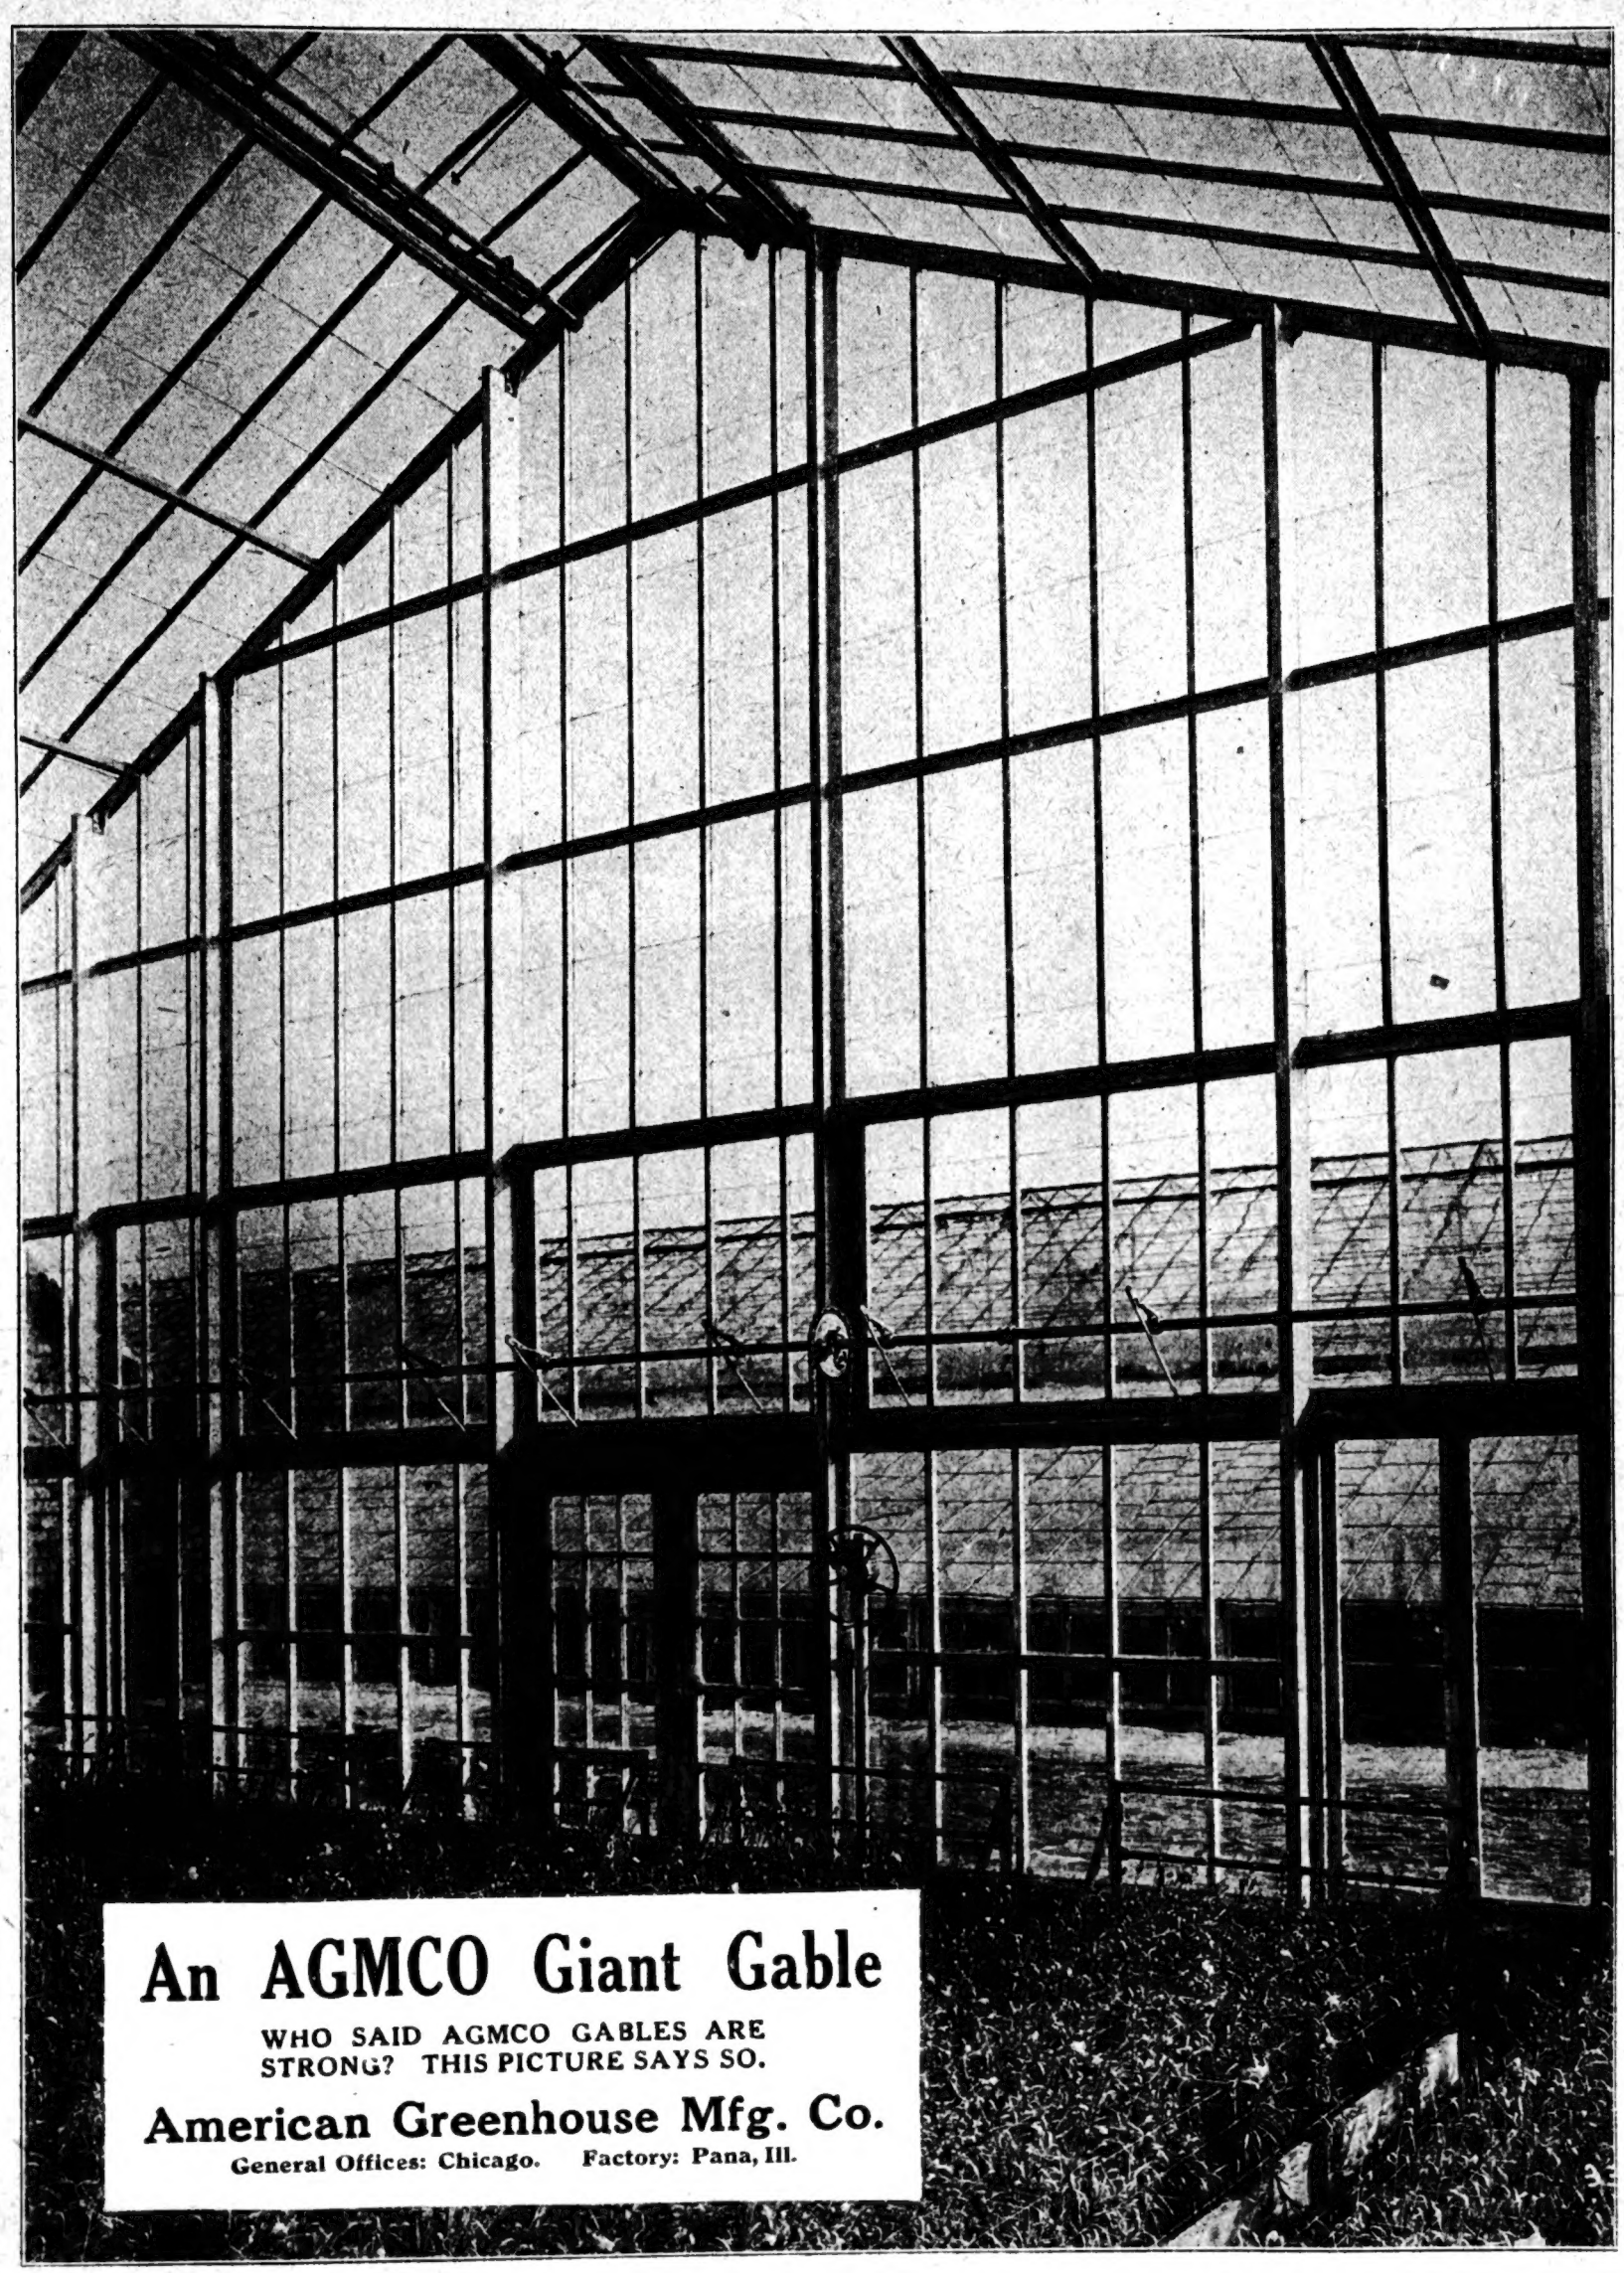
If you have one or more houses, you remember when you were selecting your first what a merry time you had in getting just what you wanted at the price you wanted to pay.

One grower said, "Don't build your greenhouse unless you have such and such." Another said, "I wouldn't build it unless it was so and so." Advice flying around on all sides until you didn't know where you were.

Every grower has certain conditions a greenhouse must satisfy to meet his special needs—it may be minor detail or it may be the meeting of certain municipal building requirements. Whatever it is or whatever your whims and fancies may be, King Greenhouses, standardized up to a certain point, will meet those requirements.

Extra manufacturing charges are eliminated—the house is of proven design and construction, yet it meets your special needs.

More than that, you get that King quality. Ask the users of King Greenhouses about it.



Let us know what you have in mind and we'll be glad to look after your greenhouse troubles.

When you think of good greenhouses, think of KING.
